A SPLENDID LIFE

The other day Dr. Remsen died. He was formerly president of John Hopkins University. He was known throughout the scientific world as a great chemist and a great teacher of chemistry. His whole life, an extremely simple one, was devoted to chemistry. It was under his teaching that one of his students discovered saccharin, the substitute for sugar, which has prolonged so many lives.

Dr. Remsen made many discoveries in chemistry whose value will only be known to chemists. But in the account of his death this sentence occurs: "He never turned his hand to commercialize any of his studies, never took out a patent and never taught anything but pure chemistry."

There you have a wonderful epitaph. In these days—to borrow from a popular pastime—money is trumps, notoriety is the ace, and having a good time is king, queen, and jack.

Dr. Remsen did not care for money, had no longing for fame, and found his good time in the pursuit of his work. His example will not appeal to the modern generation. There is no glamor to it, nothing sensational. To those who love the night life the gaud and tinsel of cabarets, and cheap plays and the glory of headlines in newspapers, Dr. Remsen's life will seem stupid.

Yet it is the one kind of life that is worth while. And if the modern generation does not approve of it, the trouble is now with Dr. Remsen's life, but with the modern generation.

In a recent speech Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler quoted and translated the following epigram from a French philosopher:

To find a noble ideal in youth, pursue it through the years of a busy life, and to watch its flower in ripeness, are the most certain and satisfying marks of a happy life.

Dr. Remsen had a noble ideal and clung to it. Ideals come naturally to young people. One of the most beautiful things of youth is its love of the ideal. But youth does not cling to its ideals long enough, as a rule. The first disappointment, the example of companions and the fashion of the day, too frequently destroy these ideals and then our young generation takes its place in the money grabbing, pleasure-chasing procession. There is lots of healthy fun to be had in the world. But it is only worth while as a relaxation from earnest work. And, in the long run, you get more pleasure out of work than you do out of the "fun."

CENSORSHIP OF NEWSPAPERS

Is the country likely to hear demands in the near future for a censorship of the daily press? Such seems to be the prospect disclosed by the report on crime and its repression which has just been rendered by a subcommittee of the New York State Crime Commission. This report, after denouncing news of crime as an incentive to its perpetration, concludes with the assertion that "newspaper censorship, while undesirable, is not the worst of evils."

The occasion for such concern over the reporting of crime is, of course, the fact that the so-called yellow journalism has been running wild during the past two or three years. Both the older journals and the tabloids have come to report crimes in a manner at once more detailed and more revolting than has ever before been witnessed. The recent libel action brought against a New York tabloid by principals of the Hall-Mills case were occasioned by this method of dealing with crime news.

But the fundamental cause of the threatened demand for censorship of crime news is, as the report of the New York subcommittee declares, the notion that the reading of such news is capable of prompting impressionable persons to commit crimes. This may or may not be true, but at present it can fairly be said to be so unsupported by evidence as not to justify the imposition of a sort of petty tyranny which is more potent of evil than the abuse it is intended to remedy.

It is futile to exalt certain principles, that will work only under certain conditions, and apply them indiscriminately over the world. Grover Cleveland was the embodiment of common sense when he said in his message to congress in 1887. "It is a condition which confronts us—not a theory."

The Chinese have a noiseless cannon; our official press is that it will be used on one of the formerly well-known "quiet sectors" of the battle line.

"It is estimated that it costs $1.30 to stop a freight train," notes the Aitchison Globe. "That is, if you don't use your new sedan."

THE AUTO MENACE
A war that would cause the killing of 25,000 American men, women and children in a single year, and the maiming of some hundreds of thousands more, would rouse the nation to the highest pitch of excitement and combative effort. An equal number of casualties as a result of homicides and felonious assaults would create a condition of resentment that would worse the courts and peace authorities to take the most stringent sort of suppressive measures. An epidemic disease threatening to demand victims to a similar extent would be fought by sanitary and health authorities and physicians with all the power and resources at their command. It is estimated that this year automobiles will cause the deaths of 25,000 people, and that the slaughter will be accompanied by the maiming and more or less permanent disablement of hundreds of thousands of other Americans, many of whom will remain cripples or invalids for life, but through some isolated serious attempts to combat the bloody horror are made, the country as a whole does little but talk, and the efforts of the authorities on the whole are so pitiful that sometimes they seem almost counterfeited. There are traffic regulations, but they seldom are adequately enforced, and only a small minority of drivers voluntarily obey them, at least in this corner of the world. Although it is supposed to be a penal offense to kill a person by hitting him with an automobile, very few offenders ever are punished with more than a nominal penalty. The neglect of prosecutors and courts in this direction is a scandal, and is a direct encouragement to recklessness.

The traffic situation is difficult, but it is hopeless only because no genuinely serious effort is made to handle it in any comprehensive way.—Detroit Free Press.

The Ohio State Journal reports that "there are ladies in our church to whom our pastor, always a prudent man, won't speak except in the presence of a third person, since he read 'Elmer Gantry.'"

Death of an Early Settler of Cass County

Mrs. Wilhelmina Ruhge, Aged Resident of Near Avoca Called to the Last Reward.

Wilhelmina Hillman was born in Hanover, Germany, January 29, 1862 and came to America with her parents at the age of 7. Lived at Plattville, Wisconsin, two years, then came to Nebraska and shared in the pioneer life of the early settlers in Cass county.

She joined the Lutheran church at the age of 14, and has kept the christian faith and fellowship through all the varied years. On August 29, 1927, she was married to Fred W. Ruhge. To this union were born 8 children—Herman, now living in Chicago; John and Gus, of Avoca; Mrs. Wm. Morley of Avoca, Mrs. Wm. Gillen of Council Bluffs, Miss Anna Ruhge of Avoca, and Mrs. Wm. Huffman of Elmwood, Neb. Her son, Fred, and also father Ruhge left this world in 1920. There are 14 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren to share in the loss of a beloved home center. A brother, Dick Hillman, of Weeping Water, and a sister, Mrs. Sophy Bekkers of Council Bluffs, Nebraska, also are left, together with a goodly number of pioneer friends and a host of others, both old and young, who have shared in the tie that binds, and now, as a great family, share the grief of parting.

Mother Ruhge was in a weakened condition after a severe attack of the flu. Though out in the yard during the day, and sharing a neighborly social in the evening of March 30th, she was stricken with paralysis and passed away before the next morning.

On Sunday afternoon, April 3rd, the funeral services were held at the Congregational church, where the family has been worshipping for many years. Six of Mother Ruhge's nephews served as pallbearers. Music was rendered by the Congregational choir, assisted by the male quartet from the Christian church. The obituary was read, with comments and the sermon delivered by Rev. J. M. Kokjer, using the text: "Our Citizenship is in Heaven, where also we look for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ; who shall fashion anew the body of our humiliation that it may be conformed to the body of His Glory."—Philippians 20:2-3.

An overflowing audience of old settlers, neighbors and friends of the family attended to pay tribute of esteem and share in the grief of a final farewell to the loved one departing. A floral offering of roses, lilies and various other blossoms assembled with foliage, bedecked and surrounded the casket before the altar. At the cemetery, after the words of interment were spoken and a benediction pronounced, the family and a large group of friends lingered long at parting.

"Farewell, a little time and we shall know thee well, and loved thee here. One after one shall follow thee As pilgrims through the gate of fear Which opens on Eternity. Yet shall we cherish not the less All that is left our hearts, meanwhile; The memory of thy loveliness Shall round our weary pathway."—Elmwood Leader-Echo
