AGED MAN SUFFERS
A FRACTURED ARM

Mr. Amsdel Sheldon of Avoca suffered a fracture of the right arm, between the elbow and the shoulder, when he tripped and fell while engaged in carrying wood to the house at his home north of Avoca Sunday evening. The fracture, which was found to be very severe, owing to the gentleman's advanced age, 87 years, was reduced by Dr. M. U. Thomas of Weeping Water. Mr. Sheldon was then taken to the Lincoln sanitarium, where an X-ray picture revealed an oblique fracture of the humerus, which is a very bad break. Although the break is very serious, Mr. Sheldon is getting along quite nicely, and it is to be hoped that he will recover quickly.—Weeping Water Republican.

able manner, Mr. Bailey pointing to the long and distinguished career of the speaker as an international authority of history and whose selection as one of two college leaders to accompany the American peace commission to France in 1919 had been proof of his ability.

Dr. Fling had as his topic, "America's Role in the World Affairs" and in which the speaker in some detail took up the present aspect of the world relationships and particularly the attitude of our country in the affairs of the other nations. The flight of Lindbergh from New York to Paris in thirty-three hours as well as the television and the international telephone were marks in the path of time that the people of the United States had ceased to be isolated residents of the western continent and were now international citizens and affected by the world problems. The speaker traced the course of history in the development of the nations and the growth of the idea of democracies, the overthrow of the great empires and the gradual struggle to the top of the world society, that even now was making its demand felt as the means of guidance of the world from the paths of old conquests and bloodshed to the realization of peaceful world democracies. The cause of the world war, the speaker stated, was the fact of the coming into being of a world society and the fact that the ruling nations were unaware of the awakening desires of the peoples for common understanding and appreciation. In the 6,000 years of history the paths of civilization have led to the present desire for world peace and higher civilization. The speaker urged on the class the individual study of the problems that they might give intelligent thought to the needs of the nation and the world and serve best in the settlement of the issues of the day in the struggle for a world court or a league of nations that might settle in a peaceful manner the problems of the world. Dr. Fling reviewed the active events of the close of the world war and the final adoption of the covenant of the League of Nations and its rejection by the senate of our country, and made a most able plea for the adoption of this means of settling the international disputes.

Misses Martha Gorder and Emily Stava, who have been active in the musical circles of the high school gave a charming vocal duet, "O Tell Me Merry Birds of Spring" by C. A. White, the accompanist being Miss Mildred Hall, one of the class members.

The presentation of the American history award given by Fontenelle chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was made by Mrs. George B. Mann, the prize of the highest standing in the class in American history being given to Miss Treva Edgerton.

Superintendent R. E. Bailey announced the conferring of the scholarship of the class on George Swatek as the highest ranking student of the class, the coveted honor being presented to the young man in appreciation of his splendid work in the school.

E. E. Flack, acting principal of the high school then presented the class to President Frank L. Cummins of the board of education, who gave a few remarks of congratulations to the young people and expressed the feeling of gratification felt by the parents and friends of the attainment of the goal of the high school life. Dr. Cummins then presented the diplomas to the students which closed the ceremonies of the evening.

After the exercises a great many of the friends came forward to greet and congratulate the students on their successful school work.

MOTORED TO KANSAS

Last week Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Comer motored to Horton, Kansas, where they attended the play at the high school there. Their grandson, Cecil Bird was in the play. On Thursday evening they attended the commencement exercises at Mascola, Kansas, when a son of Will Comer, graduated. On Friday evening they attended the commencement exercises at Horton, when Cecil Bird graduated. Rev. L. W. Meyers preached the baccalaureate sermon for the class and a splendid account of this sermon was published in the Horton Headlight-Commercial. Mr. and Mrs. Comer had a fine visit and a good time. Mr. Comer stated that Cecil Bird had won many honors in athletics, especially in track. In this respect he is a good deal like his grandfather who is great on athletics.—Elmwood Leader-Echo.

MUST TEACH ABSTINENCE

Washington, May 26.—Total abstinence must be taught in the homes, churches and public schools to make prohibition a success, the general assembly of the United Presbyterian church of North America was told today by its social service committee.

The annual report of the committee also turned its attention to the younger generation, declaring that moral and religious training were the only antidotes for lawlessness among the youth of the land, and expressed concern over "activities to repeal and nullify our Sabbath law" by permitting amusements and sports on Sunday.

Hail and Farewell to Class of the Year 1927

Commencement Exercises of the High School Very Largely Attended Last Night.

From Saturday's Daily—
The senior class of 1927 has passed into history as far as the school of their youthful days is concerned and the portals of their future career has swung open to them in the graduating exercises held last night at the high school auditorium.

The audience was one of the largest that has assembled to witness a graduation and the class as well as the largest in the history of the Plattsmouth high school, sixty boys and girls forming its ranks and carrying with it the greatest interest from the community at large.

The processional of the graduation was sounded at 8:30 by Miss Estelle Baird of the high school faculty and to its strains the fine looking young men and women who have completed their four years of study entered the auditorium and took their places on the platform filling the stage with the class members.

The members of the class were the following splendid young people and on whom rests responsibility for future citizenship:

Jerry J. Adam, John F. Bauer, Margaret E. Bauer, James M. Bridgewater, Edith Mae Bullin, Joe A. Buttery, Teresa M. Donat, Florence K. Duda, Treva Maurice Edgerton, Jessie Gwendolyn Fitch, Evelyn I. Furry, Florence D. Furry, Catherine J. Grandville, Martha Louise Gorder, Mildred Mayola Hall, Reed Emmet Hallet, Anna B. Harris, Lela Henderson, Ireta Mae Henry, Mary B. Holy Hazel K. Iverson, Helen E. Iverson, Raphael M. Janda, Thyra Alberta Johnson, Henrietta M. Koukal, Henry J. Koukal, Anne L. Krejci, Thelma E. Kroehler, Justus J. Lillie, Richard G. Livingston, Dorothy Alice Marquette, Marie T. Meisinger, John C. Nelson, Sylvia M. Noble, Fern N. Pace, Dorothy I. Persinger, Alice Lorena Peterson, Theodore E. Ptak, Hannah Janet Rasmussen, George E. Rehal, Lois L. Scotten, Marjorie B. Shopp, Ruth L. Sizzman, Sylvia Skalak, Helen Elizabeth Smetana, Gerald M. Smith, Dora Soennichsen, Emily Stava, Gretchen Steger, George Swatek, Warren K. Taylor, Roland Lee Thomas, Jean Lorraine Tidball, Kathleen Troop, Alysce A. True, Dorothy H. Wechslein, Ralph H. Wehrhahn, Agnes Frady Weenkamp, David J. Woster, Florence Yelick.

The invocation as well as the benediction was offered by Rev. H. E. Sator of the First Methodist church.

Raphael Janda, one of the talented members of the class whose musical work has often delighted the members of the class was heard in a very fine rendition of the "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" by Rachmaninoff which reflected the greatest skill on the part of the young man.

The salutatory was given by Miss Treva Edgerton, the second highest ranking student in the large class. Miss Edgerton paid a tribute to the associations of the school days, the attainment of this commencement night that was to the members of the class one of the great events of their lives. The inspiration of the thought of Oliver Wendell Holmes in the "Palm of Life," urging the class to leave in the sands of time, footprints that others coming after might see and be inspired with. The speaker appealed to the audience that they who had assisted the young people in the school life be prepared to give what aid was possible in the harder and more exacting battle of life.

The valedictory by George Swatek honor student of the class was, like the salutatory, well given and contained many fine thoughts in the farewell message of the class to the public and to their own membership. The speaker stated that the class was bidding farewell to the close associations of the school days, the paths of the members that must lie along other lines from this time on. Mr. Swatek expressed the gratitude of the class for the opportunities of education that the board of education has provided, the efforts of the parents to see that they were schooled and the citizens for the opportunities for their education. It was time, now the speaker stated to put into practice the principles learned at school. To his classmates Mr. Swatek stated that education was the weapon and bodyguard of the youth in the battle of life and which he urged they use to the greatest advantage. In conclusion the speaker wished the class individually success and happiness.

As the close of the class addresses were delivered Warren Taylor, one of the musically talented members of the class was heard in a vocal solo, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," the beautiful Indian melody being very much enjoyed and given most fittingly by the singer.

The orator of the evening, Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, head of the department of history of the University of Nebraska was introduced by Superintendent R. E. Bailey, in a very able manner, Mr. Bailey pointing to the long and distinguished career of the speaker as an international authority of history and whose selection as one of two college leaders to accompany the American peace commission to France in 1919 had been proof of his ability.

Dr. Fling had as his topic, "America's Role in the World Affairs" and in which the speaker in some detail took up the present aspect of the world relationships and particularly the attitude of our country in the affairs of the other nations. To his classmates Mr. Swatek stated that education was the weapon and bodyguard of the youth in the battle of life and which he urged they use to the greatest advantage. In conclusion the speaker wished the class individually success and happiness.

As the close of the class addresses were delivered Warren Taylor, one of the musically talented members of the class was heard in a vocal solo, "By the Waters of the Minnetonka," the beautiful Indian melody being very much enjoyed and given most fittingly by the singer.

The orator of the evening, Dr. Fred Morrow Fling, head of the department of history of the University of Nebraska was introduced by Superintendent R. E. Bailey, in a very able manner, Mr. Bailey pointing to the long and distinguished career of the speaker as an international authority of history and whose selection as one of two college leaders to accompany the American peace commission to France in 1919 had been proof of his ability.

Dr. Fling had as his topic, "America's Role in the World Affairs" and in which the speaker in some detail took up the present aspect of the world relationships and particularly the attitude of our country in the affairs of the other nations. The flight of Lindbergh from New York to Paris in thirty-three hours as well as the television and the international telephone were marks in the path of time that the people of the United States had ceased to be isolated residents of the western continent and were now international citizens and affected by the world problems. The speaker traced the course of history in the development of the nations and the growth of the idea of democracies, the overthrow of the great empires and the gradual struggle to the top of the world society, that even now was making its demand felt as the means of guidance of the world from the paths of old conquests and bloodshed to the realization of peaceful world democracies. The cause of the world war, the speaker stated, was the fact of the coming into being of a world society and the fact that the ruling nations were unaware of the awakening desires of the peoples for common understanding and appreciation. In the 6,000 years of history the paths of civilization have led to the present desire for world peace and higher civilization. The speaker urged on the class the individual study of the problems that they might give intelligent thought to the needs of the nation and the world and serve best in the settlement of the issues of the day in the struggle for a world court or a league of nations that might settle in a peaceful manner the problems of the world. Dr. Fling reviewed the active events of the close of the world war and the final adoption of the covenant of the League of Nations and its rejection by the senate of our country, and made a most able plea for the adoption of this means of settling the international disputes.

Misses Martha Gorder and Emily Stava, who have been active in the musical circles of the high school gave a charming vocal duet, "O Tell Me Merry Birds of Spring" by C. A. White, the accompanist being Miss Mildred Hall, one of the class members.

The presentation of the American history award given by Fontenelle chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, was made by Mrs. George B. Mann, the prize of the highest standing in the class in American history being given to Miss Treva Edgerton.

Superintendent R. E. Bailey announced the conferring of the scholarship of the class on George Swatek as the highest ranking student of the class, the coveted honor being presented to the young man in appreciation of his splendid work in the school.

E. E. Flack, acting principal of the high school then presented the class to President Frank L. Cummins of the board of education, who gave a few remarks of congratulations to the young people and expressed the feeling of gratification felt by the parents and friends of the attainment of the goal of the high school life. Dr. Cummins then presented the diplomas to the students which closed the ceremonies of the evening.

After the exercises a great many of the friends came forward to greet and congratulate the students on their successful school work.

MOTORED TO KANSAS

Last week Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Comer motored to Horton, Kansas, where they attended the play at the high school there. Their grandson, Cecil Bird was in the play. On Thursday evening they attended the commencement exercises at Mascola, Kansas, when a son of Will Comer, graduated. On Friday evening they attended the commencement exercises at Horton, when Cecil Bird graduated. Rev. L. W. Meyers preached the baccalaureate sermon for the class and a splendid account of this sermon was published in the Horton Headlight-Commercial. Mr. and Mrs. Comer had a fine visit and a good time. Mr. Comer stated that Cecil Bird had won many honors in athletics, especially in track. In this respect he is a good deal like his grandfather who is great on athletics.—Elmwood Leader-Echo.
