

Nehawka Department!

Prepared in the interests of the People of Nehawka and Surrounding Vicinity Especially for the Journal Readers.

C. S. Stone and family were spending last Sunday and the Fourth at the home of relatives in Nehawka.

W. A. Hicks, who believes in getting the work out of the way when there is an opportunity, was industriously hitting the ball in the corn fields on the Fourth.

J. W. Magney and family were in Nebraska City last Monday evening, where they enjoyed the fireworks which marked the passing of the anniversary of the nation's birthday.

Frank Trotter was a visitor in Omaha on Tuesday of this week, and was delivering a load of hogs with his truck for the farmers, making the trip early while the weather was cool.

Frank Lemon and the good wife were spending last Sunday and the Fourth at the home of friends and relatives in North Bend, they driving over to that hustling city in their car.

Reports from the hospital are to the effect that Mr. Stewart Rough is getting along nicely at this time and will, it is hoped, soon be able to return to his home completely recovered in health.

Charles D. St. John was a caller at the county seat last Saturday, driving over to the city of Plattsmouth in his car, and while there he met many of his friends who reside there and over the county.

Glen Rutledge, editor of the Enterprise, was a visitor at the home of the parents of Mrs. Rutledge, and was accompanied with the other members of the family, where they enjoyed the day very pleasantly.

Mrs. Wm. Gorder, who is at this time attending a school at Lincoln, was a visitor in Plattsmouth and also north of Nehawka, and also a guest at the home of her parents, W. O. Troop and wife over Sunday.

Albert Wolfe and daughter, Miss Gladys, were visiting with friends and acquaintances at Stafford, Kansas, on last Sunday and Monday, they driving over in their car. They returned home on Monday evening.

W. O. Troop and son, Robert, were visiting in Omaha during the latter part of last week, where they had shipped a few cars of cattle to the market and found they were entitled to some of the best prices of the day.

During the morning of the Fourth, the business houses were open, but were closed about the noon hour that all who chose might go where they desired and enjoyed the celebration or visit with friends as they might wish.

Robert H. Chapman and the family were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Pitman, of Avoca, on last Sunday, where all enjoyed the time most pleasantly. Mr. and Mrs. Pitman are the parents of Mrs. Chapman.

James R. Hill and the family were enjoying the Fourth of July celebration which was staged at Nebraska City on last Monday, they driving over to the big town of Otoe county in their car and staying for the fireworks in the evening.

Thomas Mason and sister, Miss Ella, were visiting with their many friends in Omaha last Monday, as it was the Fourth of July, and Tommy did not have to carry the mail, so he and his sister were able to get away to Omaha for a much enjoyed day's outing.

Robert Chapman, the carrier of one of the routes running out of Nehawka, during the time when he did not have to work last Monday, was very industriously engaged in the construction of a kitchen at the home in order to have more room and make it more convenient for the family.

Miss Clara Ahrends, who is at the hospital in Omaha, where she some time since underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils and relief from repeated attacks of appendicitis, is reported as getting along nicely at this time and with the hope of a speedy and permanent recovery.

As evidence that harvest is surely here and that there is to be an abundance of wheat, Frank Trotter purchased an invoice of binder twine on Tuesday of this week that made almost a truck load, and which it is estimated will all be required to care for the wants of the wheat growers in this vicinity.

In the ball game which was staged last Sunday between the team of Nehawka and that of Weeping Water, the result was very close and interesting with the chances of evening up the score good throughout the major portion of the game, but with the visitors outplaying the locals in the end, and winning the honors by a very close margin, they getting the victory by a tally of 6 to that of 5 for the Nehawka team.

Uncle Peter Opp, who has been in the hospital for some time past, and where he underwent an operation of a very serious nature, is at this time making marked improvement and is anticipating the pleasure of leaving the hospital soon. His son, John Opp, and the family were over to Omaha and visited this gentleman on last

Recalls Old Days Back in the Virginia Hills

Many Residents Here Came From Families of Settlers in the Old Dominion.

In the May issue of the American Legion monthly there appeared an article that is of more than passing interest to many residents of this city and vicinity, covering as it does a story of the Virginia hills and the residents there, and from this section of Virginia there came many of our older residents and to them the story was a graphic description of the points of interest and many of the families who were mentioned are familiar to the residents here who were cradled in the heart of the Virginia hills.

The attention of the writer to the article as having more than passing interest was called by A. S. Will, who was born in Highland county, Virginia, where the Legion article is laid and Mr. Will recalled from his boyhood memories many of the names that appeared in the article, although of course there were few that he recalled personally although there were several names that seemed familiar as he recalled it of persons he had known in his youth.

This county in the Old Dominion is located on the crests of the Allegheny mountains and in some of the most attractive scenes that can be found in the United States, while nearby in the adjoining county of August, is the birthplace of the late President Wilson at Staunton.

Mr. Will while here visiting was at the home of his son, Robert, who is a former service man and Legion member, and in picking up the monthly to idly glance through it he was thrilled with the well written story of a trip of a stranger to this mountain country of the south.

Families have resided there for many generations and the names of the Warners, the Sigafoses, the Whitesides, the Lucases and the Lamberts are familiar to those who have visited that section and the families have been there through many generations.

Many in this county have come from this part of Virginia and their part in the making of the west is an evidence of the rugged honesty and strength of character that has characterized the residents of this section of Virginia, that beautiful mountain and valley country that lies along the Allegheny and Blue Ridge mountains.

Enjoyed Picnic Sunday
The Extension club, who have their members mostly south of Nehawka, held a picnic at the Maple Grove school where they have many shade trees, a good lawn and plenty of fine drinking water. A large number of people, members of the club and their friends and relatives, were present, it being estimated that there were upwards of two hundred there.

A pageant of historical nature was presented, which contained much of the history of the world, and especially features of American statesmen and philosophers. There were special numbers in music. Mrs. Eugene Nitzman and Rev. Swingle sang very prettily a group of special numbers, which were greatly appreciated. Mr. B. Wolph gave an address well worth listening to by anyone, it being entitled "America's Heritage."

This part of the program was greatly enjoyed by all who were present, and it is always a joy to listen to an address by Mr. Wolph.

Steamboat Master Quells a Riot on Board

Captain Edward Heckman of the Steamer "John Heckman" Shows His Authority

Captain Edward Heckman, master of the river steamer, "John Heckman," which was here for two days last week running excursions, was called upon Monday night to show his authority as captain of his vessel and to quell a disturbance that two brothers, Howard Stanley of Council Bluffs and Leonard Stanley of Lincoln, attempted to start on the deck of the "John Heckman" which is now running excursions from Omaha each afternoon and evening.

The trouble occurred when the boat had left the dock at the foot of Douglas street. Captain Heckman said that the two men attempted to create a riot on a passenger vessel at night while under way and further charges that Howard Stanley assaulted a licensed officer of the boat while the latter was on duty.

Either offense is punishable by imprisonment or fine, or both. Captain Heckman said. A penitentiary term would mean five to 20 years, he said.

Invoke Maritime Law.
As the Missouri is a navigable stream, and is considered under the jurisdiction of the United States government, Captain Heckman's charges caused bewilderment in federal circles Tuesday, as this is the first time maritime law has been invoked locally.

According to Captain Heckman, the Stanley brothers boarded the boat about 9 p. m., with a crowd of six or eight other young men. There were approximately four hundred people on board as the boat pulled away up-stream. Most of these were on the second deck, which is the dance floor.

The young men became "bossy" and abusive on the dance floor. Captain Heckman said.

"I was on duty in the pilot house at the time," Heckman said. "When Dean reported to me, I told him to see that the men were kept under close guard. Creating a riot on board a passenger vessel which is under way, especially at night is a very serious offense. In the old days, a master had absolute control over every man aboard his ship, even to life or death. This sort of thing would have been punishable by death then. Piracy now, under our laws, means life imprisonment."

"Every year, I take my oath as a master, to protect the property and lives of my passengers. Had the trouble become much worse, I would have been justified in killing the men, for they might have caused panic and fear among the passengers to the extent they would have leaped overboard."

The Stanley brothers had been under guard for a short time only, when one of the deck hands relaxed his vigilance for a moment, and the younger Stanley broke away. Captain Heckman said.

Subdued With Gun.
"He made his way to the second deck again, evidently looking for trouble. He found it. Captain Dean met him, and with the aid of two men, brought him up to the pilot house. I was at the wheel. The young fellow became very abusive, took off his coat and said he was going to lick all of us. We took him down in a hurry, pinning him in a chair, and I put a gun to his head. I was mad clear through. It was the first trouble of that nature we have had for years."

The men were then kept apart for the remainder of the voyage, and were placed under arrest at the foot of Douglas street bridge, when the boat docked.

PERU OUT OF MUD

From Wednesday's Daily—
After many years of strong boosting and work the state normal school town of Peru is out of the mud and in touch with the lines of travel at all seasons of the year. The highway that leads from the King of Trails highway into Peru has been in bad shape each winter and spring and has served as a nuisance to the students who go to and from the state normal school each week end. Many Plattsmouth students attend the school and many more of the basketball fans have been going there for games during the season when the weather and roads permit and now with the good road leading into the normal town there will be a greater chance for the young people to get to and from the town in any kind of weather. The road was in bad shape all last winter as it was under construction when the cold weather came on and stopped work and remained in poor shape all of the rest of the year. The Peru people will certainly appreciate the gravel surfaced road that gives them an outlet at all times. The new road will practically lead to the abandonment of the scenic route along the bluffs of the Nemaha and the bluffs which in the summer has been a very popular highway.

MARRIED AT DENVER

From Wednesday's Daily—
The marriage of Miss Margaret Alwin and Mr. Carl Hall occurred at Denver on Saturday evening at the home of friends and the young people are now enjoying their honeymoon in the many points of interest in and near the Colorado city. The marriage was witnessed by only the intimate friends of the contracting parties. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are to make their future home in Denver and will start housekeeping the coming week in that city. The bride has been at Denver for the past six weeks at the home of her sister and Mr. Hall has joined here there.

The many friends here will join in their well wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Hall on their new found happiness.
