Work Early and Late on Wheat Harvest in State

Continued Optimistic Report From All Sections of State Show This Year to Be One of Best.

Harvesting reports coming in from over Nebraska indicate the best wheat yet for several years. Implement dealers have been swamped with orders for harvesting machinery, repairs and twine and farmers have been working early and late. Due to the heavy grain and extreme heat the harvesting has been progressing more slowly than in former years.

Reports from Central City are of a big yield in Merrick county, with wheat heavy and well headed out and practically free from rust. If favorable weather continues it will soon all be in the shocks. The crop while heavy in acreage is also of splendid quality and heavy yield. The same promises to be true of oats and barley.

There are some very heavy fields of wheat in Phelps county. Many surprisingly large yields are looked for and it is predicted that the crop will be the best in the county since 1902 and may surpass that year.

Nance county reports an excellent crop, with harvesting started off by Duke Dudley Tuesday. He says it takes five pounds of twine to the acre. Dudley says he believes his crop this year is the best in his forty years in Nance county.

Shelton reports practically all of the wheat in the Platte valley ripe and ready to harvest. Harvest hands have been much in demand and a great many transients have come in for the week. The grain is expected to average all the way from twenty to forty bushels per acre, with higher yields possible. Local elevator men have been busy getting their elevators in shape for the new crop.

Farmers in Colfax and north Butler county say the crop is better than the average. The Colfax county implement company has been unable to make delivery this year because the manufacturing plants were unable to keep up with the demand for the new harvester combine.

The wheat harvest is nearly over near Hardy, with a yield of more than was expected a few weeks ago. In that community nearly all the grain was harvested without much outside help.

The first new wheat arrived in Fairbury Tuesday afternoon from the Train farm west of Fairbury, cut and threshed with a new combine. The second load came shortly after from Ernest Riddler's field on the Crumb farm north. It also was cut and threshed by a combine and the yield is estimated at twenty-seven bushels. At Biller, the farmers' elevator and sold 50,000 bushels for $1.25 a bushel on contract for the farmers of that vicinity.

Cutting in Seward county began last Thursday and has been in progress ever since, some farmers not even stopping for Sunday and more harvesting the fourth of July. A good yield is predicted.

The Louisville team of the Sarpy-Cass County league which last Sunday knocked Fort Crook into a tit with Plattsmouth for the league leadership, will be the headliner at the local park on Sunday afternoon.

This will be the first time this season that the Louisville team has been here and they will have with them a great many new faces, as several snappy players from Nehawka and other points have been enrolled in the cement makers. With their local players and the new additions to the team the Louisville bunch should be able to put up a real scrap against the locals.

Fort Crook and Papillion will battle Sunday and the Sarpy county seat bunch will go their best to further humiliate the soldiers and with their fast playing organization should give the doughboys the time of their lives. The shattered Bellevue team that has been badly upset in the past two weeks will have Springfield as their foe and if the Collegiates are in the same form they were here Sunday the west Sarpy town should be able to chalk up one.

In the two games that Plattsmouth and Fort Crook have played there has been a fifty-fifty split, the locals being defeated at the Fort while they handed the soldiers a defeat here, so that the present league leaders are well matched apparently.

The Louisville game will be fought bitterly by the locals who have cleaned up three straights now and are looking to add their fourth victory in their fight toward the league leadership.

This year the locals are making a hard fight for the pennant and while last season they led the league at the start and then slumped, this year they are starting from the bottom and hope to end up among the elect at the head of the list. The game Sunday should be one of the best of the season with Louisville taking a new lease on life and the Platters going in good form and should give the fans an afternoon of real sport.

Maybe there is nothing permanent under the sun, but Spain's war with the Riffs still drags out an attenuated existence.

Roads in the West Part of County Good

Program of Work of Commissioner Gorder Has Results in Much Better Roads.

Last Sunday afternoon The Beacon editor drove to the township line north of town and inspected the road work just finished by Commissioner Fred Gorder and his binder outfit. The road work from Alvo to the Lancaster line is up in good shape, and the workmen are now coming south on the line at the east side of Engle—past the school house to O street.

After this is finished they will take a chance to settle binder outfit. The road work from Alvo to the Lancaster line is up in good shape, and the workmen are now coming south on the line at the east side of Engle—past the school house to O street.

James W. Searson Dead in Boston

Started East Last Week to Teach in University of Boston Summer School Beginning Tuesday

James W. Searson of Lincoln was found dead Thursday morning in his room at the Hotel Lenox in Boston, according to a telegram received by George L. Towne, head of the University Publishing company with which Mr. Searson had been connected as publications editor for the last seven or eight years.

Mr. Searson had been teaching in the University of Nebraska summer school during the first term but left for the east Thursday of last week, stopping in Chicago on the way. He reached Boston Monday, the fourth of July, and started teaching in the Boston university summer school Tuesday morning and is supposed to also have given the first class Wednesday. The head of the Boston school was in the hotel when his death was discovered.

According to Mr. Towne, Mr. Searson seemed in his usual health when he left Lincoln, but spoke of being very tired. The death is supposed to have been from heart failure.

Mr. Searson leaves his wife and one daughter, Wilma, the bride of two weeks of Leroy P. Schlentz. Both are now in Lincoln. Mrs. Searson was to have joined her husband and to spend a vacation period later with him on the Atlantic coast.

James William Searson was born at Grand Island, Neb., September 12, 1873. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1895 and took the M. A. degree from the same institution in 1899. He later had graduate work at Columbia. He married Martin Ellen Chappell of Lincoln in 1901.

Mr. Searson had been prominent in educational work in both Nebraska and Kansas. He held the title of professor of English in the University of Nebraska extension department since 1921. He was the author of many text books and had prepared numerous school editions of English classics. He was a member of national and international educational societies, and was identified in Lincoln with the chamber of commerce, the University club, the Candle Light and Rotary clubs.

Mr. Searson was well known as a friend by many Plattsmouth people and at one time in his early school work was a teacher in the schools at Weeping Water. He was here last winter as one of the speakers in the winter program of Happy Hundred suppers and his death will be regretted very much by those who had the pleasure of meeting him at that time.
