Use of Water Gas Tar to Kill Chinch Bugs

Time to Begin Thinking About Extirmination of These Pests—Local Firm Co-operating. A very effective method of exterminating chinch bugs with the use of water gas tar and calcium cyanide chips has been developed for use at the time the chinch bugs are moving from ripe wheat fields to the greener corn fields. The procedure is as follows: Plow a furrow between the wheat and corn fields, throwing the dirt up by the plow should be smoothed down by a grader, road drag or plank until a perfectly smooth surface is obtained.

A series of post holes 16 to 18 inches deep and approximately 16 inches apart should be dug in the furrow close to vertical side. A tablespoon full of calcium cyanide should be put into each hole daily. A line of gas tar should be run between each hole, the tar line curving towards the corn field upon the earth smoothed down by the drag or grader. This line should be unbroken so that the chinch bugs cannot crawl between the wheat and corn field without crossing the tar, for this reason the earth should be very smooth and free from clods. The bugs in leaving the wheat field will drop into the plowed furrow and continue towards the corn field, until they reach the tar line. They follow along the line until they drop into the post holes which contain the poisonous cyanide gas. It is impossible for them to climb the vertical side of the furrow and return to the wheat field after once leaving it.

It has been found that best results are obtained by renewing the tar line and calcium chips daily about 2:00 p. m., as the bugs move from about that time until evening. In handling the calcium cyanide, care should be taken to keep on the windward side so as not to inhale the fumes any more than necessary. Gas tar can be obtained from the gas plants at Lincoln, Beatrice, York and Plattsmouth, Nebraska, and at Red Oak and Shenandoah, Iowa.

New Game Laws in Effect July 24

Changes Are Made in the Number of Game and Fish That Can Be Caught. Bulletins setting forth the game and fish laws of Nebraska as amended by the last session of the state legislature have been issued and sportsmen over the state studying them with interest. The most important changes in the laws which become effective July 24, are the sections containing the bag limit on both fish and game.

Changes have been made on the number of game fish and birds which may be caught or killed. There have been no changes in the number of plover, prairie chicken, grouse and snipe that may be killed in a day, or that may be found in the possession of a hunter, except as is provided in the following section: "It shall be unlawful for any person to have in his or her possession or in any one time in excess of 50 game birds. Of this total there shall be no more of any one kind than hereinafter stated: Plover, 25; prairie chicken, 5; rails, except coots, 25; snipe, (Wilson and Jack), 25; brants, 5; coots, 40; and geese, 5."

This section reads the same as the corresponding section in the old laws with the exception of a prairie chicken which is limited to 10; brants, 10; coots, 50; ducks, 50 and geese 10. The section concerning changes in the bag limit for game fish reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person to take or catch in any one time in excess of 15 game fish, except perch and blueheads, and no person shall take in any one day in excess of 25 perch or 25 blueheads."

A change has also been made in the number of game fish that may be found in the possession of a person at any one time. The old law set the number at 50, and the new law limits it to 25.
