Prepared in the Interest of the People of Greenwood and Surrounding Vicinity

Charles Armstrong shelled and delivered corn to the elevator in Greenwood last Thursday.

Harold Almy shelled his corn last week, delivering the same to the Peters Elevator company.

David Appuhn was a visitor at the home of a son at Aurora on last Sunday, he making the trip out on the train.

Mrs. Jessie Burdick of Ashland, was a guest at the home of her son, E. F. Smith and family, for a number of days during the past week.

C. E. Calfee and the family were visiting for the day last Sunday with their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Sessens, they driving down for the day.

J. J. Mefford and the family were enjoying the county convention of the Christian church at Murray last Sunday, driving over in their car for the occasion.

August Johnson has just delivered one thousand bushels of wheat which he placed in bins at threshing time, the grain going to the Peters Elevator company.

F. D. Bill, of Haddon, Mo., has been visiting in Greenwood for the past few days and during the time was a guest at the home of John Schulling and family.

E. L. McDonald, in order to have things so they can be used, even when the ground is muddy, had a concrete driveway laid from the street to the garage at his home.

F. A. Sabors and wife were visiting at Lincoln last Wednesday, where they were making some purchases for the store here as well as looking for some furnishings for the home.

White & Bucknell must think there will be lots of game to hunt this Fall, for they have stocked a large number of shells and will be in shape to take care of all the hunters' requirements.

H. P. Coleman is having a combined granary and crib constructed on his place. Mr. Coleman evidently thinks there will be something to fill the cribs with or he would not have them built.

Glen Hand departed on Sunday for Gordon, where he is expecting to remain for the fall and will engage with his uncle in putting up hay on the ranch and enjoy the freedom of the great open spaces.

Thomas Welton was a visitor for a few days last week at Rock Island, Ill., where he was looking after some business matters for a short time, and will expect to make his home there in the near future.

A lucky streak caught Paul Renzanz and Dad Ellwood last Tuesday evening, and they were able to win at cribbage over all the west side of Greenwood and were willing to try any one who wanted to play.

A. H. Birdsall and wife, who have been visiting for some time at Gordon, where they drive in their car, returned home the first of this week after having enjoyed a very pleasant visit with friends and relatives.

John Schulling is at this time taking his vacation and is being relieved by a man from Ashland and another one from Havelock, it seemingly taking two men to do the work which Mr. Schulling has been doing himself.

L. V. Shepler and wife accompanied by their daughter, Marlam, and son Randall, were over to Fort Crook on last Sunday, where they picnicked and were joined by their son, Donald, who is at camp at Fort Crook during the present month.

Mrs. Mary O'Brien, of Civena, California, arrived in Greenwood and visited for a time with her daughter, Mrs. J. F. Fries, for a short time, and then proceeded to Rochester, Minn., where she went for a clinic and was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Joseph F. Fries.

W. A. Cameron and brother, who have been visiting for the past several weeks at the old home in Tennessee and Kentucky, where they spent a very pleasant time, returned home last week and report crops were looking fine and business was also good everywhere they went.

The Plattsmouth Journal is truly a Cass county paper. Interesting and up-to-the-minute news from all parts of the county appears in its columns, and the cost for the Semi-Weekly edition is no more than you pay for the cheapest country town weekly newspaper in the state—$2 a year.

W. E. Schulling and wife, of Kansas City, were visiting for a number of days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Schulling and drove over to visit with the brother and family, in their car. Mr. Schulling tells of finding the crops better with every mile as he proceeded northward.

W. A. Armstrong and two daughters were over to Murray last Sunday, where they were attending the county convention of the Christian Missionary Society of the Disciples of Christ, and were accompanied by the family of Walter Goings, all going together in the auto of Mr. Armstrong.

F. O. Baugg and wife, of Yutan, were visiting for a short time last Sunday at the home of O. F. Peters, and on their return to their home, were accompanied as far as Ashland by Mr. and Mrs. Peters, who visited them for a short time there, before they parted company, each going to their own home.

T. O. Pollard has been having a modern cow barn constructed and will have it comfortable for milking even when the weather is very cold. He will also have some milking machines installed and will in this way avoid the labor incident to milking a large number of cows each morning and evening.

Miss Gladys Lambert, who has been visiting at the home of her uncle, John Lambert, for the past two weeks, when Mr. Lambert and family and Uncle George Lambert departed for the west, where they are spending some two weeks, accompanied them and stopped at her home, as they are driving that way.

A. Hollister, Travers Cameron and Henry Greer were shelling and delivering corn to the Farmers Union elevator on Wednesday of last week, and we saw E. A. Landon under stress as there were fully a dozen trams waiting to unload at the same time. However, Emmitt was able to care for the business if it did not come in too rapidly.

Judge W. E. Hand, who has not been feeling very strong for some time, was intending to attend the county convention of the Christian church at Murray on last Sunday, but on account of his having been taken with a severe sick spell, he was compelled to forego the trip, but was feeling some better near the middle of the following week. He is feeling much improved at this time.

The excellent record which Walter Brockhage, who has been the feature player with the Greenwood team, has made this season, has attracted outside attention and he was contacted by the hat team at Gordon, to pitch for them during the remainder of the season. The young man, who has been working with Sophas Peterson in the blacksmith shop this summer, accepted the offer and quit his job here, leaving early last week for Gordon. Walter is a good hurler and we are certain will continue to bring in the baseball world, climbing up the ladder to a place in professional circles within the next few years.

The report sifted through, as such news is wont to travel, that fishing is good at Pelican Lake, Minn., and no sooner was the fact known here, than a number of our lovers of fishing and outdoor exercise, organized for an expedition to that place. Rex Peters and wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Carpenter and son Donald, Charley Clymer and family and Ivan Armstrong and family departed on last Monday for the north with all the necessary tackle and other equipment for a week or more of roughing it in the great outdoors of the Gopher state. The trip was made in the best of cars and they are expecting to get home the fore part of this week. It is hoped by their many friends that they will have an abundance of fish when they return and we are posing as one of their especial friends.

A. D. Findley and the family and Fred Ethrege, who have been in the White river, in southern Missouri, for the past month, where they all enjoyed the occasion to the utmost, returned home the latter part of last week. They spent the time at Branson and Hallister, which are but a few miles apart, and where they have relatives and friends.

This is the region where Harold Bell Wright laid the plot for a number of the books he wrote, and which were all leading sellers. "The Calling of Dan Matthews" and "The Recreation of Bryan Kent" are two of the books centered around this wild Ozark region.

Little Hazel Schulling, while skating on the floor at the home which had been waxed and was very sleek sustained a fall which fractured one of her arms, and which has been giving this little lady much grief. It would seem that this family has had its full quota of grief, considering that three of the children had typhoid fever last year.

Another Good Crowd Last Saturday when the Greenwood

band gave their third concert on the streets of Greenwood, there was the usual large and enthusiastic crowd present to greet them. A most enjoyable program was rendered. A number of the merchants have hung up prizes which go to the members of the band who show the most advancement. Better get after these, boys.

Will Work in Northwest Earl Stradley, Lyn Stradley, Marion Stradley, L. Gustafson and Grant Peters departed on last Monday for Scobie, Montana, where they will work with two threshing outfits. They were joined at Sidney by Ed Stradley, who was there awaiting them.

National Broadcast Hookup—Programs Not Ready Until October—Programs Cost $350.

WOW, Omaha, and WHO, Des Moines, will broadcast programs of the National Broadcasting company starting September 4, instead of October 1, as first announced, it was learned Thursday.

Actual hookup with the wires of the National Broadcasting company will not be completed until October 1, but programs will be received over A. T. & T. wires starting September 4.

Cost of each program from Chicago under this plan is about $350, due to the necessity of hooking up a line which must be closed to all other service during the time of the program.

First Program 3:30 to 4. The new line will be on the A. T. & T. poles but will be owned by N. B. C. WOW will then be a member of the Red, Blue and Midwestern chains.

First program will be from Crosley Radio corporation on September 4, 3:30 and 5 on alternate Sundays.

September 15 sees the first of a series of programs by the Philadelphia Battery company (Philoc). These will be between 7 and 8 or Fridays until September 23, when they will be between 8 and 9.

New Line Opens October 6. October 6 opens the first program on the new line, one from the Hoover company, between 7:30 and 8 on Thursdays. General Electric company comes here on the chain October 21 for one program between 9 and 10.

November 21 the first of 20 programs broadcast for the United States Playing Card company will be on the air from 9 to 9:50 on Tuesdays.

Programs by four other national advertisers, with whom negotiations have not been completed, probably will come later.

MISTAKE AS TO BATS

Boston Post: A dispatch from Freehold, N. J., describes the war on bats that the farmers of that town appear to be waging without the giving of quarter. In one barn the tale runs, about 154 of these curious creatures were annihilated by poles and shotguns and the end of the campaign is not yet.

Somebody ought to inform the residents of Freehold that the bat is one of the most useful allies the farmer possesses. He is a voracious eater of all sorts of "pesky bugs" and flies that raise havoc with the crops. He harms nothing else.

Such a good friend to man is he that many towns in the west and south have actually built "bat roosts" so called, for the encouragement and protection of the tireless scavengers of the air.

The bat is no beauty, but he is much better than he looks and he fully deserves public confidence.

PREPARE FOR HOG CHOLERA

Geneva—Whether there will be a serious hog cholera outbreak will year will depend largely on the action of the hog producers in guarding against the epidemic," Lee W. Thompson, county agent, declares. There seems to be certain periods when because of natural conditions, or other causes, hog cholera may be expected to be worse than at other times, he says. Such a condition prevailed during the latter part of 1926, and everything seems to indicate that such a condition will prevail throughout 1927, even to a worse degree than it did last year. "Hog cholera vaccination, he adds, is cheap, is safe and is effective, and should be used. Hog cholera has not been especially bad in this county so far this year but apparently there has been a little more than normal, so precautionary actions should be taken."

Many Women Suffer Injury in Modern Industry

Government Gathers Figures as to the Extent of Injuries in Several States in Factories.

The difficult problem of readjustment for women permanently disabled in industry is stressed by the Women's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor in a report just published under the title "Industrial Accidents to Women in New Jersey, Ohio and Wisconsin." Personal interviews by representatives of the bureau with 385 of the 536 women recorded as permanently injured during a single year in industrial plants in these three states showed that many of the women found it difficult or impossible to regain their pre-accident status.

In fact, one-tenth of these women were disabled for all available work and 40 per cent were unable to return to the work they had formerly done. Of those who returned to work more than one-fourth had not any time since the accident earned as much as they earned before. Although four-fifths of those who returned to work went back to their former employers, nearly a fifth were laid off soon or had to quit on account of their disabilities. Nearly half of the women interviewed were responsible for the support of others in addition to themselves.

More than one-half of the permanent injuries involved one finger, dismemberment or loss of use resulting. That the greater number of injuries involved the upper extremities is not surprising, the report says, since the arm, the hand, and the fingers are in constant use, and the fingers especially are in close proximity to the work.

Three thousand two hundred and eighty-five compensable accidents to working women, which according to the records of the compensation board in the three states had occurred from July 1919, to June 1920, were studied by the Women's Bureau. More than three-fourths were found to have occurred in the manufacturing industries, well over one-half of these being due to machinery. The next most serious causes of injury were falls of persons and the handling of heavy, sharp, or rough objects. In the metal-goods industry, where occurred the greatest number of accidents per 1,000 women employed, machinery was responsible for nearly three-fourths of the accidents, and the handling of objects for one-eighth. Ranking next to metal goods in regard to frequency of accidents is the iron and steel industry, followed by food products. As regards the severity of accidents, judged by the time lost, metal-goods manufacturing was followed by the iron and steel industry.

A little over 2 per cent of the accidents occurred to women in the transportation group, most of them to telephone employees. The occupations grouped as clerical and professional accounted for about 15 per cent of the total number of injured women, and trade for about 5 per cent. Nearly one-half of the accidents in these two groups were due to falls.

The records show that 15 women were fatally hurt during the period, and that no women were totally disabled for life. Only 93 women were compensated for occupational diseases and 11 for hernia, the acceptance of which as a compensable injury has been open to a good deal of costly dispute, the point at issue being as to whether the origin of the hernia is congenital or industrial.

The length of time required to recover as fully as possible from the effect of injury—the healing period—varied, the report shows, from less than two weeks to more than a year. Falls were responsible for nearly half of the cases requiring a healing period of fifty-two weeks and over. This in connection with the fact that falls caused less than 10 per cent of all permanent injuries indicates that, in spite of their relative infrequency as a cause they are to be viewed with seriousness when they do occur.

In a correlation of age with healing period and extent of disability a very definite curve in favor of the young person is shown, the average healing period for the woman under 40 being two and under four weeks, which for the woman who is 40 or more it is four and under six weeks.

For illustrative purposes the report cites in detail case after case of injured women, the facts secured not only from the records of the compensation boards in the three states, but from personal interviews with the women themselves. Three sections of the report are given over to an analysis of work accidents to women from the points of view of legislation in the state under consideration, administration, and prevention. Another section presents some of the interviews with the permanently disabled women, indicating in a general way the need for legislative and administrative changes and for the promotion of preventive work in connection with accidents to women.

"Hazard is so inherent a part of industry, as at present constituted," the report states, "that various occupations have each a predictable risk, and the cost to the injured employee of the accidents which occur—the wage loss, medical cost, and expense of restoration of earning capacity—is as logically a direct expense of production as is spoiled material or damaged equipment. Furthermore, the supremely important subject of accident prevention should receive unremitting attention. Thorough study of industrial hazard and scientific analysis of causes of accident mean much in a reduction of casualties incurred by men and women while engaged in gainful pursuits."

Radcliffe of Bloomington, Pa., proposed to his congregation that he receive such salary as is contributed in envelopes provided for that purpose, without names of givers. ## Yeggs Kidnap Sheriff; Town Marshall Shot

Pair Surprised While Attempting Bank Robbery at Taylor, Nebraska.

Taylor, Neb., Aug. 17.—Sheriff William Helmkamp was kidnaped by two robbers after they had been interrupted in an attempt to rob the Bank of Taylor early this morning. They carried him several miles into the country before releasing him.

Before fleeing with the sheriff a prisoner in their car, one of the robbers shot the town marshal, Herb Blittney, in the leg.

The marshal had been aroused by the robbers, working in the bank. He called the sheriff and together they set out to capture the pair. As they passed some trees, opposite the bank, they were held up at point of guns by the robbers, hidden in the darkness. Ordered to put up their hands, the sheriff complied, but the marshal refused and was shot. The marshal had tried to shoot, but his pistol only snapped.

The robbers then seized the sheriff, put him in their car and sped out of town. After taking a pistol from the sheriff, one of the men took out the cartridges, returned them to the officer, and when about five miles out of town, put him out of the car, and ordered him to go.
