But, says Will, "Give me Cass county to live in. I was glad that I went to see the country and liked the trip fine, but would not give much to take it the second time."

Just a Good Newspaper

The Journal is not sensational; it does not lay claim to being witty. But there is one thing it does boast of and that is being a good "news" paper. If you read it in the Journal, you can depend on it that it actually did happen and in the same manner as chronicled. With weekly news departments representing seven of the five towns in Cass county (Nehawka included), the official county board proceedings, court house records and all important news, it is a paper well worth reading. Withal, the subscription price is no greater than you pay for any country weekly in the state with its present print and limited amount of local and county seat news. And the best part of it all is it reaches its readers twice each week, instead of once. If you want a good newspaper hand your subscription to the field representative or mail it direct to the office, and you will be assured of fifty-two weeks of reliable reading.

New Wheat Pool Is Being Formed

Planned to Give Growers Control of Elevators—Experts to Handle the Actual Selling.

A new 50 per cent wheat pool has been announced for Nebraska by J. W. Brinton, organization director. The decision to complete the organization of a new pool was made at a recent meeting of its board of directors. Plans were started last year under the Nebraska co-operative act. Definite action was not taken until arrangements had been made to finance such a campaign. Independent of the pool and its present wheat marketing activities, Mr. Brinton says, and after assurance had been received from the United States department of agriculture that it would support the movement.

The new pool, to be known as the Nebraska Wheat Growers Association Non-Stock Co-operative, will have no connection with the old wheat pool of the state, organized in 1922 at Trenton, contracts in which expire this year. The new contracts call for 50 per cent of the wheat acreage of the state before they are effective. They will contain a 50 per cent clause and a withdrawal privilege in case the 50 per cent acreage is not secured. July 1, 1929, has been set as the time limit for securing the 50 per cent. This will be based upon the wheat acreage of Nebraska as given in the annual report of the department of agriculture. If the required acreage is secured by July 1, 1928, the contracts will become effective. If the acreage is not secured by next July the time will be automatically extended in the contracts to July 1, 1929.

If the full 50 per cent is not secured by the first of next July the grower may pool his wheat next year. However, if he wishes to wait until the full 50 per cent has been secured he may notify the association of his intention to do so between June 20 and July 1, 1928, or he may withdraw between the dates of June 20 and July, 1929, if the required acreage has not been secured in the two year period. Upon signing the contract the wheat grower will pay $10 and the work will be carried on with these funds without placing a burden on the present pool members or the old pool organization.

The organization will be financed by the federal intermediate credit banks. About 65 per cent of the market price will be furnished the grower at the time of delivery. A second payment will be made in December, a third in April and final settlement July 1.

In localities where no farmers' elevator exist, elevators will be leased, purchased or built. This will automatically federate all farmers' elevators in one big center, as has been done in Canada and give the wheat growers control over the wheat in the terminals and at the same time put shipping service at their own control. The central selling agency, already established, has two terminal elevators, at Leavenworth, Kan., and Kansas City.

Mr. Brinton says, the department of agriculture has pledged its support to a bill to furnish additional financing facilities so that members may be able to secure as high as 90 per cent of the market price of wheat at the time of delivery and to a co-operative marketing program which carries an appropriation of $300,000,000 to be loaned to contract co-operative marketing associations for the establishment of terminal and local facilities, as well as funds to handle surplus wheat outside the pool.

Here are the members of Father Flanagan's Boys' Home Band, Omaha, Neb., with President Coolidge in front of the high school in Rapid City, South Dakota, which serves as the executive offices of the President during his summer stay in the Black Hills. The homeless boys visited the President's office this week and played for him.

The President was very much interested in Father Flanagan's Boys' Home. He discussed the Home with Father Flanagan and asked many questions. He was told that the Home is non-sectarian, containing boys of all religions, races and colors. The Home receives nothing from city, church or state.

"We were so excited when we met the President that we could hardly stand still to take the picture," said Father Flanagan. "The President asked little Willie Harris, our little colored drummer, if he could make the drum sticks fly, and little Willie could hardly mutter that he surely could." Father Flanagan's Boys are on their annual tour and will return the first week in September, when the boys will start school again at the Home.

None of the boys in the above picture could play an instrument before they became wards at Father Flanagan's Home. They were all trained at the Home. Nine nationalities are represented in the above picture of twenty-two homeless boys.

Good Prices Are Expected for the Apple Crop

Yield Is Not Up to Normal but the Fruit Is Larger—Heavy Grape Harvest.

Shubert, Neb., Aug. 26.—With orchard acreage and number of bearing trees steadily increasing each year, Shubert, the chief apple shipping point in the state, will send out about one hundred carloads this season. It is estimated. Harvesting of apples will not start until about the middle of September, however, but the yield is expected to be from 60 to 70 per cent of normal. Because of this light crop the size is expected to be unusually good and the price correspondingly higher.

The grape harvest is the heaviest ever known in this section. Production was light last year, permitting plants to make a good cane growth with favorable weather conditions this year. Brownville will ship about 30 carloads of grapes during the week.

The peach crop, although small in acreage, is the best in many years. From 1914 to 1924 there was not a peach season, with the result that many trees were allowed to die. This year R. A. Hardwick of Brownville expects a yield of five hundred bushels from his orchard planted about 10 years ago.

Pears, commercially grown near Brownville, Peru and Nemaha, are a promising crop this year. In connection with the grape crop it is interesting to note that a vine planted 57 years ago by Governor Furness on his farm west of Brownville is still bearing, having a heavy crop this year, indicating southeast Nebraska is a consistently good climate for grape production.

FACTS ABOUT THE OIL INDUSTRY

The oil industry today represents a total of $11,000,000,000 invested capital. It furnishes employment to about 1,500,000 people.

It is owned by 1,500,000 stockholders, bond holders and royalty owners. Its products furnish to American railroads more than one-sixth of all the tonnage of manufactured articles which they transport.

Of the $90,000,000 horsepower of mechanical power used in our country, more than half is produced from petroleum.

More than 70 per cent of the entire petroleum industry of the world is in the United States.

In addition to furnishing fuel to over 24,000,000 vehicles, this industry makes a larger contribution to the nation's annual export of manufactured products than any other single industry, thereby contributing more than any other group of manufactures to maintain the country's trade balance.

An industry which performs such services, which thus distributes to the public the benefits of large production, high efficiency and improved methods and which occupies so large a place in the country's economy, is entitled to be understood by the public and to receive fair treatment at a time when it faces a peculiarly difficult complexity of internal problems.

World Famous Prisoners Pay Death Penalty

Sacco and Vanzetti, Convicted of Murder Die in the Electric Chair in Massachusetts

With the throwing of a switch in the Charleston prison at the outskirts of Boston last night at midnight, terminated a case that has for seven years stirred the radical elements of all nations and from a mere murder trial held at Boston it has grown to the aspect of an international case and demonstration against the execution of the two men have waged for the past few years over all countries. In the last weeks when the fatal hour set for execution drew near, every effort to secure delay or reprieve for the condemned men was made.

The crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti paid the extreme penalty was that of the murder of a paymaster and his guard at Braintree seven years ago.

The execution of Sacco and Vanzetti was preceded by that of Celestino Madeiros, also convicted of murder.

Both Sacco and Vanzetti made brief speeches in the death chamber before they took their seats in the chair, Vanzetti protesting his innocence to the last.

Sacco, pale but steady, shouted in Italian: "Long live anarchy," as he sat down in the chair.

Then, in broken English, he went on: "Farewell, my wife and child, and all my friends." The straps were being adjusted as he said his last words: "Good evening gentlemen! Farewell, mother!"

Vanzetti entered the death chamber the calmest of all the three men. Shaking hands with two of the guards as he came through the door of the execution chamber, he walked unassisted to the chair and seated himself.

Vanzetti Affirms Innocence. As the guards began the hasty adjustment of straps to his head and body he began a speech. In the broken English that characterized his dramatic plea for "justice" when sentence was passed on him in Dedham on April 9, he declared:

"I wish to tell you I am innocent, and never connected with any crime, but sometime some sin. I thank you for everything you have done for me. I am innocent of all crime, not only of this one, but all, I am an innocent man."

Then just as the guards slipped the straps and head cap in place, cutting off further speech, he shouted: "I wish to forgive some people for what they are now doing to me."

Madeiros Is Stolid. A moment after the official witnesses entered the death chamber, Madeiros was led in between two guards. The youth, who had won five respites because of his confession that a gang which he was connected with committed the South Braintree murders, was stolid and expressionless. His eyes wandered about the little group of witnesses as he was strapped to the chair, but he said nothing.

Madeiros came in at 12:02:47. At 12:03:37 the shock was applied. He was pronounced dead at 12:09:35.

Then came Sacco. Apart from the prison pallor the little shoe-maker who has become an international figure showed no sign of his long hunger strike. He walked erect between the guards, his eyes flashing brightly about the group in the death chamber as he came. He sat down in the chair, and as the guards began to attach the straps he shouted in a voice that rang strangely through the little white room: "Viva l'anarchia." (Long live anarchy.)

"Farewell, Mother!"

Just as the headstraps were being applied came Sacco's last remark. It was: "Farewell, Mother!"

Hardly had Sacco's body been placed beside that of Madeiros behind a screen at the rear of the chamber than the guards appeared again in the doorway leading in from the death cells. This time Vanzetti was in their charge.

He showed no sign of nervousness or hesitation. As he entered the chamber at the rear and to the left of the chair, he shook hands with several of the guards. Seated in the chair, he launched at once into a brief speech.

"I wish to tell you," he said, "that I am innocent and never committed any crime but sometime some sin. I thank you Mr. Warden, for all you have done for me. I am an innocent man."

Vanzetti paused while the guards continued their grim task of attaching the straps and applying the electrodes to his left leg. Then, just before his eyes were covered he continued: "I wish to forgive some people for what they now are doing here."

Then the current was applied.

BE CAREFUL

With accidents increasing by the thousands every year, the subject of their prevention is engaging the earnest attention of individuals, employers, corporations, the press, motor clubs, educational associations, state and national organizations.

Falls cause more deaths than any other form of accident according to the National Safety Council which is a clearing house of information relating to prevention of accident, with headquarters in Chicago.

Automobile fatalities in the United States approximate 25,000 annually, it being estimated that almost 7,000 children alone were killed by automobiles last year in this country.

In their own homes, thousands of people also lose their lives each year through accidents. Last year the number of such deaths reached 18,000, with falls leading.

A majority of all accidents of every description would be prevented if people would exercise proper care and caution.

SUICIDE ACCUSES MAN OF RUINING HIS HOME

Beatrice, Neb., Aug. 20.—Earl Beck, 41, Beatrice, did not kill himself yesterday because he was out of work, as stated by his wife, it was testified at the inquest this morning. Inside his coat was discovered a note in which he accused another man of breaking up his home. The coroner's jury returned a suicide verdict. Beck was supposed to have shot himself through the head at his home, dying two hours later in a hospital.

A hospital nurse testified that she had found the note in Beck's coat pocket.

The note follows: "If anyone should be interested as to why I did this, ask Lee Wood, Beatrice. He knows more about it than anyone. He ruined my home." Beck was employed by the Soudeweger nurseries. Wood is a foundry employe of the Dempster Mill Manufacturing company.
