HAS AUTO ACCIDENT

From Friday's Daily—
Last evening while W. E. Rosencrans was near the last lap of his automobile trip from San Antonio, Texas, to this city, he was called upon to have his auto quite badly smashed up by a truck belonging to a "road hog," a mile south of Union.

on the right side of the road as far as possible. The cattle pen built on the truck struck the car of Mr. Rosencrans and tore off the running board on the left side and completely swung the car around in the road, but the driver of the truck made no effort to stop or see what damage had been done but continued on south. Mr. Rosencrans was not injured in the accident but a few inches more and the truck would have done a great deal more damage to the car and also would have injured Mr. Rosencrans severely.

'Wild Bill' No Coward Sister-in-Law Asserts

Mrs. Horace Hickok Defends Plainsman in Letter From Troy Grove, Illinois.

"None of the Hickoks knew the meaning of the word 'coward,'" avers Mrs. Horace Hickok, sister-in-law of "Wild Bill" Hickok, defending the family name from charges of cowardice, raised in a recent article published by the Nebraska Historical society.

Mrs. Hickok, 80 years old, lives at Troy Grove, Ill. To Mrs. Hickok, "Wild Bill" was known as James. "I was just a little girl when James left his home for the west," the aged woman writes to The World-Herald. "I distinctly remember the evening before he left, he came to my sister's, and I was there and he bid us all good-by. I never saw him again until after I was married to his brother. He came home to see his mother.

"Why did the McCandlesses wait so long until all the near relatives were dead before they denied the charge, waited until James was dead, and his three brothers and two sisters, then start up this denial. If any of them was alive, I believe there would be something doing."

"Hickoks Not Cowards." "His brother was a wagon master during the war of the rebellion. He saw James while he was out west, as was there after the war. If James had been such a liar and cut-throat as they make him out now, it is a wonder he would not have told us about it when he came home, as he was a very peaceable, quiet man.

"As for Jim shooting unarmed men, it is the first I ever heard that intimated as I know the Hickoks were not cowards. I lived with my husband, Horace Hickok, nearly 50 years, was with his people quite a good deal, never saw anything cowardly about any of them. None of them knew the meaning of the word 'coward.'"

Mrs. Hickok's daughter, Ethel, also adds this in defense of her uncle: "I have heard my father say that 'Uncle James never picked a quarrel, nor started a fight, but he never gave up when he once got started. His boyhood friends always spoke of his sense of fair play."

Monument to 'Wild Bill' "They have waited a long time to 'tell the truth' and incidentally properly establish the good name of the McCandless family."

Mrs. Hickok enclosed copy of an editorial from the Ottawa (Ill.) Daily Republican-Times which reads in part:

"Since childhood we have looked upon 'Wild Bill' Hickok as a hero of the plains and a marksman extraordinary. In Illinois, we are so firm in our belief of the story of 'Wild Bill' killing 11 desperadoes that we are going to erect a monument to his memory in Troy Grove, his birthplace, and pay for it out of state funds. We resent the attempt of any writer in this late period to slander the memory of 'Wild Bill.'"—World-Herald.

ENJOY FISHING SEASON

From Thursday's Daily—
While at the court house the Journal reporter has noticed that in the last few days Judge James T. Begley, the very able judge of the second district, has not been so closely engrossed in the study of the heavy and ponderous law books as is his usual habit and in fact we have noticed that in place of the Corpus Juris that usually has the place of honor on the desk of the judge there have been many pamphlets on the fish and its habits as well as "Fishes I Have Met," by Andy Gump, and other illuminating works on the art of angling. A short time later it was noticed that Bob Walling, abstractor, was also apparently more interested in the great outdoors than in the task of finding out why the east half of lot ten, etc., was not owned by the right party, or the heir of John Doe had some title to the property.

Now the secret is out, the Judge and Bob are conducting a series of attacks on the cat, carp and sardines that infest the Platte river and have been out each evening trying their luck in landing the fish and have a very good haul of nice fish to their credit as the result of their angling expertness. The friends of these two gentlemen who are lovers of a good mess of fish need have no timidity in placing their orders as either Judge Begley or Bob will be able to supply all the fish they may desire.

Mary Jane Reid was born at Millbrook, Ont., Canada, December, 1863, and departed this life August 21, 1927, at Denver, Colo., at the age of 63 years and 8 months.

She came to Nebraska in 1886 and was united in marriage to Alex Mitchell on March 9, 1889, near Weeping Water, Neb., and Mrs. Ben Christensen of Denver, Colo. Three grandchildren, two sisters—Mrs. John Campbell of South Bend, Neb., and Mrs. Wm. Finmore of Millbrook, Ont., Canada, and three brothers—John, James and Samuel Reid, also of Millbrook, Ont., Canada, and a goodly number of other friends.

Forever near us, though unseen
The dear, immortal spirits tread
Is life! There is no dead.

Services were held at the home two miles south and three miles west of Weeping Water, Thursday, Rev. Morley, Methodist minister, officiating. Songs were rendered by Mrs. Mabel Sloan, Mrs. Ethel Ratnour, Mrs. Roy Haslam accompanying.

Interment was made at the Oakwood cemetery, W. L. Hobson, funeral director—Weeping Water Republican.

CHURCH IS BEAUTIFUL

From Thursday's Daily—
The interior of the St. John the Baptist Catholic church in this city has in the last few weeks been given a thorough renovation and cleaning and the church building beautified by being re-decorated and placed in the best of condition.

The ceiling of the church has been finished in tones of light cream while the walls of the building have received a darker shade of the cream tints that make a very light and beautiful finish to the interior of the building.

The work has been carried out by A. F. Knodlesk, one of the artistic decorators of the city and whose skill with the brush has made the church interior one of the greatest beauty and the blending of tints makes a very tasteful and pleasing sight to the eye.

The result of the re-decorating program makes the St. John church one of the handsomest in the city.

H. F. GOOS SICK

H. F. Goos, one of the popular business men of the city is confined to his home by a very severe cold and general sickness that has necessitated his giving up his activities at the Fetzer Shoe Co. store and remaining at home where he is under the care of a physician. Mr. Goos has not been feeling to the best of late and his condition has become such that he has been compelled to remain at home.

LEAVE FOR TOUR OF EASTERN STATES

Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Tucker left here bright and early this morning for a three to four weeks auto trip through the eastern states. They expect to spend a week in Chicago where they will attend Market Week and do considerable buying for the Sheldon store. From there they will go to Buffalo, New York, through the New England states and south to Richmond, Virginia, and to Wayside, Mississippi, where they will visit Mrs. Tucker's sister, ex-Governor Geo. L. Sheldon and family and thence home. Mrs. Tucker has a large number of relatives in the New England states and besides enjoying a visit with the principal historic places along their route.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker were accompanied on their trip by H. M. Pollard, Mr. Pollard will enjoy a fine visit with relatives and friends in his old home in Plymouth, Vermont, and where he will attend to business. It is his first visit to his boyhood home in years and he will no doubt derive much enjoyment and pleasure from the trip. Plymouth is the home of President Coolidge and in their boyhood days Mr. Pollard and the president went to school together and were playmates, living neighbors to each other.—Nehawka Enterprise.

PROMINENT CRAWFORD FARMER A VISITOR HERE

Ferdinand Wendt, a prominent farmer and cattle man of Crawford, dropped in one day last week for an evening visit with his brother, William Wendt and family. Mr. Wendt had brought a couple of cars of cattle down to the Omaha markets.

He reported that about three weeks ago they suffered a severe hailstorm in their country in which he lost all wheat crop on two farms. On account of the wet weather, the small grain was not harvested and that also was a total loss. The storm covered an area 8 miles wide and 65 miles long. This would be very discouraging to the farmers of that vicinity and would mean a tremendous loss, both to the farmers and to everyone in the community. Mr. Wendt reported his family all well.—Louisville Courier.
