The Mud Track Otherwise Louisville Road

Editor of the Louisville Courier Has Some Pertinent Statements as to the Road Question.

The road situation between Louisville and the county seat is a deplorable one indeed. The trouble seems to be that there is no immediate prospect of better conditions. It is most regrettable to feel that another winter is approaching and no provisions made for placing this road in passable condition when the weather is bad.

The people on the north side of the county, who have no government or state highway leading east and west, have asked that this surplus fund be used to provide a road for them to get to the county seat, that they may pay their taxes and buy and sell licenses to build more roads in other parts of the great county of Cass.

Louisville feels that it is within its rights when it asks for better roads to connect with its own hard-surfaced roads. It is the only precinct in the county that has shown enterprise to vote bonds and construct its own roads. We are pleased when the people of the other precincts of the county drive over our roads, for we know that they are likewise pleased to do so. But why not connect up with us and make it possible to reach other towns during muddy weather?

On Tuesday of last week an enthusiastic meeting was held in the county commissioners' rooms with the object in view of devising some plan whereby the Plattsmouth-Louisville road might be put in passable condition all the year around. Enthusiasm is a good thing and often works wonders, but in this case it would seem that it has utterly failed. The Courier has been enthusiastic for a better road to the county seat for a great many years and it regrets to acknowledge defeat. In fact, it refuses now to lie down on the project and believes that the time is not far distant when the demand will be so great that some means will be provided for this much needed improvement.

Someone has said that Cass county has more than its quota of government aid highways. This may be true, but the fact that they but skirt the border of the county on the east, west and south is of little benefit to the average tax payer of the county. The gasoline tax is used to build and maintain these highways. Commissioner Harris tells the Courier that $150,000 has been expended on about nine miles of road between Union and Elmwood this summer.

HAS PAINFUL ACCIDENT

From Saturday's Daily—
Herbert Johnson, son of Mayor and Mrs. C. A. Johnson, had a very painful accident yesterday afternoon that has occasioned the young man some pain and annoyance for several hours. Herbert had his jaw home dislocated while he was talking with the members of the family at home and the dislocation proved so severe that it was necessary to give the patient ether while the jaw was placed back in place. Just after the jaw had been set Herbert started to say something to the doctor and the jaw home again snapped out of place and it was necessary to have the operation performed over again.
