Condition of the Farmers is Quite Serious

Economize and Social Problems Must Be Solved if Agriculture Is to Prosper

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 17.—"Seventy per cent of the population of this country, the non-farming portion, now enjoy about 92 per cent of the national income, while the 30 per cent, who are farmers does not greatly enjoy the less than 8 per cent, which it receives," said A. R. Mann, dean of the New York State college of agriculture, speaking before the state federation of home bureaus.

"The inequities in taxation and in other policies have worked great hardships to farmers; the disproportionate share of taxation borne by real estate, and hence by farmers, is what hurts. Farmers represent the greatest body of competitors in America today, to their own constant loss. They must resort to the aggressive and co-operative action, which will reduce this serious competition if they are to increase income.

How Do They Spend?

"Whether the standard of living of farmers improves, depends on the way they use increased income," he stated. "If they are to have a better living, they cannot use increased incomes to purchase more land, to produce more crops and livestock, to make increased competition which will lower prices, and thus lower income and soon turn lower the standard of living.

Three Problems

"With this property, with the city in a dominant position, with industry rather than agriculture in the saddle, and with agriculture depressed in parts of our country, three problems come to the front," he said.

"First. How can farmers be economically free and efficient, compete successfully with industry and commerce for capital, labor and income and for the desired standard of living?"

"Second. Can the quality of our farmers be kept on a par with the American stock in cities, where they are able to command enormous resources for education and all social utilities and benefits? These advantages of the cities draw good blood from the country.

"Third. We face the issue whether material civilization is running away with us. How can character-building for the individual and for society be carried forward in a world dominated by vast and powerful city industrial developments?"

W. C. T. U. MEETING

From Wednesday's Daily—
Yesterday afternoon the ladies of the W. C. T. U. were most delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. W. L. Propst on Chicago avenue and the occasion was one of the greatest pleasure to the large number of ladies in attendance at the meeting.

The program of the day was on "Thanksgiving" and this was reflected in the very fine program that was arranged being featured by the greatest pleasure to the large number of ladies in attendance at the meeting.

"During the course of the afternoon several poems and readings appropriate to the Thanksgiving day were given. Mrs. John George Weiver of Mynard, who told the Thanksgiving idea from the first observance by the Pilgrims down to the present day.

KLEIN GIVES HIS VERSION

New York, Nov. 21—Jacob Henry Klein, Jr. former commander of the United States navy dirigibles, has revealed that the mysterious woman referred to by his wife in her separation suit is none other than her sister, Mrs. Klein who was awarded $200 monthly alimony Saturday pending trial of her suit, charged that Klein was "financially obligated" to live with another woman whom she did not name, for three years. Entering a Fifth avenue apartment, unannounced, she said, she found her husband with this woman and the pair held her prisoner over night.

Klein's version is that he had taken the apartment with his wife's sister, while his wife was in Europe, to help pay the rental. Mrs. Klein came on a pleasant social call after her return, he continued and voluntarily remained over night. He produced a telegram from her dated next date in which she sent love and reported her safe arrival at Lakohurst, N. J.

Total Reduction in Taxes Almost $236,000,000

Committee Experts to Place Its Program in Bill Form at Once—Auto Tax Cut in Half.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Disposing in rapid order of all major issues entering into the question of tax reduction, the house ways and means committee today approved a program calling for a total in revenue rates of $235,820,000.

The program is expected to be whipped into bill form immediately, so that reading of the measure may be started before Saturday for possible changes in its provisions.

At the outset of its session today, the committee, by a vote of 22 to 1, approved reduction of the tax rate on corporation incomes from 13 1/2 per cent, against the 12 per cent suggested by Secretary Mellon. The committee estimated the loss in revenue by this reduction at 166 million dollars.

Cut Auto Tax.

On another vote, 18 to 5, the sales tax on automobiles was sliced from 3 to 1 1/2 per cent. The estimated loss in revenue is 33 million dollars.

The committee voted, 15 to 3, to increase from 75 cents to $1 the exemption on admission tickets. The loss to the treasury is estimated at eight million dollars. The committee voted, 13 to 8, to increase from 10 to 25 per cent the tax on $5 or higher priced tickets to boxing matches, estimating the increase at 500 thousand dollars.

Another note, cut in half the tax on club dues. A loss of five million dollars is expected.

The tax on stock transfers was cut from two cents to one cent on each hundred dollars of value. The one-cent tax on the sale of produce on exchange was repealed, and the tax on wines was restored to its pre-war level.

Major Issues Met.

While the committee was taking this action as the capital, it was disclosed at the White house that President Coolidge believed the committee had gone too high yesterday in setting its maximum at 250 million dollars. This announcement, however, was made before the committee announced its total would not exceed 236 million dollars.

With its work today the committee cleared its slate of all major issues, as yesterday it rejected treasury recommendations for repeal of the Federal inheritance tax and a downward revision of the rates on the comes falling within the intermediate brackets.—World-Herald.

TRUTH, ITS UNEQUALLED STRENGTH

The press of America is not invulnerable to bias; but it is overwhelmingly honest in its intent and comment. There was a Jude among the Apostles. Inevitably, there was an Arnold in the Revolution; there was a Nero in Imperial Rome; there have been traitors masquerading as editors, just as there have been fraudulent bankers and stockholders and railroaders and men from every rank of life. But generally speaking, what one reads is usually more true than what one hears.

The press is inherently truthful; that is its unfailing strength.
