It is gratifying to note that the antiprohibition leaders who met at a dinner in the Union League Club, New York, to plan a campaign against prohibition in next year's election are thinking along right lines. DECEMBER, 1875: DECEMBER, 1927

"Resolved, That in the opinion of this House the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents of the United States, in retiring from the presidential office after their second term, has become, by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

This resolution was offered in the National House of Representatives in December, 1875, to meet just such a threat of a violation of the custom as exists today. It was aimed at no ordinary man, but at Gen. Grant, who had led the Union armies to victory, City Faces New and whose popularity rested upon high achievements in the field.
