Business called John Wood to Elmwood Wednesday afternoon, he driving over in his car for the occasion. George Thompson was spending his vacation in Alvo and was a guest at the home of J. E. Parsell while there.

A large number of people at Alvo and vicinity were over to Waverly on last Thursday to attend the sale of Charles Meyers which was held there.

Many of the people of Alvo accompanied the funeral cortege of the late Mrs. M. O. Weed to Greenwood, where the remains were laid to rest beside those of her husband.

Many of the people of Alvo and vicinity were at Bennett on last Wednesday, where they were in attendance at the sale of Glen Foreman who has been living there for the past year.

Mesdames A. B. Stromer and Arthur Dinges were visiting with friends as well as looking after some Christmas shopping in Lincoln on last Monday, they driving over to the big town in their car.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Rutledge were spending last Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dinges, they all having visited for the day before at the home of George Bray, of Syracuse, the parents of Mesdames Dinges and Rutledge.

On Monday of last week, John E. Skinner had a load of hogs to Omaha for J. M. Manners and on Tuesday a load of the same for J. H. Weychal, and on Wednesday a load for S. C. Boyles, which looks like keeping this gentleman busy.

Mesdames Frank Leonard, of Portland, Oregon, and Wayne Dwin, of Lincoln, were guests in Alvo, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Mullen, during the past week, the ladies both being cousins of Mrs. Mullen. A most enjoyable time was had at the Mullen home.

A party of some half dozen of the young people of Alvo and vicinity were over near Ashland last Tuesday evening, where they attended and greatly enjoyed a social dance. Those in the party included Ralph Snavely, Carl Rosenow, Miss Pauline Snavely, Kenneth Bailey and Eveline Snavely.

AUTO HITS TRAIN, MAN IS KILLED

Oxford, Neb., Dec. 23.—Max Reynolds, about 21, believed to have lived near Oxford, was killed Wednesday at a crossing three and one-half miles west of here, when a car he was driving smashed into a Burlington engine en route to McCook.

E. H. Walters, engineer, and G. D. Nicholson, fireman of the engine, which was running without cars, said they saw the car, coming at a high rate of speed, and that Reynolds evidently saw the engine too late to stop.

Now word comes the government may try to collect an income tax from municipalities that have made a profit out of anything. It will have the time of its life in doing so. Where are we getting at, anyhow, and what next?

BETHLEHEM BABE

In the little town of Bethlehem, Nineteen hundred years ago, Came the greatest gift to mortal man A loving Father could bestow.

Twins given to us from Heaven above, The gift of a Savior for all mankind; Priceless treasure—unlimited love— For we of earth, by sin made blind.

He came as a Babe—and in a manger lay, No room at the inn—He was crowded out; Just a shelter for stock, on a bed of hay, The humblest of places without a doubt.

Foretold by prophecy, these things would be— A child would be born, so humble and meek, The Babe in swaddling clothes—they'd see, By the Wise men and shepherds, whom the angle told seek.

He came to us, the humbles of earth— Our King of Kings, our Savior and Lord, The choice for eternity came by His birth, To accept Him and serve Him in sweet accord.

God gave His best and choicest that day, To the attorney for yours and my sin; He gives of His best, to us all the way, By trusting and serving He'll help us win.

A Home in Heaven so bright and fair, So far beyond our mortal dreams, Our Savior and Loved Ones are waiting there; By their trust in Jesus, how wonderful it seems.

But Friends, we know on the day of His birth, No room was found for him at the inn— And so many today, with pleasure and mirth, Do not have room in their hearts for Him.

My Brother and Sister, wherever you are, He's seeking and knocking to enter your life, But you hold the key and must lift the bar, Receive Him and serve Him—thru earth's mortal strife.

So little we have we can give, as our own, To a Savior Divine and a Father of love— Our lives in service—none other is known, For the many blessings from Heaven above.

O precious Babe of the long ago, My Jesus, my Savior, you are today— Come in, I pray, teach me to know Thy will for me, as you lead the way.

O listen! Listen to the angels sing— Glory to God in the highest be Peace on earth, good will shall ring, Jesus the Savior, was born for me. R. G. KISER.

BISHOPS PLAN NEW MOVE

London, Dec. 22.—The house of bishops has resolved to reintroduce the prayer book measure in the church assembly as soon as possible. The archbishops of Canterbury and York made this announcement tonight.

As reintroduced, the measure which recently was defeated in the house of commons, will incorporate "such changes and such changes only as may tend to remove misapprehensions and make clearer and more explicit its intentions and limitations."

In a statement disclosing the results of a two days' conference at Lambeth, the prelates expressed the belief that the decision of the house of commons was influenced by "certain avoidable misunderstandings" and asserted that the bishops, therefore, were not willing to accept it as final.

Home Shortage in England Still a Big Problem

Report Shows Six Hundred Thousand New Houses Needed in Country

London, Dec. 17.—That an acute housing shortage seriously detrimental to the nation's health and well-being still exists in England is revealed by a report prepared by the national housing and town planning council. According to this report, there is an immediate and urgent need for at least 600,000 new houses.

The report follows official government's assurance that the housing shortage has been surmounted, and that more and more houses are being built.

Terrible instances of overcrowding and details of vile slum areas are described by the council's medical officers, and an appeal is made that the whole situation be immediately reviewed by the minister of health with a view to alleviating the plight of thousands of persons living in slum districts.

Conditions Reported

From Coventry there is reported a case of a bedroom being occupied by a man, his wife, and their four sons and two daughters. One house, consisting of a living room and a bedroom, holds twelve people. The bedroom is divided by a wooden partition, one section being occupied by a woman and her daughter, the other by a man, his wife, and their three daughters and four sons. Another son sleeps on a sofa.

In "Stokeley," a notorious London slum district, 10,766 humans were found to be unfit for habitation, while in Kensington, generally regarded as one of London's well-to-do districts, 3,868 verminous children were treated at the public wash house during one quarter.

Birmingham reports a shortage of 27,500 houses, a fact which is exciting some comment since Birmingham has hitherto been regarded as one of the model areas. Manchester presents a vivid pen-picture of deplorable conditions existing there.

600,000 Houses Needed

"It is shown that without a complete dislocation of family life privacy is not possible in cases of overcrowding in houses containing only one family in fifty-four per cent of the cases, and in houses containing more than one family in 98 per cent of the cases," says the report.

Summing up the report John G. Martin, secretary to the council, writes:

"It was estimated in 1919 that 800,000 new houses were then required to make up for the waste of the war years. To that number must be added the 100,000 a year necessary to cope with the annual growth of the population. Of these only 1,000,000 have been built, leaving a present shortage of 600,000. Even if half a million new houses were put in hand and provision were made for a permanent output of a further 100,000 per year, the slum problem and that of the agricultural worker would still be untouched.—Lincoln Star.

Since every court in the blooming British Empire has decided against him in this tax suit, including the King's Bench Division, there is nothing left for Harry Payne Whitney to do but to take an appeal to Big Bill Thompson.
