Business Takes on a Cheerful Glow

Evidences of Improving Conditions Continue, With Steel Trade Settling Pace in Operations.

New York, Feb. 12.—Evidences of improving conditions continued to give a cheerful glow to the American business horizon last week. As in preceding periods the steel trade was setting the pace, with gradually expanding operations and moderate stiffening of prices. Unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation on Jan. 31, were at the highest level since March, 1926, and the total of 4,275,947 tons was an increase of more than a million tons over the last of May, the lowest level of last year.

Even the most optimistic among business observers have expressed surprise at the rapid recovery of the steel industry from its depression in 1927. Much of the buying has been for the account of various railroads and other equipment. The automotive business also has taken a large share of the steel in preparation for a growing demand for motor cars following the introduction of new models and a series of price cuts.

The production of automobiles in January was reported about 18 per cent ahead of that in the same month of last year. This has been reflected in growing operations in plate glass, rubber and upholstery trades.

Business improvement also was shown by a swing upward in freight car loadings, the first increase this year. While shipments have not come up to the early weeks of 1927, a degree of satisfaction is felt by those who regard freight loadings as an important index to business prospects.

The coal trade continued to move rather sluggishly, with the possibility of a new strike clouding the atmosphere in the bituminous branch. Lumber producers reported growing demand and production and the requirement of work in several mills which have been idle for an extended time.

Silk appeared to be the leader in the textile industries, with marked increases in orders, but the curtailment of cotton manufactures was still in force. This curtailment has resulted in a hardening of quotations for goods. Mail order sales gained over January of last year, but were under the figures for December, which was declared to be one of the best holiday seasons in history.

Crops were benefited largely by a widespread rain in the central states, the wheat belts of Texas and Kansas in particular receiving benefit.

The credit situation showed little change. Federal reserve banks at Boston, Kansas City, Atlanta and Dallas joined the line of those which have increased their rediscount rates to 4 per cent.—State Journal.
