BIBLE SCHOOL LESSON

Golden Text: "God knoweth the way of the righteous. But the way of the wicked shall perish."—Psalm 1:6.

What is a Day's Work?

There is much trying to get by, in these days of ours, just as there was when the old world was young.

Christ cites the vineyard, which was given in charge of certain husbandmen to look after and care for, and to render an account of the receipts therefrom, and to keep the vineyard in the best of condition and productive. This is a parable like the parable of the talents to those who were to care for them. It is a truism that when one is given a position as laborer, representative for another, who has furnished the capital, the one employed must pay his own salary or hire, his proportion of the overhead of the institution which gives him employment and a certain degree of profit to the employer, or he is not entitled to the position.

Now How About This

Do you consider this a hard saying, or is it true? Well, it looks like it was true and just, for when an employer hires help, they are entering into a co-partnership and each one is risking something—the laborer his time and skill against the capital of the employer. He cannot expect to receive other compensation elsewhere and he is entitled to the fruits of his labor, skill and knowledge—so a just proportion of the returns should be his. He is really entitled to it, and when he does not receive it he has not gotten his just dues.

Now on the other hand, when a man has entered into an agreement to work for and with another, he must recognize that the other man is risking alike with him in the enterprise and he must, when he comes to the day's work bring a well cared for body and an alert mind, with the requisite skill to do the work he has agreed to in the right way—in short to do the things he is expected to. A night before spent in debauchery does not put him in condition to perform the tasks of the day properly. He is taking from his employer, who is his partner, for they are both interested in the success of the enterprise, to which he is not contributing his just share. And on the other hand, the employer must be just and not expect to grind the face of the poor, for the workman is his partner and his brother, and he must remember that the laborer is worthy of his hire.

We Must be True and Just

We are partners of the Father, He is furnishing the bountiful earth, the glorious sunshine, the balmy winds, the abundant and refreshings rains, he has given us our health, our opportunities and he is expecting us to make good in whatever position we shall be placed. We have all been negligent and have forfeited our inheritance to eternal life in that world to come. Through Adam we fell, and lost the promise of eternal life. Since then we have sinned on our own account and have not come up to the terms of the covenant as God made the covenant with Abraham and so, therefore, we have failed to keep the covenants ourselves, and therefore we are sinners, and do not have even the promise, except we do as the Master, who gave his life for our transgressions, counsels us to do, and accept as we should do and in the spirit of the thing which the Master required.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The passing of the thirty-first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McCrary of this city, was very pleasantly observed on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Privitt, near Cedar Creek, Mrs. Privitt being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McCrary, and who had arranged the very pleasant event for the parents.

The Privitt home was arranged very attractively in the decorations of yellow and white and which was carried through the dinner arrangements, the noonday dinner being one of the features of the occasion that will be long most delightfully remembered. The dinner was featured by the beautiful white angel food wedding cake that had been prepared by Mrs. Privitt and which gave a real nuptial setting to the dinner.

The occasion was enjoyed by some thirty-three of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom of thirty one years and will be an event that all will most delightfully remember through the years and to keep the event fresh in their minds a number of very handsome and attractive gifts were received by the guests of honor.

Miss Viola Renner and Patrick A. McCrary were married at Emporia, Kansas, and spent several years of their wedded life in that locality, coming to Plattsmouth twenty-three years ago and have since made their home in this city, where they have a very large circle of warm friends who have appreciated and enjoyed their friendship through the years. In their wedded life they have been blessed with eight children, three of whom have gone on before while five remain to share the declining years with the parents, and of the children all but one was present at the anniversary, one son, John McCrary, being in France, where his work as a traveling salesman has taken him. The children that attended the occasion were: Mrs. George Privitt, W. D. McCrary of Lincoln, Miss Ardenia McCrary and Merle McCrary of this city.

his plan of salvation. Even as we are without promise, still in the graciousness of the love which the Father and Son bear for us, he gives us an opportunity to make good and he furnishes all things for us to work with.

Why Should We be Saved?

With the proposition of everlasting death before us, we are all anxious for a salvation which will give us everlasting life—one of abundant joy and happiness. This is good, and why should we not desire it? We do, but why is it coming to us. In love and mercy, through the love and sacrifice of the Master, we may participate in this everlasting life, and with what joy we receive it. Now we are saved and we are joyful, but how grateful are we for the great salvation which has been given us.

Why Get Good Seed

Many people advertise extra good seed corn and receive good prices for the same and the farmer is not loath to purchase the better corn, for he knows that it will produce a better crop and thus will pay better returns, even at the higher price for the seed. Now, when we are saved, as the farmer saves his seed corn, because the corn is dependable, and if we are saved, there should be something which makes us worth saving, and that is first, service.

Why the Best Service

Because we are saved with a great sacrifice, and we are worth the salvation even at the great cost, but we know we appreciate the salvation which has come to us, should we not render the service which brought the opportunity to us. Sure we should, and if we are lazy and do not wish to do what the Master shall require, we are not worthy to receive the forgiveness of our former sins, nor are we fit for that home where sin has been blotted out, unless we are willing to do the things which are required and do it in the spirit which the Master did it for us, we are not worthy.

When Christ taught us to pray, he did not teach a greater truth than the one which he has had whispered by the child at its mother's knee, and the aged one who has gone through the world with its ups and downs and murmurs the same request when he is just leaving this world: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who have trespassed against us."

CONTINUES TO IMPROVE

From Wednesday's Daily—
The reports from the St. Catherine's hospital at Omaha state that George Sedlack of this city who is there recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis, is doing very nicely and seems well on the highway to recovery. It is hoped that with his present rate of improvement that he may soon be able to recover and return home to this city and be able to resume his usual activities.
