American Expedition Makes Its Escape

Held for Five Months in High Cold Reaches, Then Treks to Civilization.

New York, May 24.—Held for five months without adequate shelter or supplies in the cold of the high reaches of Tibet, an American expedition has won its way through to civilization and told of its safety in the first message received in more than a year.

The Roerich museum today received a cablegram from the Himalayan region of India from Prof. Nicholas Roerich, which said the expedition had arrived safely on May 14 and recited briefly the hardships of the party during its long trek through central Asia.

Although all the nine white persons on the expedition were reported safe, five of their Mongolian, Burjat and Tibetan guides had died and 90 caravan animals perished in the rigors of the Tibetan winter.

The Roerich expedition first set forth on its wanderings in 1924, it has reported laconically from time to time its position, but since April, 1927, no word has reached the museum which Prof. Roerich founded here.

Many Restless.
Prof. Roerich's cablegram read: "After enduring many hardships the expedition has reached Himalayas. Thus ended big central Asiatic expedition. Many artistic and scientific results. Expedition started in 1924 from Sikkim (eastern Hindustan). Practically the American flag encircled central Asia. Everywhere warmly greeted except Khotan and Lhasa governments. Further movement of expedition from Khotan assisted by British consul at Kashgar.

"On Tibetan territory have been attacked by armed robbers. Superiority of our fire prevented bloodshed. In spite of Tibet passports, expedition forcibly stopped by Tibetan authorities on October 6, 1927. With inhuman cruelty expedition detained five months on altitude of 15 thousand feet, living in summer tents amidst severe cold about minus 40 degrees Centigrade. (The Fahrenheit scale is almost exactly the same at that point below zero.

Rigid Restrictions.
"Forbidden to speak to passing caravans. Forbidden to buy food stuffs from population. Money and medicines came to an end. The presence of three women in the caravan and medical certificates about heart weakness not taken into consideration.

"With great difficulties, on March 4 expedition started southwards. All nine European members expedition safe."

Nicholas Roerich is a native of Russia who has long combined painting with exploration.

Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, whose government was accused by Roerich of seriously endangering the lives of the whole expedition, is the seat of Grand Lama. It is the center of the monastery branch of the Buddhist religion.—World-Herald.

W. T. Harris, Rancher, According to Officers Confesses He Killed Him and Cut up Corpse

Oskosh, Neb., May 25.—W. H. O'Daniels was killed and his body dismembered and stuffed thru a hole in the ice into Hackberry lake the night of Jan. 27, details of the confessed murder by W. T. Harris, showed today.

Harris and O'Daniels, who was working on the Harris ranch near here, were working as partners in the trapping business. The pair disagreed over profits from the venture, Harris' confession said, and O'Daniels fired at his employer.

ris said he over-powered his man and beat him to death with O'Daniels' six shooter.

Harris related how he then dragged the body onto the ice, chopped a hole and, after cutting the corpse into three pieces, shoved it into the water.

An investigation of O'Daniels' mysterious disappearance was started six weeks ago and culminated with arrest of Harris Wednesday.

Harris was in jail here today as authorities dragged the lake in search of the head of O'Daniels. Charges will be filed as soon as that member is found and it is ascertained whether the cause of death was as described by Harris.
