Judge Begley in Fourth of July Address Urges Greater Interest in Affairs of Government.

"Ignorance and indifference are the two greatest forces opposed to government," declared Judge James T. Begley of Plattsmouth when he addressed about two thousand persons at the Fourth of July celebration at Brown park Wednesday after-50,000.00 noon. The celebration was sponsor ed by the South Omaha Fourth of 22,339.89 July association. More than 10 thousand attended the fireworks display in the evening.

"The people themselves are to blame if a minority is enabled to elect a president and congress," he continued, and urged that all citizens avail themselves of their power to vote. "There has been some criticism of the government. But it is not the fault of the system of our government. Rather is it the weakness of the men that fill our governmental offices.'

He named six fundamental principles upon which the constitution of the United States is founded and called the constitution the "greatest document ever promulgated at any times

Cites the List.

"The first fundamental principle is a representative form of govern ment," he said, "and it was for this idea that our fathers struggled against the most powerful nation in the world. The second principle, a dual form of government, has caused much conflict, for there is always a tendency for the federal government to usurp the rights of the state is not a sovereign power.
