SAFETY CAMPAIGN OPENS

Omaha, July 31.—"Save a life" is the slogan for Nebraska motorists until Aug. 25, during the statewide "save a life" campaign which opens officially tomorrow. Omaha will open the campaign today with a "safety march," led by a squadron of motorcycle police and the Seventeenth Infantry band. In line will be trucks of many manufacturers and business houses and floats. Fire companies will assist in the demonstration. There will be several wrecked automobiles in the parade, as a silent sermon to drivers.

Nebraska is the tenth state to sponsor a save a life campaign. Next month New Jersey will conduct a similar drive for accident prevention.

More than six hundred official service stations already have been designated in Nebraska and before the campaign ends there will be a total of 1,500 such stations, according to officers of the campaign. Inspection of safety factors is made without charge. If no defects are found, official windshield stickers are issued the owner of the car. If the inspection reveals defects, adjustments will be made at the usual charge for such service, by the station.

HANDCUFFED MAN AT LARGE

From Thursday's Daily—

The man claimed to be E. Frye of Lincoln, charged with committing robbery in Otoe county, is still at large according to the last reports received here at the Office of Sheriff Bert Reed. The man was reported to have been seen yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of Nehawak, having evidently gotten on the way to Lincoln to his home. He was reported to have been seen by several farmers and was still wearing the cuffs which were placed on him Monday night by Sheriff Ryder. The man has successfully eluded pursuit by the officers so far, but his ultimate capture is almost certain as he has little chance of having the cuffs removed and the condition of the wrists of the man will be such that he cannot stand the pain of the swollen wrists.

Cities are Paying Off Their Bonded Debts

Report of State Shows Large Amounts Being Settled—This City Pays of $2,000 in July.

Strong public sentiment in Nebraska against additional bond issues by governmental subdivisions is denoted by more than three times as much indebtedness of that kind paid off and cancelled during the month of July as the amount representing new obligations. This is the record of the month as it appears on the bond registration books in the state auditor's office.

A compilation by Bond Examiner Ralph C. Lawrence reveals that $301,216 of bonds owing by cities, villages, school districts and other units of government was retired in July, whereas, only $81,536 of new bonds were promulgated.

This summary takes no account of refunded bonds, where one issue took the place of another and the amount of indebtedness outstanding was not changed. It includes only actual payment of old bonds and the floating of new issues.

In recent months there has been a growing tendency among Nebraska citizens to vote down proposed bond issues when they were submitted. As a result of this fewer projects calling for increased bonded indebtedness are being submitted at present.

A few years ago it was rare that a proposition of this kind failed to carry. Now the chances are that if one is placed before the voters it will be defeated.

Scotts Bluff Heads List

Among the organized subdivisions which paid off bonds during July, the Gering irrigation district of Scotts Bluff county stands at the top of the column with $30,700 cancelled. Next in order comes Scotts Bluff county itself with $28,000 of its securities called in. The city of Kearney is third with $20,000; the city of York gas rid of $16,420; Wayne school district, $11,500; and the village of Chappell, $10,000.

Rural school districts over the state retired a total of $10,195 bonds which they were owing.

Included in the payments of bonds for the month of July, Plattsmouth has retired $2,000 of the bonded indebtedness.

Mr. Masnika was an employe at the National Stone Co. plant in Louisville and his death occurred very suddenly on Wednesday afternoon as he was engaged in his usual activities as operator of the gas car used in the quarry work. His death was caused by heart failure it is thought. The deceased was a native of Czecho-Slovakia and where he migrated from when a very young man, coming from there to Cleveland, Ohio. Four years ago Mr. Masnika and family came to Louisville and have since made their home there and are among the highly respected residents of that community.

He leaves to mourn his death the wife and one small son.

MERRY STITCHERS MEET

On Aug. 2 the Merry Stitchers held their meeting at the home of Miss Leola Heil.

The princess slips and kitchen aprons were to be judged, but were not because the other club were too busy to judge them, but they probably will have at the next meeting.

The Merry Stitchers practiced the demonstration which they will give at the achievement program, the date has not been decided yet. They are progressing with their work nicely.

The members cut a form of a pattern for a bungalow dress which they are to have done as much as they can by the next meeting.

After the meeting they practiced their songs and yells.

The next meeting they will meet at the home of Miss Leola Heil on Aug. 8. Mrs. Albert Murray and Mrs. John Albert were visitors. Visitors are all welcome.

FIRST LOCOMOTIVE

From Thursday's Daily—
In the "Fifty Years Ago Today" notes, taken from the files of the Lincoln Journal, there appears the announcement that on August 1, 1878, the first locomotive built in the state of Nebraska, was turned out of the Burlington shops at Plattsmouth. It was of the pony type, now long since abandoned in the railroad service. As was the custom in those days, the locomotives were all given names of notable civil war generals or cities and the first locomotive that was built in this state was christened "Plattsmouth."
