A New and Threatening Menace Seen

"The Road to Ruin" at Parmele Theatre on Monday and Tuesday August 14 and 15.

Liquor, dope, white slavery—all these bugaboos of a past generation have given way to a new menace that threatens the very life of the nation.

—the menace of Juvenile Delinquency. Liquor affects comparatively few families, dope still fewer, while white slavery as symbolized by red lights and segregated districts, has practically ceased to exist. But Juvenile Delinquency as expressed in the amazing and unexplainable moral decay and modern youth is a problem that reaches into every community and threatens every home. It is difficult for many parents to understand the freedom of modern thought and conduct, and it is hard for them to believe that their child could be in danger.

All such should see "THE ROAD TO RUIN" which comes to the Parmele theatre Monday and Tuesday, August 14th and 15th, and which is described as "A Flaming Warning to the Parents of America." "The Road to Ruin" which is based on an actual case, is an amazingly frank story of the temptations confronting the children of today and contains a tremendous lesson, while at the same time, because of the extremely able handling of a delicate subject, it is first rate entertainment.

VISIT IN PLAINVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Weidman who are now making their home in Plainview, are reminded of the fact that they are not so far away from the old home as several times the Plattsmouth residents touring that part of the state have called on them. The last week the Weidman family had the pleasure of a visit from Mr. and Mrs. John W. Crabill and party and also Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Webb and children, who enjoyed a visit at the Weidman home for a short time. The large number of former Plattsmouth and Cass county people living in and near Plainview makes it quite like home to anyone from this locality.

Best Lawn Contest to be Held Coming Week

August 15th is the Date Set for Determining the Three Most Attractive Lawns in City.

From Wednesday's Daily—
 The entries for the contest for the most attractive lawn in the city have been quite large and represent all sections of the city, assuring that Chairman W. G. Kleck and his committee will have a good job on August 15th when they make a tour of the city and pass judgment on the various lawns that have been entered by their owners in the contest.

There are many very attractive lawns over the city that their owners may well be proud of and all of whom should be in the contest to give the widest range for the committee to work on in making their decision, as many a fine and well kept lawn will be left without consideration if not entered in the contest.

The committee has announced that it makes no difference whether the lawns be large or small, whether they surround large and expensive homes or small cottages, they will receive the same consideration from the judges, so that all who wish to enter their lawns may do so without any handicap whatsoever.

The entries are made by merely notifying Mr. Kleck, and Bill will do the rest of the work with his committee in looking over every lawn that has been listed as a contender for one of the three prizes given by the Chamber of Commerce for the most attractive lawn.

ANDREW JACKSON MEAD DEAD

Andrew Jackson Mead was born October 14, 1859 at Fairplay, Missouri, and passed away at Plattsmouth, Nebraska, July 31, 1928, aged sixty-eight years, nine months and nine days.
