A Paramount Picture

YOU don't have to chase the laughs in this Dix picture. They come right to you—just rolling along. Richard Dix has far from an easy time of it in this picture, but there's an easy time of laughter for all who see it. There's an honest American boy, who just can't stay out of trouble, a good-humored crook whom everybody loves and a girl—what a girl.

Well-Known Cast Plays with Dix

Unusual Group of Movie Veterans Joined in "Easy Come, Easy Go," at Parmeale.

Richard Dix is supported by a cast of well-known Paramount players in his latest farce comedy, "Easy Come, Easy Go," which will be the attraction at the Parmeale theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

With Nancy Carroll, the youthful star who made such a hit in Paramount's presentation of Anne Nichols' "Able's Irish Rose," as his leading woman, Dix offers a lively, laugh-provoking characterization of a young man unwittingly made the accomplice of an accomplished crook.

Charles Selton, whose seven earlier has been a series of clever supporting parts, has the important role of Jim Bailey, the veteran crook, with whom Dix becomes involved. The part calls for an unusual amount of fine acting in the humorous twists which the situations demand.

The romance motif of the picture develops early and continues throughout the various sequences. Arnold Kent, therefore, as the third member of the love triangle, is much in evidence and very effective. Frank Currier has the part of the bank president and Christian J. Frank, Joseph J. Franz and Guy Oliver have important places as the two detectives and the train conductor, respectively.

The plot is entirely comedy with a wealth of action and comedy situations happening in natural sequence. This latest Dix picture, "Easy Come, Easy Go," is a companion piece to Dix's recent successful comedy, "Sporting Goods," and is the second Dix picture this year.

Sound Pictures Promise of New Parmeale Owner

W. J. Seydlitz, Purchaser of Parmeale Theatre Outlines Policies He Expects to Pursue Here

W. J. Seydlitz, of Lincoln, who is in the city today to arrange the details of taking over ownership and management of the Parmeale theatre on Sunday, has given out for publication the following statement of the policies he expects to pursue in the conduct of his newest picture house. As heretofore stated, Mr. Seydlitz, who is a former Plattsmouth man, was for some time in charge of the Capitol theatre, at Lincoln, one of the finest moving picture houses in the capital city. Following is his statement.

"I wish to announce to the people of Plattsmouth and vicinity that I have taken over the interests of Messrs. Clويد and Moore in the Parmeale theatre, effective December 30, 1928, and thereafter this theatre will be managed by me personally. I expect to put into effect at the Parmeale the same kind of policy I had in the Capitol theatre of Lincoln, which made it one of Lincoln's finest and most successful theatres.

"I believe Plattsmouth is large enough to have sound pictures in its theatre, which I hope to put in my policy, providing I can put this house over as it should be. I believe the people are entitled to something bigger than just pictures as the Parmeale is ideal in its height of ceiling and architecture of building for the sound pictures that are now taking the country by storm. All pictures will eventually be available for sound and nearly all the theatres having sufficient seating capacity to afford it, will be equipped with some kind of sound device.

"I do not mention that I will be at the theatre at all times and mothers need have no fear in letting their little girls and boys come whenever they wish, as there will positively be no loading allowed around this theatre. Only the cleanest kind of pictures will be shown here and children will receive my personal care.

"I will have a matinee every Sunday at 2:30, beginning December 30th.

"I understand there is a 'dish' night at this theatre, which I do not quite understand but will leave same as it is for the present and if I decide to discontinue same I will give everybody a chance to fill their set of dishes. I also understand there is a family night. This I think is fine and will leave same as it is.

"I do not know if there are any more 'freak' nights or not, but will say I will handle them to the best of my ability and in conclusion will say that I wish you all a Happy New Year and hope to see some of my old friends and make a lot of new ones, as I was born here and lived in Plattsmouth myself; have two sisters here now and two brothers here on the farm; also have my parents here, so I do not feel like a stranger.

"Very respectfully yours,
 W. J. SEYDLITZ,
 Manager-Owner."

Veteran Editor Disposes of His Paper at Eagle

J. A. Gardner Sells the Good Will and Rights of Paper to C. V. Seeley of Weeping Water.

J. A. Gardner, who has been the publisher of the Beacon at Eagle in the west part of the county, is retiring from the newspaper business in this county and will remove to the western part of the state. The sale of the good will, rights and subscription lists of the paper has been made to Charles V. Seeley, publisher of the Weeping Water Republican, who also has a chain of papers published at Weeping Water for other towns of the county. Mr. Gardner will retain the printing equipment of the Beacon and expects to have it moved to Lewellen, Nebraska, in the western part of the state, where he is to establish a new paper in that locality.

The veteran editor has during his career as editor and publisher at Eagle, been a very active figure in the life of that community and was awarded the cup by the state press association in 1926 for his community service in securing a public library for Eagle. Mr. Gardner has been an outstanding worker in the cause of the republican party and served as chairman of the republican congressional committee in the campaign of R. H. Thorpe, and has been very active in the county political circles. He has given his forceful personality to his editorial work and his part in the newspaper field will be missed in the future.

The many friends over the county trust that Mr. Gardner will find success in his new location and there is no doubt that he will give Lewellen and that territory a real paper.
