Crimes story could be shortened by lengthening the sentences.

A girl 17 years old and 4 feet 4 inches tall should weigh 104 pounds.

Dr. Will Durant calls thinking the greatest adventure. It is a timid age.

Sometimes our talents lie dormant for a long time, before we discover them.

The Swope Park zoo reports that the lady ostrich out there has begun laying.

Babies catch everything, it is said, but did you ever hear of one getting sleeping sickness?

In grandma's day the girls skirts covered her insteps. But today they barely cover her step-ins.

The Volga river has overflowed, but fears are expressed here and there that the song is safe.

When a woman motorist puts out her hand it is a signal she is going to do one of 11 things, if not more.

Here's something more to grive about. Jack Dempsey's pet jungle cat was shot dead in Florida the other day.

Women's clothes express their sentiments, says a novelist. Most of the ladies we've seen lately seem pretty vague.

When a woman recklessly squander money which she cannot afford, upon trinkets which nobody wanteth, and gifts for those she hateth.

Doctors say the average person can reasonably expect to live fifty-five years. But if you die before that time it isn't reasonable to expect it.

A New York newspaper says that the last name in the telephone directory in that city is spelled "Zyzzy." Sounds like the last note of a good snore.

Washington has ordered patrols to stop firing across the Detroit River into Canada. It was, of course, endangering the lives of thousands of Americans.

More women are now working than ever before, according to the census bureau. Well, somebody has to buy the gas, tires, oil and corn liquor for the family.

The champion Doubting Thomas of the world was seen on Main street yesterday. He refused to cross even when a motorist stopped and signaled him to go ahead.

Gov. Weaver may not believe that "to the victor belongs the spoils," but he at least feels that his friends are better qualified to hold public office than some other fellow's friends.

Since all the men in the oil scandals were promptly given a clean bill of moral health by Washington jurists as fast as they came, Mr. Blackmer must feel that he made a mistake in running away to France and becoming a voluntary exile.

Tex Rickard was a wonderful man and very popular with the sporting class of the country by whom he will be sadly missed. He was born near the home of the James boys in Missouri and saw many of the frightful scenes, escapades when he was a small boy.

THE SCANDALMONGER

The lowest form of animal life is the scandalmonger. We say "animal life" because such persons are in reality not human beings.

They may wear the outward form of members of the genus homo, but they have none of the decent instincts that entitle them to membership in that family.

The scandalmonger delights in saying mean and unpleasant things about other persons, not through a sense of righteousness, or a desire to preserve social standards, but solely for the purpose of breeding strife, discord, suffering and trouble.

When a person comes to you to relate a bit of gossip of salacious scandal, fit fitting rebuke is to promptly turn and walk away.

You are justified in doing just that because such persons are so constituted that they would rather feast on mental garbage than clean food.

Usually, almost invariably, such persons care not a continental about the truth. They do not even take the trouble to investigate the truth or falsity of what they have heard, and it is a safe bet that the story, whatever it may be, has been grossly exaggerated in passing through their minds.

The peddler of gossip is the foremost retailer of fiction. They convert molehills into mountains, and make a trifling matter seem of major importance because of their maliciousness and distorted imagination.

Perhaps nowhere on earth is the gossip and the scandalmonger held in such utter contempt, and other utterances so heavily discounted, as in a newspaper office.

If the average newspaper printed as facts all the rumors, reports, gossip, or whatever you care to call it, that comes into its office each day it would have to hire every lawyer in town to defend its damage suits.

Also, bear this in mind when listening to the gossip or scandal-monger. The self-same person who brings you a dirty tale about some other person would just as willingly circulate evil reports about you if the opportunity offered—and frequently they make the opportunity.

Why some people seem to derive downright pleasure in defaming others is difficult to understand, but it is quite evident they do, otherwise there would not be so many of them.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR

A new angle of the "farm problem" which hasn't been discussed much but which will grow more and more acute with each passing year, is pointed out by a writer in the current issue of the North American Review. It is the crisis in country life which is approaching as a result of the disappearance of the country.

In 1906 there were in the United States 32,000 physicians in towns of 1000 population or less. By 1924 this number had dwindled to 27,500, and it is still going down. Almost one-third of the small towns that had resident doctors in 1914 have none today.

Medical education and training grow more expensive each year. The vast majority of medical graduates, seeking to recoup their expenditures, enter urban practice as specialists in one branch or another of their profession.

Just what can be done to remedy matters is not clear; obviously, it is a problem that needs some very serious consideration.

Grover Whalen is conducting New York's police department in much the same manner that he conducted Wanamaker's store. The good old McLaughlin days may be returning to New York. Certainly if complete reorganization will restore police efficiency, Whalen will restore it. And he's playing no favorites.

And now comes William R. Hearst with an offer of $25,000 for the best essay on how to repeal the eighteenth amendment and "substitute a more liberal and American measure." Well, Willium, here's our solution, and it don't take long to tell it, either. Just elect men to public office who will vote as they drink.

The Cape Girardeau Southeast Missourian issued a 28-page edition recently, giving a summary of the year's activities in Southeast Missouri and telling of the city's accomplishments. One of the main projects last year was the completion of the bridge across the Mississippi at Cape Girardeau.

A reason for spelling of "punkin" and "pumpkin." When the pie is made with eggs and milk and cream it is pumpkin, and when it is made with rainwater it is punkin pie, with the accent on the punk.

A Pittsburgh business man hugged his partner's wife, was sued for damages, and it cost him $12,000. That's too darned much for one bug—and she may not have been especially huggable, either.
