

"One of The Greatest Virtues"—

said Lincoln, "is economy. It begins by saving money." And when we celebrate his birthday on the twelfth, it would be well to reflect on this observation. Truly he knew, for that virtue was assuredly his.

Farm Successes and Philosophy of Right Living

Mark February Happy Hundred Supper at the First Methodist Church Last Night

From Wednesday's Daily—
The February monthly supper of the Chamber of Commerce, well named the Happy Hundred, held last evening was one of which more than usual pleasantness in the fact that the gathering was graced by many of the leading and most successful farmers of Cass county and who were here in attendance at the hog and corn show in the afternoon and remained for the breaking of bread with the Plattsmouth men in the evening, and aiding in the success of a very pleasant evening.

The speaker of the evening was Adam Newens of the school of music of the University of Nebraska, who a few years ago was here to delight the Plattsmouth men with his address and again in a most pleasant and to the point address gave a rich and worthwhile philosophy of life from the voice of a master of the local people.

The speaker of the evening was Adam Newens of the school of music of the University of Nebraska, who a few years ago was here to delight the Plattsmouth men with his address and again in a most pleasant and to the point address gave a rich and worthwhile philosophy of life from the voice of a master of the local people.

Mr. Newens stated that his subject would be that of "The Man Sized Job of Living," and how well it was delivered was evident by the close attention given his remarks. The speaker stated that many men were governed by fear, their fear of the consequences kept them from doing many things that their nature called them to do, the fear of detection or punishment kept them from straying, but it was the men who had the courage to do things they knew was right because they loved this manner of living and wished to aid their fellow man that were true examples of the man sized job of living. The right living was in being larger than the task undertaken, the accomplishment of a job or a task where the person doing it developed into a bigger and better man, to build for tomorrow, to place for those that come after the needed bridge that they must cross, the love and be a part with the fellow man. It was not the value of the thing done, Mr. Newens stated, but the courage that the act called for that made it great. In his remarks Mr. Newens paid a very fine tribute to the late James W. Seanson for his quiet and courageous aid of many of his fellow men. Serving as an inspiration to others to be bigger and better was cited as one of the big things of the right living and to love the neighbor and give him comfort and aid was truly a man sized job of the journey of life and which made for the greatness of the man performing this task. In this closing Mr. Newens gave a fine tribute to the state of Nebraska and urged that its people be loyal to the great state, to build it for the greatness of the many tomorrows.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. O. G. Wichmann, pastor of the St. Paul's Evangelical church, who has just recently returned home from the hospital, while the benediction was offered by the Rev. H. E. Sortor, pastor of the First Methodist church.

O. O. Weggener of the state agricultural college as well as Mr. Aller and H. M. Smith of Omaha were also presented and greeted by the audience.

Paul H. Stewart of the state agricultural college was presented for a short talk and which was one cleverly staged, holding his audience in suspense as to a learned discussion he sprang a series of slides that gave a hearty laugh at the expense of several of the local people.

SOMETHING NEW IN ROPE WORK

At the home of Marvel and Donald Skinner, Jan. 31, 1929, the Knotty Rope club received training by tying square knots. To make use of this efficient knot, a motion had been made to tie a quilt. With the co-operation of both the boys and girls this was soon accomplished, mid songs and cheers by this 4-H gang. A team demonstration on the uses of different kinds of rope and some practical knots was given. The "harness hitch" is used to relieve the strain on that part of the rope where one strand is broken. This is numbered with the essential knots. One of the three "ups" of club work is "Keep Up." The Knotty members are doing so. Just one more lesson and each member will know what the practical knots are, how to splice a rope, of what rope is made, and how to tie the knots in their places. Mrs. Arthur Skinner added a wintry touch to the evening by serving pop corn.

Ask to Have Deed to Property Here Set Aside

Part of Heirs in Cory Estate Ask to Have Document Made by John Cory Declared Void.

From Tuesday's Daily—
Another chapter in the Cory estate was opened this morning with the filing in the office of the clerk of the district court of an action undertaken by a number of the heirs of the Alice Cory and John Cory estate, asking to have set aside a deed made by John Cory of the date of July 13, 1925, and in which the interest of the maker of the deed, John Cory, was conveyed to his daughter, Mrs. Sybil Brantner.

The plaintiffs in the case are Garnet Ohschlager, Francis Schulze and Florence Coleman, and through the attorneys, A. L. Tidd and C. E. Martin, ask that the deed be set aside.

It is alleged in the petition of the plaintiffs that they are heirs at law of John Cory, deceased, and entitled to an undivided one-fourth in the real estate of the estate of the deceased John Cory.

The petition further claims that John Cory was owner of one half of the real estate at the time of the death of his wife, Mrs. Alice Cory on July 10, 1925, that by reason of the death of the wife he inherited under the law a one-third interest by right of descent, giving the deceased John Cory a two-thirds interest in the real estate.

It is further claimed by the plaintiffs that the maker of the deed was unduly influenced in the making of the document and which is also given as a reason for the petition for setting aside the will.

J. H. Waterman, Old Time Resident Here, Dies

Prominent in Work on Burlington and Resided Here in Eighties—Many Friends Here

From Wednesday's Daily—
J. H. Waterman, seventy-five, until a year ago superintendent of wood preservation for the Burlington, died Tuesday at Galesburg, Ill. He will be buried here Thursday.

Mr. Waterman was born near Albany, N. Y., and came to Nebraska fifty-two years ago, working in a lumber yard at Plattsmouth. Two years later he entered the service of the Burlington, in which he remained for forty-six years. Starting as freight trucker in Plattsmouth, he was soon made foreman of the railroad company's lumber yard. He came to Lincoln in 1890 to take charge of the material maintenance yard and a few months was made storekeeper. The next eighteen years were spent in Lincoln, except for two years in Omaha as assistant to the general storekeeper. In 1919 he was put in charge of timber preservation, with headquarters in Galesburg, and held that position until his retirement last year.

Mr. Waterman served the American Wood Preservers association as vice president and later as president, and was also president of the Railway Storekeepers association.

His activities were also of a civic and religious nature. He was prominent in the Y. M. C. A. thruout Nebraska, and was an elder and president of the board of trustees of the Second Presbyterian church for many years. Thru all his years in Galesburg he thought of Lincoln as his home.

'Honeymoon Flats' a House of Great Mirth

Comedy Drama at Colony a Laughable Exposé of Newlywed Bliss; At Parmele.

An intimate, sophisticated revelation of newly-married life is contained in Universal's clever comedy, "Honeymoon Flats," which will be shown at the Parmele theatre Sunday and Monday, with George Lewis and Dorothy Gulliver co-starring.

The story is well-directed, smooth and progresses evenly under increasing suspense to the very last scene. It is all about the young Claytons, the girl a daughter of wealthy parents and the boy a struggling young college graduate who insists that he support his wife on his own salary despite his mother-in-law's patronizing attitude.

It also concerns a friend who is married, both he and his wife having their private love affairs. These are worked into the story neatly. The picture is revived and bewildered by their new status. Their quarrels are humorous and the "in-laws," butting in on everything, add much to the hilarity of this intensely human comedy of affairs.

Lewis and Gulliver are both very good in their roles. This pair will be remembered for their featured work in "The Collegian" series of short comedies. Bryant Washburn and Jane Winton are the other married couple, adding much subtle comedy. Kathlyn Williams and Phillips Smalley are the "in-laws." Eddie Phillips, another "Collegian" graduate has a Lothario role.

To Millard Webb goes credit for his comprehending direction of this screen version of Earl Derr Biggers' spirited short story, which ran in the Saturday Evening Post last season.
