Jacksonville, Fla.-The beach fad of exposing as much of one's self to the beneficent rays of the sun as public opinion considers modest met with disapproval here Wednesday and as a result the city school superintendent and a high school dean are at odds.

Six girl students at Robert E. Lee high school were sent home for wearing "Sun Back" dresses and ordered FROM OMAHA HOSPITAL not to return until they could appear "more modest" apparel. Mrs. Marguerite Culp, dean of girls, said the dresses, some of which are cut extremely low to expose the back to the sunshine, were "immodest" and had "demoralized the classes." Some of the girls returned to their class rooms in other clothing. Others returned with their dresses still backless. R. D. Rutherford, superintendent of public instruction, declared he could see no reason why the dresses should be called immod-
