Are we going to celebrate?
Cal and Al have adopted new policies.
Plattsmouth always does the proper caper in celebrating.
A 30 by 3 1/2 automobile tire contains 1723 miles of cotton fiber.
Some of the modern hair styles were in vogue 400 years ago in England.

No use to feel discouraged about business, Plattsmouth is always in the swim.
The happy warrior in Mexico is the one who first reaches a town not yet looted.

The average man marries in the neighborhood of 30 and the average woman at 25.

Less than one third of the population of Mexico now live in towns of 4,000 or over.

The Hoover administration, to live up to its aims, needs only to abolish poverty and thirst.

Governor Weaver has demonstrated to a dead moral certainty that he is Governor of Nebraska.

Local demand for light automobiles is causing British manufacturers to work night shifts.

The old-fashioned dress had hooks and eyes on it, but nowadays stockings only have eyes on them.

South Dakota has a new simplified primary law, but the politicians are already at work on complications.

Two of the largest flour mill plants in Sweden are run by co-operative unions, and are operated night and day.

Many strangers are coming to Plattsmouth, some to stay and others to pluck up what they can and get out again.

An old-fashioned home is where the mother still uses the hem of her dress to wipe perspiration from her brow in the kitchen.

If one pair of English sparrows increased without hindrance for 10 years, it would have more than 275,000,000,000 descendants.

The Hoovers seem still to be operating under their good luck franchise. They went on a picnic Saturday, May 4, and didn't get caught in a rain.

When one goes out in the spring these gay modern times and doesn't get caught in the rain or a raid, he is burning up his good luck pretty fast.

Marion Talley must have been reading the debates in The Congressional Record since the farm relief session convened. We note that on second thought she has given up the idea of retiring to the farm and instead will devote the next two years to the study of vice.

Business is bound to improve.
Remember Mother's Day next Sunday.
Some enemies in Plattsmouth are a detriment to themselves.
In many instances the city government should have left well enough alone.

It is high time for winter to quit this confounded lingering in the lap of spring.

A tombstone is the only thing that has a good word for a fellow when he's down.

Of the 1157 motor ships in service during 1920, only 27 flew the American flag.

Get more push on you when trade is dull. No use to feel blue. That brings you nothing.

"Everything has gone to pot around this house today" said Mrs. Smithers as she stirred the soup.

No good boy will ever forget a mother's love. It is as lasting as the Sun, Moon and Stars.

The White House at Washington is considered the most valuable residence property in the world.

Nebraska's meanest man is a chicken thief who stole a flock of chickens from the orphanage.

First non-stop flight from Seattle to Juneau is completed on record time by Pilot Eckman of Seattle.

A special train recently carried 10,000 gallons of whisky valued at $375,000 from Glasgow, Scotland, to London.

The honeymoon draws to a close, when the young couple come back to the neighborhood where the relatives live.

Natural heat from the Volcano of Kilauea is used to heat the superintendent's office in the Hawaii National Park.

High-brows get the publicity, but the country is still safe in the hands of the people that prefer to eat breakfast in the kitchen.

Since January, Calvin Coolidge has written more than 50,000 words for magazines. The strain was too much—even Cal has to break his silence periodically.

It is a good time right now to organize commission form of government. Ten years ago Nebraska City adopted this form of government and they still hold on to it.

We suppose the first thing St. Peter will ask you when you get there at the pearly gate, on the outside, will be whether you ever did any double paring and then, if you tell the truth, the kind old fellow will say encouragingly: "Well, you didn't make a regular practice of it, did you?"

BREAKFAST TABLE TALK

"My husband had something to say to me this morning at the breakfast table, but I didn't have time to listen to him," said a Plattsmouth housewife to a friend the other evening. "I had an engagement at the beauty parlor, and simply had to get there."

Beauty parlor engagements are highly important, of course, but it is barely possible that the husband might have had something interesting, if not important, to communicate to his better half.

The fact is, breakfast table conversation is a lost art, and few people practice it any more. It does not seem possible that it flourished once to such perfection that Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote a book about it. Too true, too true. The American breakfast has degenerated into something akin to a relay race or a sort of first base merely to be touched in the daily run from the home plate and back again.

American life lost something vital when this degeneration took place, not to mention the loss to health. That the early morning gathering of the family at the breakfast table for a leisurely meal and calm consideration of the days activities was good for the disposition and the digestion and there is little doubt. If other habits were properly regulated, each member appeared fresh, clear-brained and cheerful. The digestive system and the spirits responded nobly to the satisfying food and the pleasant discourse. Mind and body were fortified for the day.

Inversely, the hastily snatch of breakfast today, often taken standing up in the kitchen, totally inadequate as nourishment for a body that has fasted some 12 hours and accompanied by a furry and excitement, give one a bad start. The disclosure, if any, is short, snappy, often ill-natured. The one thought of all minds is the clock, the clock, the clock. Late hour entertainments are to blame, mostly. One can't retire at 1 a. m. or later and linger long at breakfast, if there is work to be done. It was a fine old institution, the family breakfast.

That bit of advice ought to be pasted up in every home. It doesn't take much trouble to keep little things out of baby's reach—and a little carelessness in that matter may cost the child's life.

Senator Hefflin was stopped midway in a speech the other day when Vice President Curtis reminded him of an old rule forbidding any Senator to speak disparagingly of a colleague, as that rule appears to bear more heavily upon Hefflin than anybody else he might justly claim that he is being discriminated against.

THE DEAD SAFETY PIN
If you have a small baby in your home, you will be interested in what Dr. Chevalier Jackson, Philadelphia specialist, has to say about babies swallowing foreign substances. Dr. Jackson's clinic has extracted all kinds of things from the throats of children—safety pins, toys, candy, pennies, buttons, and even jewelry. And here is what he says: "Safety pins have killed more babies than firearms. Intelligent care taken by the parents or nurses could reduce effectually the disheartening number of casualties resulting from lodgment of objects in the throats and lungs of children who have been permitted to put such things in their mouths."

THE NATION'S WEALTH
How wealthy are Americans? Looking into this inviting subject The Arkansas Gazette says: On the basis of the first quarterly payments on the 1928 income tax, Treasury experts estimated that American corporations last year made net profits of approximately $11,500,000, a figure so stupendous that for most minds some basis of comparison is needed to give it any but vague significance.
