Russians May Join in Next

Delegation to Moscow Will Press for Participation in Kyoto Conference

New York-Efforts to bring Russia into the coming biennial conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations at Kyoto will be made by American, British and other groups, some of the members of which have already started on their way to Japan. The conference to be held from

Oct. 28 to Nov. 9, will be attended by about 104 Americans, who are scheduled for a preliminary conference with members of the Royal British branch of the institute.

On their way to Kyoto, Edward C Carter, honorary secretary of the American Council of the Institute; Jerome D. Greene, chairman, and five others from the United States and Moscow for the purpose of conferon the possibilities of Russian participation in the conference.

Mr. Carter said a provisional committee had been formed in Russia for participation and that a number of eminent Russian natural scientists and Orientalists were actively interested. It is hoped, he said, that an arrangement can be made for at least one Russian to attend.

The main difficulty, Mr. Carter said, is the unofficial nature of the conference. When the United States wishes to send a group to such a conference, there are always those who can go at their own expense, and several foundations can always be found willing to send others. But in Russia the situation is different, There are few people, if any, able and there are no foundations such as we have here. We hope, however, by visiting Moscow to find some way to overcome this obstacle.'

Others who will go to Moscow on their way from the United States to Japan are Mrs. E. C. Carter, Roland W. Boyden of Boston, formerly United States observer with the Joseph P. Chamberlain, Columbia University; Prof. William H. Kilpatrick, Teachers College, Columbia University, and Lewis L. Lorwin, Breekings Institution, Washington

Annual Water Loss Over Twenty Million Acre Feet

Huge Waste During Spring-Say Storage Possible.

Lincoln, Aug. 21.-Describing Neraska's annual loss in water reources at gigantic, Lieutenant J. M. Young, United States army engineer in charge of the Platte river flood control survey today told Governor Weaver that western Nebraska agriculturists would find a solution for their late summer water problems when facilities are provided to curb the water loss.

In a long conference with the governor, Lieutenant Young agreed with the executive that the state is losing the use of 21 million acre feet of water each spring. "And this," Governor Weaver added, "is a conservative estimate of the Platte river when seining was what is getting away from the irri-Study Intended for Flood Aid

"While the government survey will include a complete report of water conditions along the Platte river throughout Nebraska as a means of alleviating flood conditions in the south, it will also prove the advisability of providing gigantic storage dams in this state. Lieutenant Young explained. "Nebraska," he added, "will then be conserving what it is losing and In the District Court of the Unit- the entire situation will relieve gusk, and approaching the Trykmokit flood conditions."

His conference followed a meeting at Bridgeport Tuesday in which ee studied the entire situation as ly the position of the ship
