Even a blind man is able to discover a fault.

Summer has its hot days. What else do you expect?

Amid all the international scuffling the tariff makers plod along.

Pretty soon breezes will increase. These will come from Congress.

Some men kick because their daily bread doesn't come already buttered.

The Philippines want American capital, but it must first be made safe.

The force of public opinion is something like a force pump. It has to be worked.

One objection to peace and freedom from disaster is that we get behind with our geography.

Another form of farm relief would be for picnic parties to pick up the litter they leave on the farmer's land.

The greatest exhibition of pure nerve was that of the woman who asked the police to search for her stolen beer.

Ten thousand Hungarians are still held in Siberia as prisoners of Russia. Thus the great World war is not fully over.

Experience is worth lots of money. At least the experience we have gotten has been worth lots to the people who sold it to us.

At the present rate of progress, America should have a complete network of concrete highways by the time everybody takes to the air.

Mr. Donahey is rapping the tax amendment, but then during his own administrations Honest Vic wasn't such great shakes as a tax expert.

Now that the self-extinguishing cigarette is being developed, daughter can toss her's safely behind the door when Victorian papa comes home.

It is said that there is one girl in Plattsmouth who is so old fashioned that she won't drink out of a bottle but always insists on having a glass and a chaser.

In behalf of the bare backed and bare-legged fad it is said that exposing the skin to the sunlight develops a cheerful disposition. Maybe that's why cows are so contented.

Its one "shower" after another for Florence Trumbull and John Coolidge. From one to six or eight years hence, it will be something else instead of "showers," don't you think?

An inventor has devised a golf ball which makes a humming noise when it is lost. Now if you can find a similar attachment for collar buttons and office scissors we can put him next to a couple of customers.

While the parking problem appears to be a source of worry to city officials and car owners, the following piece of advice handed out by an exchange appears to be timely: "Never leave the rear wheels of your car parked on a pedestrian."

Don't multiply trouble by unnecessary worrying.

Working under difficulties may be said as to our tariff framers.

A fool woman is one who believes all the fool things a man says when he is in love.

Yale scientists say that there are 507 situations which make men peevish. They listed, perhaps, only the serious ones.

Considering that the gyroscope compass held the Graf on a straight and true course, why not equip Congress with one?

They always attempt to keep the plot of a new play secret until the opening night. And they often keep it a secret afterwards.

A recent murder trial in Ohio emphasizes the fact that you don't have to fear censors if you put on your show where the admission is free.

One way to bring about law enforcement is to develop a breed of people so decent that they won't need laws. And the will come the millennium.

The equivalent of the pot calling the kettle black, is for a man who wears a derby all summer to talk sarcastically about women wearing summer furs.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson says that the Democrats fairly reek with sin. A preacher who would make such a statement is not altogether sinless himself and he knows it.

This is the season when members of the Greek letter fraternities are undergoing the most terrific mental strain of the entire college year. They are thinking up new methods of hazing the initiates.

In every popular country are large areas of non-used land but by reclamation they can be made cultivatable. In Italy 5,000,000 acres south of Rome are to be reclaimed, and this is only a beginning.

The presidential election for Mexico is slated for November, with two active candidates and a dark horse intimated. Later there may be thrillers from our southern neighbors. The candidates may be fighting for parity.

Great Britain's naval tonnage exceeds that of the United States by 51,260 tons. Until Premier MacDonald is ready to put his government on a fifty-fifty basis with Uncle Sam, it is useless to talk about further disarmament.

Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League convalescent from illness admits that he has been taking a tonic containing 23 per cent alcohol. A good quality of port wine would have served the same purpose.

It may not be a bad suggestion that states have compulsory school laws, allow for private education by permitting an examination for fitness. Some of the laws are too drastic, making no allowance for home education, often superior.

A PROPOSED U. S. OF EUROPE

Briand of France is now credited with favoring a United States of Europe. Briand is again prime minister of France, succeeding Poincare, who sacrificed himself through his heroism in prevailing upon his country to settle its enormous debt to the United States, and from his high position such a statement is sure to command attention. However, Briand declares that in such advocacy he has not the slightest idea of in anywise causing any economic friction or trouble in thus advising Europe to follow our example. The reasoning of Briand tells him that if such a union can be formed, present troubles would disappear, and old water marks with their racial hatreds and prejudices would be obliterated. But there are difficulties all along the line, not insurmountable if these old hatreds and prejudices could be effaced. Then again to be taken into account is the problem of so many forms of government. There are monarchies, some with constitutional governments, some without, a lot of republics and alleged republics, with a great wart on the eastern front called the Soviet republic of Russia. Then Spain and Italy have dictators, with Turkey not far from it. Thus monarchies, republics and dictatorships.

For all this, if Briand pushes his idea of a European United States, it will be taken up more or less, and if till agitated with conviction would increase in favor, for Europe is not the fruitful ground our 13 colonies were.

With a United States of Europe the well being and happiness of the world would surely be advanced. For one thing there would be an end of wars on that continent. The conditions of the people would be improved, the conditions of life materially altered for the better and with nothing but friendly rivalries existing between the states. The people would be sovereigns.

It is a most pleasant picture, with Prime Minister Briand of France preparing to arrange the canvas and apply the brush. We can only help by our example, for it would be most unwise for us to insert ourselves thus in the affairs of Europe, and any such propaganda on our part would at once be resented, for what else could be looked for? Our line of procedure is to look pleasant and attend to our own business.

THE VALUE OF RESEARCH

Gen. J. J. Carty, vice-president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, says that, but for the great improvements in electric power and lighting due to scientific research in industrial laboratories, the electric current which the public is now using would cost $2,000,000,000 more per year than it does. This assumes, however, that the public would use as much current as it now uses, the only difference being that it would be much more expensive, produced under the older methods. That assumption will hardly bear inspection. Under such prices, electric lights, cooking appliances, flat irons, sweepers, sewing machines, washing machines, refrigerators, etc., would be out of the question for a vast number of families of only moderate means in which they are now in daily use.

In place of spending $2,000,000,000 more per year, then, if it had not been for the scientific research improving the method of producing and applying electric current, some millions of our people, and especially the women, would be doing their housework by the same tedious and exhausting methods of old, instead of the quicker and easier methods made possible by electricity.

THE GREAT ARE HUMBLE

"I am the happiest, proudest, and humblest woman in the world today," Lady Drummond-Hay, completing her round-the-world trip on the Graf Zeppelin, is quoted as saying:

"Happy, because I am here, on the terra firma after the pioneer adventure of flying around the world."

"Proud, because circumstances elected me as the representative of my sex on this history-making air voyage."

"Humble, because our long flights across the great spaces of the world—the Atlantic, Siberia, and the Pacific—have brought me some faint realization of the Power of God."

The more men and women know about the universe the more they marvel at the greatness of the Power behind it, the Creator of it all.

The more puny minds listen to themselves deny the existence of God the more they become impressed with their own importance.

The truly great are always humble. The vastness of the universe to them is but one overwhelming proof of the existence of God.

A RELATED DISCOVERY

A Chicago correspondent makes the disclosure on his part that the farmer is not the "hick" he is sometimes represented to be, the subject of a press dispatch, in which he states that the coming of the telephone, radio, good roads, automobiles, and long distance travel through every section of the country, has brought with it a great change in the farmer and he can no longer be told by his dress, and manners.

The fact is that the representation of the farmer made in cartoon and story has always been very far from the facts. There are elements in all classes of people that are backward, and the fact that they are so manifested by them wherever they go, but one does not have to go to the rural sections of the state to find the sort. The proportion is rather lower among the farmers than among people of other occupations.

Newspapers, books, magazines, and educational means generally are at the hands of the people who live on the farm, just as they are in the reach of the residents of the cities and towns and because the farm residents are not so much distracted by the lighter forms of diversion as city people, they make fuller and better use of these facilities, and man for man are undoubtedly better informed as to the things worth knowing than their city cousins. And as to the conventions of good society, they suffer not at all in comparison with people from the cities.

The farmer does not wear a Prince Albert coat and a high hat when he works in his fields, to be sure, but such things are not seen in the shop and stores of the cities either. Make fun of the business magnate if you want to; the teacher, the preacher, the lawyer, and even the editor, but let's not mock the man who clothes and feeds us, especially when there is absolutely no hook of fact on which to hang our alleged humor.

ORIGIN OF THE INDIAN

Dr. Hrdlicka clings to his theory that the American Indian is of Asian origin, though he admits that the contention not yet has become a matter definitely susceptible of scientific proof.

It would seem that his theory, however, is somewhat more the speculative. The Indian physiologically indicates an eastern origin. One of the Lost Tribes of Israel. In the main he is a monotheist. Before corruption by white influence, he demonstrated many of the nobler virtues. In one respect he has from the beginning been different, nonpolygamous, and in this superior to his confederated forebears.

It needed not the idealizations of Cooper and Catlin and Longfellow to imagine the Indian noble, courageous, just, of surpassing fortitude, a true lover and loyal to admitted obligations. He was all of that until he was degraded to be something else by the coming of invincible white conqueror.

But in some far beginning it is not difficult to believe with Dr. Hrdlicka that the red man came from Asia by way of Alaska. It could easily have so happened. It is not strange that the "missing link" indicating this probability not yet has been discovered. This supposed emigration conceivably may have taken place a million or more years ago.

Perhaps some day the rivers and the hills will give up this secret, so long buried under the flood of years. As Dr. Hrdlicka believes and to which end he so patiently and persistently continues to work.

Chas. M. Schwab, steel king, has been summoned to appear before the Senate committee investigating causes of the failure of the Geneva naval limitation conference. All who believe Charley is going to tell everything he knows are cordially invited to stand on their heads.

Don't fail to ask a man for advice if you wish to flatter him.

Senator Borah as chairman of the foreign relations committee, is second in influence only to that of the president. He should be careful as to his statements, which a writer said should not deal in half truths. Borah is supposed to tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth. However, he may get as near to the thing as a lot of the rest of them.
