HAS A CLOSE CALL

From Saturday's Daily—

Last evening Calamer Leosis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leosis of the Royal cafe, had a very close call from a dangerous if not fatal accident while she was running across Main street near Fifth. "Kelly," as the little girl is known, had started across the street and without looking and she came onto the line of traffic very suddenly and into the path of a small truck whose driver could not see the child until she was right on him and then the little girl hesitated to stop or go ahead and was struck apparently by the bumper of the truck and knocked down but the driver of the truck had been able to get his truck speed down by this time and the blow was not severe. Several bad bruises and lacerations were sustained where the child struck the paving but otherwise she was apparently not injured. The accident was one in which the driver of the truck was blameless.

Trucking Law Enforcement is Hard Problem

Commercial Truckers With Live Stock From Other States Are Offering Protest On Law

The Nebraska law and regulation that requires licenses from the state of Nebraska on commercial trucks from other states that are operating in the state is raising a very difficult problem in the centers where there are packing plants, particularly at Omaha and Nebraska City, the packing centers of the state.

The outstate truckers have been enforced over the law which is now being enforced through this state and its full import is realized when a number of trucks have been compelled to secure licenses from this state, two of this case being in this city a few days ago.

One of the chief points of protest over the law and the regulations that it prescribes is at Nebraska City where the Morton-Gregson packing plant at that place receives large shipments of hogs by truck from Iowa, Missouri and Kansas at the packing house each day and the truck owners that are in the habit of hauling the stock are making a decided protest in the matter.

The outstate truck owners are threatening retaliations for the law in taking their stock shipments to St. Joseph and Kansas City and not delivering to the South Omaha or Nebraska City markets.

The regulation does not apply to farmers who haul their own stock or occasionally that of a neighbor to the market, but to the commercial truck lines.

The situation at Nebraska City where a large number of trucks and busses were held for proper licensing has been added to by the visit of W. E. Groneweg, Iowa motor division inspector, there on Friday and who made a state as to the attitude that his state and others might be expected to take in regard to the law.

"If Nebraska persists in enforcing the regulation," Mr. Groneweg said at the court house, "we shall put a man at the Iowa end of the river bridge and require every Nebraska commercial truck doing business in our state to buy a truck license. Your truckmen will complain, too, when they find out what our state charges for a motor license. It is considerably higher than the fee charged in Nebraska."

Mr. Groneweg was told at the court house that no local authority had begun enforcement of the law here. "The first intimation we had that the law was being enforced," County Treasurer Kelly told the Iowa inspector, "was when Harry Ayers, representing the Nebraska highway department, visited us the other day and told us that interstate commercial trucks and busses must have Nebraska licenses if their owners operate within the state. He called attention to the amended law which went into effect last summer."

Mr. Groneweg said he would get in touch at once with his superiors in Des Moines and suggests a conference with Roy L. Cochran, secretary of the Nebraska highway department in the hope that out of it might come some sort of a reciprocal agreement which would create a better feeling among the commercial truckmen on each side of the river.

WILL HAVE NICE HOME

The Johnnae man was at the home of John Knabe east of Weeping Water on Friday of this week, and there found a coterie of workmen busy in the building of the home. The contract for the building of the home is had by J. A. Scotten who is sure a finished building, and the plans and specifications of the building were of his design, and consists of a full basement, being 26x28, and two stories, with a most cleverly arranged interior, with the dining rooms and kitchen on the south side of the building. The upper story consists of four chambers and with a closet for each one. On the east extending the full end of the building and eight feet in width is a sleeping porch, and so arranged that it can be utilized both winter and summer. Mr. Scotten has assisting him in the building of the house, Fred L. Hill and James E. Gruber. The master lather, George Park, is doing the lathing of the building. Clarence Hansen did the wiring and will install the heating plant and the plumbing and will also install the lighting fixtures.

CORN PICKERS BUSY

The past week which has given us some good weather in this part of Nebraska has seen the corn shuckers out in practically every field in this country, to try and get as much of the corn picked and in the cribs as possible in case bad weather interferes with this work as it did last fall to a greater or less extent. The yield of the corn in this immediate vicinity will be as heavy as can be found in the state and in fact this section has a crop that is as good or better than in recent years. In many parts of the state the corn was badly damaged by the lack of moisture in the late summer but here the damage due to the hot days of August did practically but little damage according to those who have been looking over the 1929 crop.

SCRIPPS KIDNAPING BOAST INVESTIGATED
Windsor, Ont., Nov. 6.—A racketeer's reputed boast that William J. Scripps, 24, of Detroit, had been kidnaped and that newspapers would not publish the story is being investigated here.

IS MUCH BETTER

Mrs. W. A. Royal who has been visiting in Omaha for some time past where she was visiting with her brother, Charles Ellington, who on October 28th was very severely injured, when he was struck by a taxi cab.

An aged man was about to be struck by the taxi, when it was observed by Mr. Ellington, who rushed to save the man, and having pushed the man to safety, was struck by the cab himself, and very severely injured. He was taken to the Lord Lister hospital where he has been since.

It was doubtful for many days whether he would survive or not, but recently he has been showing much improvement and it is hoped he will be able in a short time to be removed to his home. Mrs. Royal and her brother, Charles Ellington are all that is now left of a large pioneer family. The father, Wm. Ellington, being the first sheriff of this county. The late J. C. Ellington was also a son of this pioneer. Seventy-five years ago at the time of a treaty which was made with the Indians, and in celebration of the treaty, Mr. Ellington was the man selected to roast the ox for the feast which was a feature of the making of peace. It was the intention of Mr. Ellington and sister, Mrs. W. A. Royal to have rode in the historical parade, and on account of the injury which was received they could not appear. At the time of the making of this treaty the family lived at Bellevue.

MacDonald is Pleased with U. S. Reception

Says Americans at Heart Are Sympathetic with Aims of British People

London, Nov. 8.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told the National Labor club tonight that "the American people are understanding us."

"It is not merely a handshake of politeness," he assured the members in the first informal impression he has given of his recent American visit. The audience cheered his remarks.

"In my whole life I never met people who can be more enthusiastic in the welcome they give a stranger than the people of the United States and Canada have shown themselves to be. It was great."

Credit to Ishbel.
Mr. MacDonald gave much credit for his success to his daughter and companion, Ishbel.

"I could not have done the work I did, could not have carried through the duties placed upon me, could not have got a hold on the American mind had it not been for her," he said.

"It was rather amusing that the favorite anthem next to 'God Save the King,' with which I was greeted was 'Rule Britannia.' I have always believed the American people to be a generous people."

People Sympathetic.
The prime minister said he discovered at once that "the American people at heart are sympathetic with the British people. It was discovered that the hope of naval disarmament, or at least naval reduction, and a great world movement toward disarmament was part and parcel of American social religion, and that when someone went to see them with some sort of authority behind them, the American people rose gladly and gave the most cordial welcome."—World-Herald.

Norris Hurt; Fights on for Farmer Aid

Recovering From Painful Injuries, He Wins One Skirmish in His Campaign

Washington, Nov. 6.—Senator George W. Norris (R.) of Nebraska, veteran insurgent leader of the senate, Friday was recovering painful bruises suffered when he was knocked from his automobile near the capitol Thursday night.

A sprained wrist and a badly bruised leg was the extent of the senator's injuries.

He had assumed, however, in spite of his injuries, the mantle of leader of the Democratic-Progressive coalition in a fight to prevent tariff boosts upon articles which farmers of the nation buy.

Spoils Plan
Using the Republican "five and ten store" to illustrate his speech, Norris charged the Republicans with seeking to place an embargo against foreign imports to touch the new tariff. His speech spoiled the plan of tariff leaders to use the merchandise to illustrate protectionist speeches.

Norris cited the tremendous profits accruing to importers on various articles. He demonstrated with clay bowls, books and violins, but cited how the articles carried duties ranging from 40 to 80 per cent.

Declaring he is standing by the Republican platform adopted at Kansas City, the Nebraskan announced he would assail every rate increase which would lift the farmer's cost of doing business.

Wins Skirmish
Norris had already waged a successful floor battle to prevent an increase upon some kinds of wire fencing and wire netting, which he asserted would increase the farmer's cost of doing business.

The chief supporter of the higher duty was Senator Bingham of Connecticut, censured by the senate for placing a representative of the Connecticut Manufacturers association in the secret meetings of the finance committee. Norris fathered the resolution of censure.

He was ready to advance his tariff theory again in opposition to larger duties on hinges and butts, kitchen ware, needles and hooks, thumb tacks and other items.

Keeps Fighting
Having denied the plea of steel companies to place manganese ore on the free list, and slashed proposed increase in duties on structural steel and wire netting, the senate whittled away at other items of the meals schedule today.

There appeared to be little fight left in the "old guard" wing of the Republicans but their refusal to yield votes continued to make headway progress on the tariff bill.

Perhaps the most severe blow suffered by the Republicans was the defection of several members on the manganese and structural steel tariff schedules.—Bee-News.

THE MESSIAH

Although it has been 198 years since the Oratorio, "Messiah" was composed by Handel, and first given in Dublin, there has never been a better one written. When Queen Victoria heard it in London, she stood with bowed head during the Hallelujah chorus, recognizing a king of greater power than the throne she occupied, hence the custom of standing during this chorus.

Mr. Logan of Omaha is making a great effort to give Omaha and surrounding towns a musical production that will not only be a real treat to the audience, but also be a contribution to the highest class of religious music. It requires untiring work on his part. He works through his regular day, and puts in every night and Sunday hours. Different places drilling choruses for this Oratorio.

The Plattsmouth chorus is making fine progress which proves that we have people here who can sing and love to sing. There are one hundred and thirty-five members here in this chorus. Next Sunday they will practice in Omaha with the rest of the choruses, making one grand chorus of a thousand members.

This Oratorio will be given in Omaha on the night of Dec. 16th at the auditorium and Mr. Minor has charge of the tickets which can now be reserved. Plattsmouth people have first choice over Omaha if you order them now. The major parts will be sung by soloists of nationwide fame. The Omaha Symphony Orchestra will play the accompaniment. They are predicting a full house at the auditorium.

VICTORY FOR M. W. A.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 8.—The head camp of the Modern Woodmen of America won another round in that organization's internal fight today when Garfield Brown, state insurance commissioner, refused to cancel the order's license in Minnesota.

Cancellation of the license was sought by St. Anthony Hill camp, Minneapolis, after the head camp in Illinois had ignored a demand that it file a roster of names and addresses of officials and all subordinate lodges with the insurance commissioner's office.

PUTTING LIFE INTO HATCHING EGGS

"Select breeders in the fall. Know which ones you are going to keep and manage them so that they will produce plenty of hatchable eggs when you want them," says a feature article in the Winter Laying number of the "Poultryman."

From the very start to the very end, this article is filled with suggestion that should be helpful to any poultry raiser interested in getting more chicks from every hatch.

In selecting breeders, the article points out that you should first feel satisfied with the production of your birds for the past season. It at all dissatisfied, you should go out and buy males or buy chick stock this coming spring. Stress is put on a high egg record back of the hen to be used as a breeder.

"The head should be well proportioned and clean cut. The eye should be large, flashy and bright. Your best breeders will usually be your latest molters—and your rapid molters. They seem to lay right up into cold October and November days, then drop all their feathers at once. The beak and shanks should be well bleached out in the yellow skinned varieties. The birds should have a reasonable solid body feeling, even at the end of a year's production. A bird too thin as she goes into the molt will find it doubly hard to recover in time to be of much good as a breeder."

"A hen cannot be conditioned for a strenuous breeding season in a week or two any more than a cow can be fitted for the show ring in the same length of time," continues the article. "The ability of a hen to throw livable chicks after her own kind is determined by the feeding management the three months previous to the breeding season. Give hens sufficient rest and feed them into good condition so they can put their vigor in hatching eggs."
