I, Earl Towle, secretary and treasurer of the Cass County Agricultural Society, swear that the above report is correct to the best of my knowledge.

Signed this 2nd day of Oct., 1929. Auditing Committee: CARL E. DAY, S. J. AMBLER, EARL TOWLE, Sec.-Treas.

The secretary-treasurer gave a short talk on different departments of the 1929 fair. Most of the superintendents being present responded very good and had many things to offer for the betterment of their departments.

Mr. E. E. Day, superintendent of horses and mules, gave a very interesting talk on his department. Setting out the facts that this department has not only grown in numbers but in quality to the extent that many of the exhibits were eligible to be shown at the state fair or at any national show.

Mr. Henry Snell gave a very interesting outline of the cattle exhibit in which Mr. Snell is superintendent. It seems in this department competition is so keen and that more interest is taken each year. Mr. Snell remarked that those wishing to enter in this department for the next year's show should make out their entries reserving stalls as, no doubt, this department will be crowded another year.

Mr. T. L. Davis, superintendent of the agricultural and fruit department as well as the history department. The big feature was Mr. Davis outlined the boys and girls who made entries in this department, looking to the future of the county fair and that the boys and girls who are taking an active part in the present day fair, no doubt, will be the outstanding exhibitors in the future.

Mrs. C. E. Pool gave a very interesting talk on the domestic products department. When we stop to think that there were 478 entries in this department and that every one making an exhibit in this department had no trouble in getting their exhibits back or any mistake made on entry or classification, the fair management wants to thank Mrs. Pool and her efficient help for handling this department in this fine way.

Mrs. Fred Smith, superintendent of the women's department and needle work gave a very interesting outline of this department. With 270 entries we agree with her that this is a very attractive department. The fair management believes that Mrs. Smith is very efficient in this department, and is willing to co-operate with her in better and more equipment to take care of this department.

Mrs. Fred Gorder, superintendent of the educational department, held the floor for some little time giving an outline of the exhibits and premiums offered in this department. This department has been changed from time to time the last year, being the first time cash premiums were offered as prizes. The management of the fair feels as though this department is not going forward as it should.

Miss Jessie Baldwin, assistant county extension agent, was superintendent of the 4-H girls club work. There were 207 entries in this department which was all the space she had for exhibit. This department has grown very much in the past few years. Miss Baldwin was very thankful for the extra equipment furnished in her department for the hanging of the clothing exhibit. The new equipment eliminated lots of work and at the same time made a better display of the club work. Miss Baldwin feels very proud of her department and hopes to make it better for the 1930 fair.

D. D. Wainwright, county extension agent and superintendent of the boys 4-H club work shows very interesting and competitive livestock by these Cass county boys. This department covers pig club, dairy calf, baby beef, and poultry, all of which is very interesting. And some of the exhibitors in the open class hate to see the 4-H club boys showing for premiums as they usually carry away the blue ribbons. Mr. Wainwright feels that there will be a better and bigger show in the 4-H club work in 1930 than ever before.

Mrs. J. W. Carter, who has been superintendent since the beginning of the fair, gave a very interesting talk on this subject. She in turn introduced Mrs. D. D. Wainwright, who was superintendent of that department this year. There were 52 entries in this department, and every one of these entries becomes an individual exhibit. The judging and scoring in this department is very particular work, as these entries are one of the outstanding features of our fair, and those carrying away the grand champion ribbons are very happy parents in our county.

Mrs. Wainwright being new in our community, spoke highly of our people and their attitude toward co-operation in this department. Because when the final score sheets were completed and sent out every one seemed satisfied. The fair management feels very proud to have a lady like Mrs. Wainwright at the head of this department.

Mrs. S. J. Ambler was called for next. She not being present the secretary gave a report on this department. In former years this department had not shown very much progress, but for the year 1929 this department made a gain of about 1200% and we were sorry that Mrs. Ambler could not be present to give us a better outline, and cause for the large increase in entries.

In the fine arts department Mrs. Fred Burch had one of the outstanding exhibits of the county fair. There being 78 entries in the majority of these entries come from different homes and exhibitors throughout the county. This being Mrs. Burch's first year in this department and taking up the work at the last minute, the fair management feels they made no mistake in selecting Mrs. Burch for this department. Mrs. Burch, being an artist herself in fine arts work, was well adapted in placing these exhibits to make a very fine showing. She was also very well pleased with the work, and no doubt, with more time will make this one of the outstanding show rooms of the fair for 1930.

Mr. W. O. Ogden, superintendent of the bees and honey department, gave a very interesting talk on the department as well as the history and manners of the little bees that make the honey that has made this department a sweet place to visit.

As in some of the other departments, Mr. Ogden delights to work and talk about bees and honey. And every one visiting this department and interested in bees and honey could get a good deal of first hand information on how to care for bees as well as the finished product.

The superintendent of the livestock and school floats parade gave a very elaborate talk. This department was handled by D. H. Switzer. The livestock parade is one of the big features of the closing day of the fair. Along with this comes the school floats that are so nicely decorated by the school children of the rural districts of the county. There were 14 entries for this parade but on account of the inclement weather only 5 of this number were able to get in for the parade. Woodlawn Rebekah lodge No. 22 of Weeping Water, Nebraska, had a very outstanding float in the parade. There were also a number of the local automobile dealers showing some of their latest models that helped to make the parade a success.

The superintendent in charge made a statement to the effect that should the weather have been fine, the line of parade would have reached more than a mile in length. The fair management feels greatly indebted to Mr. Switzer as this is one of the hardest things to handle of the whole fair. And they feel very proud of Mr. Switzer for taking a great interest in making this parade one of the outstanding features of our county fair.

At the close of the superintendents reports Ray Norris, D. D. Wainwright, and Elmer Hallstrom wanted to know how they could become members of the Cass County Agricultural Society. They were willing to join such an organization in the furthering of a good cause. And the meeting was held for just a moment while the three above named gentlemen paid over their $5 membership fees and became full fledged boosters and members. Elmer Hallstrom who lives at Avoca, and cashier of the Farmers State bank, whose motto is "Safety Plus Good Service." Mr. Hallstrom gave a very interesting talk from the viewpoint of the outsider. Praising the advancement of the county fair for the last 10 years. He further stated he could see no reason why 50 new members should not be added to the membership. And, no doubt, Mr. Hallstrom will be a big asset to our membership.

Mrs. Ray Norris, an outstanding exhibitor in the poultry show, gave a very interesting talk. Mrs. Norris not only exhibits her flock of White Rocks at our county fair, but shows at many of the leading fairs of the middle west. Mrs. Norris is very well pleased with the treatment she has received at the county fair. She also states that the fair as a whole has made great progress in all departments and is willing to do all she can to make the 1930 fair a bigger and better show.

D. D. Wainwright, county extension agent, gave a very interesting talk along the line of having a four-day fair. This being his first year with county fair work, also being his first year in our county, feels as though the fair is too big a proposition to crowd into a three-day program. Mr. Wainwright, being a new member on the fair board, and this being a matter for them to decide on, no doubt, something along this line will be worked out at a later date.

The fair management was well pleased with this meeting and its results. There was about 40 of the members and superintendents present. They were just seating themselves around the tables for the elaborate banquet when M. S. Briggs, field man for the Plattsmouth Journal, called over long distance and regretted very much that he was unable to get to the meeting on account of bad roads. It is remembered by the fair management that Mr. Briggs was always on the job as the Journal had charge of printing the premium list for last year. In so doing we find that the Journal was telling the people of Cass county during the whole year about the coming event known as the Cass county fair. The fair management is very sorry that Mr. Briggs was unable to attend this meeting as he would have realized a reward for the work he has done for the success of the county fair.

In closing, President Carsten made a very good talk and thanking all who had taken an active part in making the fair a success. He also made special mention of the courtesy shown by the management of the Rest Haven Hotel in serving the splendid banquet and turning over the large dining room for the meeting. He also hoped that another meeting similar to the one just held could be arranged for at some future date.
