Flyer Lost in a Blizzard Over Route

Lindbergh Leads Search to Old Friend's Wrecked Ship; Cargo Found Undamaged.

Cleveland, Dec. 5.—The body of Pilot Thomas P. Nelson, of the National Air Transport, and his wrecked plane, were found Thursday in a field 35 miles southwest of this city. Nelson's plane crashed last Monday while he was flying the mail from Bellefont, Pa., to Cleveland when he became lost in a blinding snowstorm that swept the route.

The discovery of the body and plane ends one of the largest and most intensive searches ever held for a lost pilot.

Lindbergh Aids.

More than 20 old-time pilots, led by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, had covered more than 150 miles of territory since Nelson was reported lost.

The body, thrown clear of the plane wreckage, was found by a hunter. The wreckage lay hidden in a ravine approximately 30 feet from a main highway along which hundreds of automobiles pass daily.

Was Old-Line Pilot.

Nelson, one of the old-line pilots of the National Air Transport was at one time a flying buddy of Lindbergh's on the old Chicago-St. Louis run.

It was first believed that Nelson had been forced over the Pennsylvania mountains by the blizzard and it was over the mountain sections that the search has concentrated.

Fire did not follow the crash and although the plane was destroyed its cargo was not materially damaged. Nelson had been thrown approximately 50 feet when his craft struck the ground and is believed to have died instantly.—Omaha Bee-News.

MOB SEARCHING FOR NEGRO

Middleton, Tenn.—Several hundred men were searching woods near here Thursday night for an unidentified negro claimed to have slashed and attempted to attack a thirteen year old school girl.

Altho her tongue was slashed by the negro, the girl was able to tell officers that the negro waylaid her Thursday as she was walking home from school and stabbed her. Her screams attracted Maynard Newland, a farmer, and the negro fled. As word of the attack spread a mob formed and at 8:30 several hundred men were divided in several posses and seeking the negro.

The girl was cut across the chin and about the body and was badly bruised. Newland said her clothes had been torn from her body. She was taken to her father's home, a guard placed about the house.

A telephone call to New Albany, Miss., brought a pack of bloodhounds, and they were placed on the negro's trail.

Arrest Suspect in Benson Bank Robbing Case

Omaha Police Make Arrest of Man in Rooming House Friday on Tip from Woman.

James B. Rowe, 27, who says he is a taxi driver from Kansas City, was identified Friday at Omaha by two tellers of the Farmers and Merchants bank, Benson, as one of the six bandits who held up the bank Nov. 14, escaping with more than $15,000.

Rowe was captured through efforts of Thomas O'Leary, a William J. Burns Detective agency operative from Kansas City.

A woman scorned gave the tip that led to Rowe's arrest, O'Leary said. The woman telephoned the bank tipping off Rowe's hiding place, and the bank informed the Burns Detective agency in Kansas City, but didn't pass the information on to Omaha police.

In Rowe's room, O'Leary said, was found a very endearing letter from an Omaha woman. Whether this letter is from the same woman who tipped off the bank or from some other, detectives are in doubt. O'Leary said he believes the other five in the bandit gang have left Omaha, but Rowe remained for some reason.

May Know Gang.

The woman letter writer, O'Leary said, may know the reason, and the identity of some others of the bandit gang.

William S. Hinz and Harry B. Golden picked out Rowe in 12 men on a "showup" Friday morning. They declared they know positively that Rowe is one of the four bandits in the bank, by his face, voice and manner.

County Attorney Henry Beal said their identification, with a half dozen bits of other evidence, is sufficient to justify robbery charges being brought against Rowe.

Rowe, who roomed at 3324 Harney street, was asleep in bed, with his hands under the covers, the detectives said. They commanded him to throw up his hands.

They pulled back the covers, and discovered Rowe was fully clothed, with an old .44 revolver under his belt and a new .45 under his pillow.

From the wall of the Benson bank one of the two bullets fired there was extracted, Inspector Ben F. Danbaum said, and compared with bullets fired from Rowe's .45. Danbaum and O'Leary declare the groovings on the bullets are the same, indicating the bullet in the Benson bank was fired from Rowe's gun.

Handkerchief Found.

A bloodstained handkerchief found in the bandit car was the same kind of handkerchief that Rowe carried, Danbaum said, and a bloodstained hat believed to have been abandoned by the bandit crowd when they unloaded their guns in an alley behind the Sanitary laundry, 2515 Farnam street, fits Rowe perfectly.

Rowe declared he is a sort of drifter and had the guns because a friend gave them to him to keep.

Mrs. Ruth Beal, 3336 Harney street, Omaha, who operates the rooming house where Rowe was arrested, Friday denied any knowledge of Rowe, except as being a roomer at her home.

"Rowe rented a room at my home early in May and lived here ever since.

"I do not remember the date of the Benson bank robbery, but my daughter, Dorothy, 13, said she remembers Rowe was home all day on the day of the robbery.

"We were talking about the case Thursday night, and Dorothy said she is positive Rowe was home the day of the robbery, as she was sick, and he sat on a davenport and listened to the radio with her most of the day."

Rowe denies he had anything to do with the Benson robbery, but came to Omaha "just drifting around."

KILLED BY SCHOOL TEACHER

Madisonville, Tenn.—The whipping of a little girl in school Thursday led to the death of her father and the arrest of the school teacher, Phillip Lee, teacher at Sutton chapel school, Monroe county, told Sheriff Kennedy he whipped the child soon after she arrived at school this morning. When she returned home at noon she told her father, Charlie Young, the parent obtained a slub and went to the school, where a fight started. Lee said he fired twice with a revolver he had taken from his desk and Young fell dead. Several pupils substantiated Lee's story.

The sheriff went to the settlement, fifteen miles from Madisonville after Lee had arrived at the jail to surrender. The officer found Young lying on the floor with the frightened children huddled outside the building. Lee was held in jail.

Dairy Heads Ask Separate State Bureau

Present Arrangement Brings Industry Under Department of Agriculture Rulings

Lincoln, Dec. 6.—Nebraska co-operative creamery interests repeated their request Friday to Governor Weaver for the establishment of a separate state dairy bureau.

Dissatisfied with the present arrangement whereby this industry comes under the scope of the Department of Agriculture, the dairymen first broached the idea to Governor Weaver about six months ago, George O'Malley of Greeley, secretary of the state co-operative association said.

"He stated then he was sympathetic with the proposal and indicated that he would give it serious consideration when complete data is presented to him," Mr. O'Malley announced.

Under the prevailing system, the former declared, inspection and regulation of co-operative creameries is placed in the hands of inspectors of the pure food and drug department who also carry on inspections of drug stores, cafes, hotels and markets.

Inspection and regulation, he explained, would be conducted without the slightest increase in expense, but would be self-sustaining upon an inspection fee basis.

$50,760,000 Per Year.

It is upon this basis, Mr. O'Malley stated, that the inspection and regulation service is now operated under the department of agriculture.

Dairying interests in 1928, he added, netted $50,760,000 to the state, and the financial returns in 1929 will exceed that amount by $10,000,000.

"This industry is second only to agriculture and livestock," he declared.

Establishment of a dairy bureau, Mr. O'Malley stated, could handily be made by the governor without the authority of legislative action.—Omaha Bee-News.

100 NUDE GIRLS BOOST BOOK SALE

Paris, Dec. 6.—Living exhibitions are the latest things in up-to-date Parisian show windows.

Needless to say, the books sold faster than hot cakes on a February day, the supply being exhausted long before sundown and a dozen or more French gendarmes being called out to keep the sidewalks clear.

Tie Up Town Marshal; Then Ransack Store

Douglas County Car Used in Holdup of Officer at Cedar Bluffs—Woman Aids Robbery

Cedar Bluffs, Neb., Dec. 6.—Night Marshal E. N. Tracy was held up and then tied to a chair inside a garage here early this morning by a man and woman, just before burglary of the John Killian store from which a thousand dollars' worth of merchandise was taken.

The bandits used a car reported stolen Thursday afternoon in Omaha. For accommodation of stray travelers, tourists and emergency needs, Tracy carries a key to the R. L. Brown garage and he is frequently called upon to get gasoline for benighted wayfarers.

"He was not surprised, therefore, when a car passed him about 3:40 a. m. today, then turned and stopped near him as the driver called, 'Is there anywhere we can get gas?'"

Tracy produced his key and opened the garage, and started putting gasoline in the car tank. "That'll be enough," said the man, pushing a gun to his ribs. He was ordered to go into the garage, and then was tied to a chair in a dark corner of the car storage room.

The woman held the gun while the man tied him, Tracy related. "They seemed to know I was an officer without seeing my star," he said. Managing to wriggle free of his bounds in about 15 minutes, Tracy went outside and a few moments later discovered the Killian burglary.

Tracy said the man was about six feet tall, 23 or 25 years old, 165 pounds, dressed in gray suit and cap of fairly good cut; that the woman was small, about 120 pounds, and dark haired. He said she was dressed as a man, in dark clothes, but that he got no good view of her face.

The marshal, 45 years old, has held his present job nearly a year.—World-Herald.
