STATE IRRIGATION ACTIVITIES

The State Board of Control, which now consists of E. T. Westervelt, president, Harry S. Thorp and Mrs. Nellie G. Benson, has control of 17 state institutions in which we have approximately 7,000 wards to clothe, feed and care for.

Mr. Westervelt, being from Scottsbluff and an experienced irrigation man, encouraged irrigation at these institutions so as to provide feed for the stock and vegetables for the wards.

In 1928, the board installed two pumps at Grand Island at a cost of $2500. Each year since then, these wells have more than paid their original cost, and cost of maintenance. This encouraged the board this year to install a larger well—one that throws 1000 gal. per minute. They can now irrigate 300 acres of the section of land at this institution. They plan to sink more wells there.

Early in 1927, pumping outfit was installed at the penitentiary at a cost of $1950. They have been irrigating 80 acres there and plan to extend this plant so to water another 80 acres next season. This plant has paid for itself each year.

At the feeble minded institute at Beatrice, the state has filed on the water of Bear Creek for irrigation purposes and will irrigate 80 acres there next season.

At Geneva, during the past summer a well was installed and 20 acres watered. This well has practically paid for itself in the one season. It is the intention of the board to place another well at that institution in the near future.

Late this fall, contracts were let for three 14-inch wells at the state hospital at Hastings. From two to four hundred acres will be watered there during the coming year. The board is confident this venture will pay for itself, judging from the experience they have had since taking up irrigation in 1926.

At Kearney, 320 acres have been irrigated for several years from the ditch.

The board is trying to raise vegetables and garden truck enough to supply the institutions under their control, thereby holding down our taxes. Nothing raised at these institutions is sold to the public, but surpluses are transferred to other institutions.

The board of control is to be especially commended for the efficient way in which they have handled irrigation, and the splendid success they have attained.

CAPTURE OF IOWA CONVICT Sioux City—The freedom James Davis won from the state penitentiary at Fort Madison has ended, eight years to the day from the time he escaped, presumably by hiding in a load of cinders being taken from the prison yards. The convicted slayer of James Britton, Sioux City detective, was captured Saturday by the Canadian mounted police at Vancouver, B. C., and will be returned to the Fort Madison penitentiary by a prison guard sent there by Warden Hollowell. Davis escaped Dec. 7, 1921. He was identified from a circular issued by Iowa officials five years ago, offering $500 for his capture.

The capture of Davis added another chapter to the long story of the Burzette gang which terrorized northwest Iowa in the spring and summer of 1919. Murders, robberies and other crimes were laid at the door of the gang by officers, who sought vainly to halt its activities. Davis was convicted of second degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Christianity in Business
"Luke says: 'As you would that men should do to you, do you also to them likewise.' This you do and you are near right. The world says to the church, combine a little business with your church. The church says, combine some Christianity with your business. Now perhaps both have struck, or struck at a key to the matter in question which comes up for solution to the world and the church. You cannot divest the individual of the responsibility which properly lodges with all. You must do unto your fellow as you would expect him to do in like manner to you. There are two sides in all industry, for they are confronted with each other in all questions. The world of business had an essential idea, as it is looked at, and that is their side of the business.

The Buyer and the Seller
The buyer is ever seeking to get as much for his dollar as he can; the seller is looking to get as many of the dollars for his commodity as he can. The consumer wants to make his dollar go as far as possible in the purchase of the necessities of life. The seller wants to realize as much out of his investment and his time and opportunities as he can, for he considers the overhead and also well knows that there must come a time when his opportunities are over and he must by industry and frugality provide also for his family and those who depend on them.

The Employer and Employee
The employer, when he goes into the world's markets to employ labor which he expects, and justly so at that, to turn into wealth, seeks to drive as shrewd a bargain as a

FARM BUREAU NOTES

Dressing Center Was Second.
A Cass county girl, Alice Leone Ambler of Weeping Water, placed second in the room improvement contest at the International Club Congress at Chicago. The dressing center consisted of five pieces and cost Alice Leone $5.60. The table part was made of two orange crates. These crates, an old mirror and a stool, which she had had made, she refinished in ivory. The apron for the table and the lining of the stool, which made a good hat box, were made from sugar sacks which had been dyed in bands dyed green. An old lard pail finished in ivory and stippled in green made an attractive waste basket. A hand braided rag rug, a refinished ivory toilet set, and a refinished ivory side of the mirror completed the dressing center. This dressing center will help to make a very attractive bedroom and is one Alice Leone may well feel proud of.

Direction for Dry Curing Meat.
Following is a method of dry curing meat recommended in Nebraska Extension Circular 225, "Farm Slaughter of Hogs." This circular, available at offices of county extension agents, also contains other methods of conserving pork.

The dry cure is more rapid than the brine cure, requires less equipment and there is no danger of brine spoilage. Salt is the principal dry cure. The meat is rubbed thoroughly with a high grade of salt. It is then filled on a bench or table or packed in a box or barrel. Pieces should be packed to retain their shape. Within a short time after the meat has been rubbed for the first time the cure will be absorbed and a bloody liquor will run off the meat.

Six days after the first rubbing the meat should be rubbed again and "overhauled." Entirely repack the meat so that no two pieces remain in contact in the same way too long. Overhauling insures a uniform cure. In seven or eight days the bulk should be broken and the pieces overhauled again. For best results, overhaul the meat three times. Leave the meat in the dry cure two days per pound-weight of piece.

For those who prefer a sugar cure, one-fourth as much sugar as salt may be added. An excellent curing formula known as the Virginia Dry Cure is made up as follows for one hundred pounds of meat: 4 pounds salt; 1 pound sugar; 1 oz. red pepper.

This formula is rubbed on the meat and overhauled as suggested.

Annual County Wide Farm Bureau Meeting
The annual county wide farm bureau meeting will be held at Weeping Water Saturday, December 14 beginning at 10 o'clock a. m. at the Congressional church.

The Louisville band will be there. Mr. G. G. Gould and Miss Mary E. Brown of the College of Agriculture at Lincoln will appear on the program. A basket dinner will be served at noon and the suggested menu is: Escalloped potatoes, meat loaf, vegetable, Golden Glow Salad; pickles, jelly, plain bread and butter sandwiches, Cream and sugar for coffee.

In the afternoon Francis Flood will give his motion pictures and talk of his round the world trip.

Every number on the program will be of interest to those co-operating in extension work.—D. D. Wainsett, Co. Ext. Agent; J. H. Baldwin, Asst. Co. Ext. Agent.
