The experience of the Procter & A star detective supplied with the Gamble Co. of Cincinnati, as told in Senate bill would never be able to the March Survey, is in point. Forrush and slack periods and the customary turnover. For example, in 1920, in its factory at Ivorydale, employment fluctuated from a high of 2848 to a low of 1832, a difference of 1016. But in the depression of last year the high enrollment was 2652, the low 2484. The difference has been reduced to 168.

Col. Procter, the president of the company, has explained it:

It is so simple it is almost stupid. We went at unemployment from the workers' point of view. There's so much soap needed every year. Well, then, why not make one-twelfth of that every month? You can shovel off the peaks of your unemployment and fill the valleys. Now isn't that simple? And it has paid better than any other labor thing we've ever done. Paid in dollars and cents and paid in the big value of not having on your conscience the chap who wants work and can't find a job. That is what no business can afford.

The Procter & Gamble people In his search for antiques, Henry wonder they talk about "kindness to "shoveled off the peaks and filled the valleys" by taking over the distribution of their products. They have eliminated the jobber and now sell direct to the dealers. How much unemployment may have resulted in the jobbing area from this departure we do not know. It may be, too, that more accurately than that of many other products. Be that as it may, would be an "easy victim," but the the Procter & Gamble Co. now guarantees its employes 48 weeks of work a year, which for them removes the specter of unemployment .- St. Louis
