pastor of the Baptist church of Union, the crowd was of such proportions that they could not all get into the hall. In speaking about patriotism and other national questions, Rev. Taylor did not leave any doubt as to where he stood on the question of foreign relations, saying that he did not believe it was necessary to ask any foreign country just how we were to govern our own country, and believing that the principal of America for Americans and all questions should be settled by Americans with the idea of making the entire nation one depending on America and the American idea for our own government. His address was listened to with much interest, and his stand on national questions meeting with the approval of all who heard him. The last resting places of the soldier dead of three wars were appropriately decorated.

Attempt Wholesale Stealing.
Some one with chicken coops, and a truck put in quite a bit of time carrying away a number of chickens belonging to Melvin Sturm on last Saturday night, they had a coop well filled and which was found in a corn field near by the following day by R. C. Pollard, and with but one chicken smothered. A sack which was also filled did not fare so well for there were twenty-one in the sack with but one alive. The thieves must have become frightened at someone and fled fearing they were discovered.

Governor is Favoring Four Cent Gas Tax

Governor Lists Savings Made by State Since Revising Code Government System

Lincoln, June 3.—Approving the 4-cent gasoline tax law as "sound and equitable for the conservative needs of a growing state," Governor Arthur J. Weaver Tuesday made public his first comprehensive campaign statement since he filed for re-election in the Republican primaries Aug. 12.

The document is the first of fear to be released through the week, containing, as the executive said, "a complete analysis" of state government. It deals with good roads, the code law and reorganization of state government under his administration.

Convinced of Need
"Many citizens, I among them, were of the opinion that a 3-cent gasoline tax," he said "would have been sufficient and that the additional 1 cent should go for farm-to-market roads."

However, after this question was thoroughly debated in the legislature, it became evident that an additional cent was needed to meet federal aid and to equalize conditions between the counties.

"Accordingly, the new law provides that one-half of the increase, or 1 cent, should go to the counties. This provides, in conjunction with 70 per cent of the auto license money now retained by the counties, approximately $3,000,000 annually for county roads."

"The law also provides that one-half cent be expended for indispensable connections and for equalization between counties. The remaining half cent is not adequate to properly handle the traffic."

Cities Saving
Taking up the code law and his reorganization of state government, Governor Weaver lists the consolidations and savings effected. The department of finance and the office of secretary of finance were abolished and placed under the state tax commissioner. Checking of accounts of all departments under the governor were consolidated under the tax department. This resulted in the reduction of six employees, with a saving for 1929 of $14,600.04, the governor said.

Other consolidations listed:
Fish and game bureau and state park board under new bipartisan game bureau and state park board under new bipartisan game, forestry and parks commission.
Placement of liquidation of all failed bank assets under one department of trade and commerce; abolition of the guarantee fund commission and commitment of responsibilities to secretary of trade and commerce, saving $14,139.95 per annum.

"Under direction of the governor," the document added, "all purchasing, except real-estate purchases, are being handled through the state purchasing department at a great saving. Many articles formerly were purchased without any specifications as to just what had to be furnished. Included under this head were such important articles as trucks and lubricating oils."

"Future bids must be met in a wise and sensible manner. If re-elected, I shall continue to sponsor the legitimate needs of Nebraska."—Bee-News.

CUTTING PRODUCTION
Widespread publicity has been given the following editorial comment on curtailing farm production. The logical deduction of the Nebraska City News-Press put out in the opinion of many editors, the fully and danger of the federal farm board.

If it is smart for the farm board or any other governmental agency to advise or enforce curtailing the production of wheat—which is doubtful to tell the pig grower to educate his sows to raise pigs instead of eight pigs per litter? If education won't do it, and birth control is not yet highly developed in the porcine family, knocking 'em in the head might reduce the production and raise the price.

In effect that's what the farm board suggests as the "one way out" for the farmer with respect to wheat, which does have a lamentable surplus to worry about, but if wheat is curtailed in the United States and the price goes up in accordance with farm board views, what's to hinder the rest of the world from taking advantage of the situation to fill the gaping hole in the bread basket?

A farmer writes to a farm journal that he has saved eight pigs from each litter on his farm. He is proud of it, just as he should be, for he knows that his litters of eight have a good chance to survive. He refuses to knock the "extra" pigs in the head because he isn't "built that way," and he'd probably tell the gent who suggested it.

Successful farmers in Nebraska and Iowa, it is pointed out by men who know agriculture, are big producers. They have made money and experienced that satisfaction which warms the soul by increasing instead of reducing the farm income. They are doing new things that the government asked them to do during the war. They are not interested in propaganda which asks them to reduce production in the United States for the benefit of watchful, competitive farmers on the other side of the border.—Nebraska City News-Press.

Don't trust Worn tires...

The U.S. ROYAL
is designed for safety

Worn tires may skid in a pinch—they may blow out at high speed or under quick braking. They are as untrustworthy in an emergency as worn-out brakes.

Insure your safety and that of your passengers by outfitting with non-skid, durable tires of the very highest quality.

And that means U. S. Royals—built by the world's largest producer of rubber.

ROTARIANS HAVE FINE MEETING

From Wednesday's Daily—
The meeting of the Rotary club yesterday under the leadership of Rev. H. G. McClusky and provided a very entertaining program for the hour. The members of the club enjoyed a fine talk on "Service" given by Rev. Stewart of the Murray Presbyterian church and which was enjoyed to the utmost by all of the club membership. Dr. J. S. Livingston, president of the club told of the nineteenth district convention which has just been held at Omaha and in which the president touched on the high spots of the great meeting. In the series of discussions of the nations where Rotary is active, R. A. Bates gave a very interesting talk on Venezuela, one of the most interesting countries of South America and where the first struggle for independence was started in the southern hemisphere.

BLIND WOMAN DESERTE

Columbus—Mrs. Lena Swartz, seventy-seven, and her daughter, Miss Lena Swartz, thirty-five, both blind, were found abandoned in a wagon near the south end of the Loup river bridge, in such a position that they could not readily be seen from the highway. Questioned by police, they said they had been there alone, without food or drink, since Saturday noon when a friend who was taking them to Oseola left them, saying he would return in a short while.

The women were on their way to Oseola to visit the grave of their husband and father. They have been living in Battle Creek the past winter, where they received aid from the county, they said.

Chief of Police Brandon and Traffic Officer Bock took sandwiches, coffee and water to the two women and advised them to remain there for the night. Next morning the officers secured a teamster to hitch the women's two mules to the wagon and drive it to Hall's tourist camp, where arrangements were made for the women to stay a while.

Mrs. Johnson welfare officer, in-charged taking the matter up with state authorities in an effort to have the women cared for in a state institution.

SHORTER DAYS REQUESTED

Cleveland—Reduction of the maximum hours per day and the number of working days per week for transportation employes is urged in the national legislative report submitted to the sixth triennial convention of Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Monday.

Cutting from sixteen to twelve hours the maximum time for daily work under federal law was suggested. The report made no mention of proposed number of work days per week, but delegates interpreted to mean a five day week in pursuance of the policy laid down by the American Federation of Labor. Other legislative proposals will be submitted Tuesday. It is expected none will be acted upon before next week.

TWO PRISONERS ESCAPE

Madison—Two prisoners, one sentenced to serve a five year prison term, escaped from the local jail Sunday night by digging a hole thru the wall of their cell room.

The missing men are Henry Boettcher, facing the prison sentence for forgery, sentenced last week, and Louis Mitchell, charged with auto theft.

A search for the pair has been centered here, officers believing they did not have time to make much headway after leaving the jail.
