On Tuesday evening at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Harms, occurred the wedding of their daughter, Miss Alice Harms to Mr. Charles Albering of Amarilla, Texas. The wedding was a quiet home wedding and was attended only by the families of the contracting parties and a few very close friends. The impressive lines were read by the Rev. Hartmann of the Lutheran church north of Manley, and consisted of a double ring ceremony. The bride, Miss Alice Harms, has made her home in Manley from her childhood, but has since her graduation from the Louisville high school, taught for a time and also was saleslady in the Gold Store of Lincoln where she first met and became acquainted with her husband. Following this Miss Harms was a sales lady in a large business house in Los Angeles for the past two years. She is a lady of unusual accomplishments. The groom, Mr. Charles Albering, is an electrician, and was formerly a resident of Kiowa, Kansas, where the parents now reside, but has been making his home for some time at Amarilla, Texas, where he is engaged in business. The bridesmaid was Miss Cecil Phelps of Louisville, a very close friend of the bride, and the best man was D. L. Thurman of Lincoln, a close friend of the groom. Following the ceremony and the sumptuous wedding dinner which was served at nine o'clock, the bridal party departed for Lincoln where they remained for the night and stopped at Kiowa, Kansas, the home of the parents of the groom, for the day and then continued their journey to Amarilla, Texas, where they have a home prepared for the beginning of their married life. The Journal joins with their many friends in extending to this excellent young couple a long, happy and prosperous life.

NEBRASKA HAS HOME FOR MANKIND'S SAD UNFORTUNATES

Crippled and orphaned children have never lacked for loving friends; victims of disasters are the immediate objects of solicitude; the state provides comfortable places where the mentally incompetents may be cared for; but not until Rev. K. G. William Dahl, a Swedish Lutheran minister, translated his vision into a substantial reality was there a place provided in this state where the victims of epilepsy could find a place of refuge and comfort. That place is at Axtell, and the institution is known as Bethphage Mission. The founder of Bethphage Mission received his inspiration to begin a notable work for sick humanity when he was serving as assistant superintendent of the Immanuel Deaconess Institute at Omaha. There he encountered some of the most unfortunate of all people, the epileptics, and there was born in his soul a passion to do something for them. When he accepted a call to become pastor of the Bethphage church at Axtell the plan took form immediately. When the train which brought the family of the minister to their new home was drawing into the station, the future founder of the mission pointed to a piece of land north of the tracks and said to his wife, "There the institution is going to be." And there it is—a tribute to his inspiration and energy and a blessing to afflicted humanity. From a very humble start the Mission now holds 200 acres of land. The property is valued at half million dollars. The main buildings are of white brick—one for men, one for women and one for the sisters who are the nurses. There are several smaller frame structures, one for children, one for male workers and one for women guests. The institution has its own water works, heating plant and laundry, and a home for the superintendent in Axtell. The inmates are called guests and there are 120 of them. The guests are mostly penniless, friendless and in pitiful condition. Any suffering from epilepsy are received so they are not violent and uncontrollable.

The guests are tenderly cared for with Christian solicitude by devoted attendants. To them it is work of Christian mission. Funds for the support of the mission are derived from gifts by the Swedish Lutheran churches and by generous donations from persons who know of and value the work that is being done there. The founder of the Mission did not live to see the fruition of his dream. But they who have received the mantle of his inspiration and have carried forward the work he so inspiringly began are reaping the reward spoken centuries ago, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Banker is Missing; Report Books Short

Authorities Hunt for El L. Droste of Omaha—Officials of Bank Claim $25,000 Gone

Omaha—Disappearance of E. L. Droste, vice president of the First National bank of Omaha, early Wednesday morning became known Friday as police and bonding company agents widened the search for him. Droste's books at the bank are short between $25,000 and $30,000, bank officials stated. The night before his disappearance Droste visited Denman Kountze, also a vice president of the bank, at the hospital where Kountze is confined. To Kountze, Droste confides that "he was in trouble to the extent of about $25,000." Wednesday morning he obtained a car from an auto rental agency, said he was going "to visit some people in Iowa" and drove away. He has not been seen since. Bank officials said the shortage was not in actual cash but in the securities accounts handled by Droste for customers. In place of disposing of bonds and other securities as requested by customers, he would retain them in some manner and use them as collateral for personal loans, the bank heads said. He has been pursuing this practice for two or three years, it was said. Droste began his career in banking thirty-five years ago as a messenger.—State Journal.
