Henry Ford says there is plenty of kick in water, but it's been the lack of it this summer that produced the biggest kick.

"The industrial chemist of today faces greater opportunity for exploration and accomplishment than ever before." High pressure is now needed.

Uncle Sam says our cotton crop this year will be 14,300,000 bales. The average bale weighs 500 pounds, and the present market price is below eleven cents. Figure it out for yourself. It is a melancholy lesson in mathematics.

Iowa is planning to put flower gardens along its highways, so it ought to be handy to pick a lily for the driver who passes rounding a curve.

A St. Louis aviatrix made 714 "barrel rolls" in three hours, thus shattering all records. Wonder what kind of breakfast rolls that girl can make?

Over in the county someplace they are making a brand of liquor called "Rod and Reel," after taking one drink you can't walk a rod without reeling.

It is said that the automobile has influenced architecture considerably. Yes, we've noticed there are an increasing number of flats in the new buildings.

The business of electing a new President in a South American republic is fairly simple. A few people get together and cast bullets instead of ballots.

A lot of wise politicians in Nebraska are waiting until the bands begin to play, and then they will pick out the band wags on which they intend to climb.

Three heavyweight pugilists, a sport item says, have put away more than $1,000,000 apiece. The old-time heavyweight didn't care about dollars, so long as he could put away his opponents.

LONG FOR BLEASE

Louisiana and South Carolina conducted Democratic primaries last Tuesday which in effect chose Senators in advance of the November elections. In South Carolina, the voters did the country as a whole a great favor by defeating Cole Blease, one of the biggest general nuisances the Senate has had in many years. James E. Byrnes, his successor, is almost certain to be an improvement.

The decision of Louisiana voters, however, is not so helpful to the country in general. Governor Huey P. Long, petty tyrant and mischief-maker in his own state for years, is to go to the Senate in place of Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, an outstanding statesman and public spirited citizen. In short, we have traded Blease for Long, and the gain is nil.

It remains now, to be seen whether Tom Hedlin can sell "Jeffersonian Democracy" to the voters of Alabama despite his rejection by the party organization, and thus force his way back to his coveted seat in the Senate. If he is defeated, as seems probable, then we can take cheer from the unhorsing of two useless Senators, and their replacement by only one.

AS MAINE GOES

Maine, of course, went Republican, but the result is disconcerting to the administration, notwithstanding Chairman Pess' official jubilation. Gov. Gardiner's majority of 80,000 two years ago was cut to 16,000, and where the Republican candidate carried every county in 1928, this year he lost one county, Knox, and in a number of other counties the spacious 1928 majorities were reduced to remnants.

The 80,000 majority in September, 1928, was hailed by Republican leaders as forecasting a sweeping national triumph in the following November, and the result vindicated their interpretation. Similarly the 16,000 majority of last Monday may reasonably be construed by the Democrats as an auspicious augury. To citizens more concerned in the country's welfare than in either party's fortune a protest against the administration would be regarded as wholesome. Continuous control of the Government by any party would, obviously, be a political monopoly which nobody's but the professional politicians want. On the traditional authority of Maine such a protest will be registered in November.

WOMEN IN JOBS

Director of the Census Stuart estimates that 10,000,000 women in the United States are engaged in gainful occupations. In a radio broadcast from Washington he declared: "Women are now engaging more actively in industry, trade and office work than ever before in the history of the country."

Another interesting estimate of Director Stuart's is that the total United States population of 122,000,000 is "mainly supported, so far as bread-winning is concerned, by about 47,000,000 persons working about three-fourth of the time."

But the American home not yet has lost its stay and charm and hope if another of Director Stuart's estimates may be considered to be even approximately correct. He says that 23,000,000 women are engaged in housekeeping.

What inroads in the future shall be made upon the Nation's armies of housekeepers? To what extent shall the "emancipation" of woman be realized? Shall the 10,000,000 of gainfully employed women of today become 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 in another decade or two?

One-third of the total number of workers, says Director Stuart, are engaged in manufacturing or mechanical pursuits, a larger number than in agriculture, which employs approximately 10,000,000. From being predominantly an agricultural people, he says, we are coming to be predominantly a manufacturing people.

Women do not own and operate or work on farms, but they do fill the mills, offices, business and industrial avenues of the cities. The national trek of both men and women is from the farms urbanward. Rome struggled to stymie similar migration. Mussolini is making the same effort in Italy today. Economists are fighting against it in America for the same reason that the Caesars fought it. Without the development of its tillable lands no nation can survive.

The woman on the city job complicates the problem of social industrial development. But while she remains outnumbered more than two to one by the homemakers and mothers, there is hope for continued national progress and for normal stability of the race in this republic.

There couldn't be a better summer for the Institute of Politics at Williamstown to discuss the ownership of the polar regions.

"I'M GLAD I BOUGHT A FORD"

NEW FORDOR SEDAN, $600

(F. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra at low cost.)

You are buying proved performance when you buy a Ford. You know it has been built for many thousands of miles of satisfactory, economical service.

Letters from users in every part of the world show the value of its sound design, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing. You sense a feeling of sincere pride in the oft-repeated phrase—"Let me tell you what my new Ford did."

Further tribute to the sturdiness, reliability and general all-round performance of the new Ford is shown in the repeated and growing purchases by government bureaus, by police departments, and by large industrial companies which keep careful day-by-day cost records. In most cases, the new Ford has been chosen only after exhaustive tests covering speed and power, safety, comfort, ease of control, oil and gas consumption, low yearly depreciation, and low cost of up-keep.

They have found, as you will find, that the Ford embodies every feature you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

Call or phone for demonstration.
