Charles Daniels Badly Burned when Gas is Ignited

While at Duties as Patrolman on Gas Line He Has Close Call From Fatal Injury

From Thursday's Daily—
Last night shortly after 7 o'clock Charles Daniels, patrolman on the natural gas line of the Missouri Valley Pipeline company, had a very close call from fatal injuries when a quantity of natural gas became ignited and caught his clothing on fire.

Mr. Daniels was at the small frame building just south of this city where are contained the valves that control the branch line from the large pipe line which supplies this city with natural gas. He had, in coming to the building, placed his open lantern outside and had also left the door of the building open to avoid the effects of the accumulation of gas that occurs when he releases a quantity as is the custom in his work.

The gas forming was sufficient that it reached the spot where the lantern was set and at once caught fire and instantly the young man was engulfed in the pocket of burning gas and his clothing ignited and the blaze spread over his clothes and the flames also badly burned the side of his face and hands and arms before he could get out and extinguish the flames in his clothing.

Mr. Daniels was able to get to his car and drive on into the city where he secured medical aid and his injuries were dressed by Dr. R. P. Westover and he made as comfortable as possible under the circumstances although he is suffering more or less from the effects of the burns.

The injuries were not caused by a gas explosion as was at first reported last night, but from the accumulation of released gas that caught fire from the lantern, and almost instantly had a roaring furnace of flame around the unfortunate young man.

HISTORY OF SANTA CLAUS

Santa Claus is a pet name for St. Nicholas and was first used in Holland perhaps six hundred years ago. And in those days, in Holland, Santa Claus used a white horse. When Santa Claus began bringing German toys he was furnished a tree to hang them on. Then the good people of Norway and Sweden gave Santa Claus his reindeer and hung on their trees lights in honor of the northern lights so bright in that part of the world.

Real folks have seen reindeer and the few little reindeer used by Santa Claus differ much from the pictures you so frequently see. The legs of the real reindeer are much shorter than those you see in pictures and are not nearly so tall nor so slender as most artist draw them. They are small, little bigger than the native deer you so often see in parks.

Few parks have reindeer as it is almost impossible to keep them where they do not get their natural food which is so often called reindeer moss although it is not really a moss. It is a lichen which is found in all parts but the nearer one gets to the North Pole the larger percentage of lichen one finds in the vegetation. In Alaska, on the Tundra, in the northern part it makes up almost all of the vegetation.

The lichen that the reindeer likes best is a gray plant and grows very, very slowly. Perhaps not more than one-quarter of an inch a year. Unlike grass it does not die in the fall but lives from year to year and the reindeer dig down through the snow and find it just as nice and fresh as it is in the summer. Ask Tautauk or Ertauk to show you reindeer moss, perhaps Tautauk will let you feed some to the reindeer.

His lodge is all prepared for him on the court house lawn and he will be there next Tuesday morning, Dec. 23.

HERE FROM CALIFORNIA

From Friday's Daily—
Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Patterson will find their Christmas a truly pleasant one this year as their sons, Edward Patterson and Herbert Patterson of San Francisco, arrived here last evening for the holiday season. The young men have not been home for some eighteen months and it is needless to say the event is a most pleasant one for all the members of the family as well as the many old friends of Ed and Herb.

CARD OF THANKS

We are taking this means of expressing to the host of kind friends and neighbors our deep appreciation of the many acts of kindness that has been shown us in the illness and death of our loved husband and brother, to the minister and all those taking part in the funeral as well as for the beautiful flowers we wish to express our deep appreciation.—
Mrs. Robert Troop, Miss Mary Troop, Thomas Troop.

RECOGNIZES STUDENTS

The plan adopted by the Rotarians of having each month two boy students from the high school to attend their meetings has proven successful in every way and the Plattsmouth Woman's club has also taken up this plan of giving recognition to the girl students, having one or two of the girls of the high school present at their meetings and on Tuesday evening Miss Theresa Bierl, one of the high ranking students was a guest of the ladies of the club. The young men and women of the school are the future citizens and their participation in the civic bodies gives them a real insight into the workings of the various organizations that could not be gained from the outside.

City Glows in Wealth of the Yuletide Colors

Many Trees and Colored Lights Add to Brightness of the Business Section

The business section of Plattsmouth has never looked more inviting or filled with the Christmas spirit than it does at the present time, when Christmas trees and lights on the streets announce the fact that Christmas is but one week away.

The large cedar tree on the court house lawn near which Santa Claus is to have his lodge, has been decorated with the colored lights and the large star on top of the tree and is perhaps the most beautiful of the downtown decorations. This is arranged through the co-operation of the Iowa-Nebraska Light & Power Co. and the Chamber of Commerce.

The new decorative features at Sixth and Main streets where festoons of green with the colored lights are hung from each corner to be caught at the center with a large white star, attracts much attention and is a real addition to the decorations of the city. This is arranged by the retail section of the Chamber of Commerce.

The small Christmas trees along Main street also present a very attractive appearance and a number of these have also been arranged with the colored lights, Bestor & Swatek, the Pease Style Shoppe and Jess Wargo stores have arranged to have their trees lighted up and they look very attractive while the more prominent of the pine and cedars along the parkings adds much to the general appearance of the city.

Handsome decorated trees are also noted in front of the Knorr Variety store and the Bates Book and Gift store, where the bright hued decorations are adding a touch of color to the street decorations during the day.

To add to the real yuletide atmosphere the snow today was touching with its magic wand the landscape and made it truly a picture of an old time Christmas season.

DEATH OF JOSEPH POWELL

From Friday's Daily—
Joseph Powell, who has for the past eight months been in failing health and in the last few weeks in serious condition, passed away last night at 9 o'clock at the family home. The deceased has for the past eight years been a resident here and was for some time employed at the Burlington shops, but in recent months has been unable to carry on any work. Mr. Powell is survived by his widow, and six children, D. Maynard Powell, Tribune, Kansas, Mrs. Aurilia Atkins, Camp Chase, Ohio, Miss Lydia Powell, Lincoln; Mrs. Lucille Simons, Anderson, Iowa; Mickey Powell, Mare Island, California; Cyril Powell, Grover, Colorado.

The friends of the family will join in their sympathy to the members of the family circle in the death of the husband and father.

FINDS FOR ESTATE

From Thursday's Daily—
The jury that heard the case in the matter of the Estate of Maggie Palling deceased, last evening, returned a verdict finding for the estate and against the claim that had been filed by the John Fletcher College of the University Park, Iowa.

SHOWING NICE IMPROVEMENT

The many friends over the county will be pleased to learn that Mrs. Katie Hild of this city, who was operated on Monday at the Methodist hospital at Omaha, is now doing very nicely. Mrs. Hild came through the operation in fine shape and is now thought to be on the highway to recovery.

Pupils in Public Schools Shown Well Physically

Report on Six Year Period Shows the Standard of the Physical Condition Higher

According to a recent report of the school nurse, pupils enrolled in the Plattsmouth Public schools are on the whole in good physical condition. Out of 862 pupils examined, 585 had no serious physical defects, of the other 277, 84 were found to be suffering from defective eyes, 7 had poor hearing, 29 showed nasal obstructions, 119 had throat affections, mostly diseased tonsils, and 146 exhibited diseased or decayed teeth.

Miss Margaret McNair, the registered nurse who has been giving the annual physical examinations to the Plattsmouth Public schools for the past six years, reports that during this time there has been a decided improvement in the general physical condition of Plattsmouth school children. Six years ago a much larger per cent of pupils enrolled were found to possess physical defects than is the case today.

Each year more remedial work is being done and the general physical tone of the school population improved. It is hoped that the time will soon come when all children suffering from correctible physical defects will receive the corrections which can and should be made.

At the present time there is on file in the superintendent's office a complete record of the physical condition of each child enrolled in the Plattsmouth Public schools. Four years ago a system of health records was installed which provides a separate health card and each child enrolled. On this card is space for nine annual reports of the school nurse showing defects discovered and the corrections made. If a pupil has no physical defects this fact is likewise recorded. In addition the card contains a complete history of all contagious diseases which the child has had with date of each illness.

Contagious diseases to which he is subjected are likewise checked. A fact complete analysis of the child's physical condition from birth to date is made a matter of permanent record.

One or two illustrations as to how these health records are used will serve to apprise the general public of their value. All public school children receive a complete physical examination by a registered nurse at the beginning of each school year. When a pupil reports for his examination the nurse first consults his health card. If defects were recorded at the previous year's examination, she checks to see whether corrections have been made. When she finds that corrections have been made, she makes notation of these on the previous year's record giving approximate date when remedial work was done and the name of the person making the corrections. She then proceeds to look for defects which may have developed since the last examination.

Even when a pupil's health card shows no defects for the previous year, he is given just as careful an examination as the others. In addition to defects of eyes, ears, nose, throat or teeth, such weaknesses as under-weight, skin affections, nervous disorders, organic troubles, etc., are carefully noted and recorded.

Another illustration. Suppose a pupil is reported as suffering from a contagious disease such as measles or chicken pox. His home is placarded but not quarantined. If there are other children from this home in school, their health cards are quickly checked to see if they have had the disease. If they have not had the disease, they are excluded from school during the period of incubation unless they receive daily inspection by a physician, or registered nurse. In this manner it is possible to check the spread of such disease by other members of the same family.

The last annual examination showed 117 children under twelve years of age enrolled in the Public schools to be from six to twenty-five pounds under-weight. While under-weight is not serious in itself, a child in such a condition is more inclined to contract disease than one of normal or overweight. Such a child is under-nourished. This condition is rarely due to a lack of sufficient food but rather to a lack of the proper kinds of food. In an effort to arouse interest in this particular condition of school children, the local chapter of the P. E. O. has provided funds to be used for experimental purposes in this field. A report of this experiment will be available in due time.

In addition to giving the annual physical examinations, the school nurse makes many home calls to consult with parents regarding the physical welfare of their children. She likewise co-operates with Mrs. Rose Evans, county probation officer, in behalf of those children that receive treatment through financial aid provided by the city welfare bureau. It usually takes about a month each year for the nurse to do this work. But last year she was recalled for another month when a pending epidemic of contagious diseases threat-

Blue and White Quintet Win Opening Game

Take the Blair High School Basketball Team by a 27 to 9 Score Last Night

From Friday's Daily—
The Blair high school basketball team were the first victims of the Plattmers this season, they being the opponents of the blue and white last evening and being routed by the score of 27 to 9.

Both teams showed the usual weaknesses of the first of the season conflicts, Blair being decidedly weak in their passing and the Plattmers missed many fast and accurate passes, their receiving lacking the snap that is customary from the local quintet.

The game was at no time in doubt and from the opening it was evident that the guarding game of the Plattmers was ample to smother any offensive that the visitors might start, although they were able to work into the Plattsmouth territory on numerous occasions but found a blue and white man to take them.

In the opening the Plattmers scored in a few seconds after Referee Knapp of the Omaha Central high, blew his whistle, Galloway going through the Blair line to sink a field goal and followed a short time after by Hartford, playing the left forward position. To add to the scoring Captain Chet Wiles, playing his usual steady guard position, came up and tossed one in, Galloway scoring another field goal and a free toss while Begley also took a free one on the visitors. At the first quarter the score was 19 to 0 for the Plattmers.

The second quarter saw the scoring evened with Jensen and George of the visitors taking a field goal apiece as they slipped through the Plattmer defense while Plattsmouth Galloway again scored and Henri Donat who alternated at center with Hartford, dropped in a field toss and Hartford also took advantage of a gift shot. When the bell rang at the close of the second round the tally was Plattsmouth 15 and Blair 4.

In that period that follows the mysterious conferences in the dressing room when the coach speaks his heart to his followers, the visitors showed more fire than they had in the previous portion of the game and made the going a little more difficult for the locals. Sam Arn who had been sent in to replace the battle scarred Johnny Galloway, annexed a field goal and Jimmie Begley, who was looking good in the guard station, also took advantage of the Blair boys to toss one in. Jensen of the visitors scored again in this period and also secured a free toss while his scoring partner, George, made two free throws good. Blair for the only period of the game outscoring the Plattmers and leaving the score at 19 to 9.

In the final period the Plattmers again started to do things to the boys from up the river, Galloway taking the scoring partner, George, made two free throws good, Blair for the only period of the game outscoring the Plattmers and leaving the score at 19 to 9.

The youngsters members of the squad were unable to appear in the conflict as the lack of the equipment did not allow the entire squad to decorate the bench. The team looked very good in the opening tilt and Galloway and Wiles especially were in the best of form and Begley playing a real game at guard that seems to fix him for that position.

The tabulated score:
Plattsmouth— FG FT PF TP
Galloway, rf 4 12 9 2
Arn, rf 1 0 1 2
Hartford, lf-c 1 1 3 3
McClary, lf 0 0 0 0

Begley, rg 3 1 2 7
Hirz, rg 0 0 0 0
Wiles, lg 2 0 0 4
Total 12 3 8 27

Blair— FG FT PF TP
W. Gallehon, rf 0 0 2 0
W. George, lf 1 2 0 4
S. Jensen, c 2 1 2 5
M. Stricklett, rg 0 0 1 0
Campbell, lg 0 0 1 0
Hansen, lf 0 0 0 0
Carlson, lg 0 0 1 0
Total 3 3 7 9

The next game of the Plattmers will be here on January 7th when Coach Jackson's Norsemen drop down for their annual visit. During the vacation period however, the practice will be continued each day for the Plattmers.

UNDERGOING TREATMENT

John F. Gorder of this city is at the Methodist hospital at Omaha where he entered several days ago to undergo a course of treatment. Mr. Gorder has not been feeling so well of late and since coming from the farm in Colorado he has been undergoing treatment. It is hoped that the patient may soon be able to show improvement and resume his usual activities.

DEPARTS FOR CALIFORNIA

From Friday's Daily—
This afternoon Donald Allen departed over the Missouri Pacific for Kansas City and from there will go to California, having been called to Los Angeles to accept a position there with the Interstate Transit Co., and is to enter on his new duties. Donald has just completed a four year service in the navy and after his discharge two weeks ago has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Allen of this city and who are regretting very much to have him leave before the Christmas season, but his orders are such that he must forego the pleasure of being home for Christmas.

The History of Christmas Songs or Carols

Interesting Paper Prepared by Miss Jessie Robertson for the Woman's Club

Carol means a song of rejoicing, or praise, which forms a part of the celebration of the great festivals of the Christian church, but associated most commonly with Christmas. It originally meant a song accompanied with dancing, in which sense it is frequently used by the old poets. It appears to have been danced by many performers, taking hands, forming a ring and singing as they went around. The first Carol, recorded in Luke II, 13-14 was sung by the angels on the plains of Bethlehem.

Carol singing was very popular in Europe in the Middle Ages and still is a special feature of the Christmas season in England, where bands of men and boys, known as "waits" go about the villages for several nights before Christmas singing carols in the open air. Christmas "waits" in England now-a-days do not dress in costume, but in olden times they wore blue gowns with red sleeves and caps and a silver collar or chain about the neck.

The oldest extant copy of an English carol is in a book printed by Wynkin de Worde in 1521. This carol is still sung each Christmas at Queen's college, England. The earliest specimen of Christmas carol is a Norman-French noel of the 13th century now in the English museum.

The board's head was anciently the first dish on Christmas Day and was carried up to the principal table in the Hall with great solemnity. In the year 1170, upon the day the young Prince Henry's coronation, King Henry the Second "serued his sonne at ye table as seruer, bryngyng up ye boares heads with trumpets, accordyng to ye manner." For this indispensable ceremony there was a carol which Wynkin de Worde has carried up to the principal table in the Hall with great solemnity.
