PROHIBITION 11 YEARS OLD Washington—Eleven years old at midnight, prohibition ended the first year of its second decade Thursday with few prospects that its path would lead away from the tumult and controversy that have dogged its history. Bufted by foes and fought for by friends since that day in January, 1919, when the Nebraska legislature became the thirty-sixth state to ratify the eighteenth amendment, the law faced three early decisions which may affect the course of its future history. They were: an early submission to President Hoover, possibly upon prohibition's birthday, of the dry law report of the Wickersham law enforcement commission, admittedly composed of dry-laden; a brewing storm upon capitol hill over the prohibition bureau's request for 500 additional dry agents; argument in the supreme court over the recent ruling of Judge Clark in New Jersey, holding the eighteenth amendment invalid.

SCIENTISTS HAVE A DINNER Pasadena—Eight men, engaged in exploration of nature's mysterious forces, paused for a while Thursday night to break bread together in a joyous mood. They were Albert Einstein, Albert A. Michelson, Robert A. Millikan, three Nobel prize winners in physics; William Wallace Campbell, Walter S. Adams, Charles E. St. John and Edwin P. Hubble, astronomers extraordinary, and Richard C. Tolman, physicist and mathematician.

SOME TWO HUNDRED associated at the California institute of technology also attended the dinner. It was the end and only formal gathering in the six weeks visit in southern California, of Albert Einstein, Berlin physicist. Einstein voiced his thanks with thrilling emphasis.

Greenwood Legion Post Lays Barrage

Live Wire Organization Celebrates Passing Quota by Entertaining Visiting Posts

From Saturday's Daily—Last night Greenwood post No. 173 of the American Legion staged their annual banquet at the I. O. O. F. hall in that city and which was popularly known as the barrage, staged by the "Mob," with the versatile ex-artillery colonel, Phil L. Hall as the master of ceremonies.

To enjoy the occasion members from Plattsmouth, Weeping Water, Ashland, Waverly, Lincoln and Louisville were in attendance and that they found the occasion most pleasant was shown by the fact that all remained for the close of the sparkling and enjoyable flow of oratory that marked the evening.

The Greenwood post has attained a membership of 44, the largest in their history and for the enthusiasm and interest shown the post has one of a 1,000 members elected. The banquet that preceded the program of the evening was staged by the losing side of the membership drive and veterans like Bucknell and Stradley were to be found in the ranks of those who provided and served the feast. The group that provided the banquet has spared neither time or care in the preparation and serving and made a very pleasant start of the evening.

The banquet was presided over by Dewey Headley, post commander at Greenwood and who proved an ideal presiding officer and as the program opened and the duties of toastmaster was turned into the hands of Phil Hall, Mr. Headley gave the formal welcome to the visitors who came from many sections of Cass county in the manner so happy to the genial Greenwood lumberman.

The response on behalf of the visiting delegations was given by Frank H. Smith of the Plattsmouth post of the Legion.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of Mr. Nesmith who is now connected with the office of Dr. George E. Condra at the University of Nebraska, Mr. Nesmith having formerly been a soldier in the German armies and who in a very able manner paid tribute to the man that served as the victor of the vanquished and also expressing his pleasure that he was now a citizen of the United States and that he has had the pleasure of meeting the men of the United States who have served their country.

Featuring the evening was the contest between George Trunkenbolz and Past Commander Peterson and which resulted in the sweeping victory of Trunkenbolz and his unchallenged standing as leader in the post.

Dr. Williams, who had a great deal of service in U. S. hospitals serving the nation and in many Legion posts and who has just recently located at Greenwood to take up the practice of his profession, was introduced and congratulated the Greenwood post on the fine showing that they had attained.

Adjutant Hughes of the Greenwood post, who also is the superintendent of the city schools there, was introduced and responded briefly.

George Bucknell, Greenwood hardware dealer and Legion booster, was heard in a very dramatic recital of the war times that furnished a stirring climax for the audience.

E. A. Webb, who has been adjutant of the Plattsmouth post since the issuance of the armistice, was called upon and responded briefly.

In the new members of the Greenwood post called upon, was Pat O'Halloran of Prairie Home, veteran of the 89th division and who was a former comrade in arms of W. R. Holly of this city.

Harry Harper, Lincoln insurance dealer, also a veteran of the organization of Col. Hall in war times, spoke briefly on the mission of the Legion. One of the representatives of Ashland, Mr. Jourman, was heard in a very able plea for more relief work for the service men who are in hospitals and suffering still from the effects of war.

Short talks were also given by County Commander Ben A. Olive of Weeping Water and Past District Commander W. R. Holly of this city also on the lines of the relief work of the Legion.

One feature that won great enthusiasm was staged by the Greenwood post in the "Dance of Death" and in which Mademoiselle Me Lar was featured and assisted by Harry Miller of Lincoln, and this was a stunt worthy of the New York stage.

The main address of the evening was by Judge P. James Cosgrave of Lincoln, a veteran of two wars and who in wonderful word painting told of the nations formation and gave a plea for the true understanding of the common rights of all men of all races, creeds and color and for the carrying on of the spirit of the American Legion in the life of the nation.

Admits Paid $15,000 to Kidnapers of Son

Abduction of Wealthy Texan's Boy December 10 Revealed Last Night—Inquiry Started Dallas, Tex., Jan. 15.—Investigation of the kidnaping of Robert Cert, 24, son of Isaac N. Cert, wealthy banker of Corsicana, who paid 15 thousand dollars for his release, was ordered by District Attorney McGraw today. He said witnesses would be summoned before the grand jury at once.

The kidnaping, which, detectives said, had taken place December 10, was not revealed until last night. Dallas police went to work on the case, they said, when the elder Cert received an anonymous note after his son had been released demanding another eight thousand dollars, default in payment of which would result in his home being dynamited. A guard was placed over the Cert home. Detectives said Robert told them he was kidnaped by two men who invited him to ride in their car as he was walking to his home in Corsicana the night of December 10. Two other men joined his abductors and he was taken to a house on the outskirts of Dallas where he was held until the next day.

After the ransom was paid Robert was blindfolded and taken in a motor car to a point close to a street car line in Dallas and released unharmed. The money was collected from the father who obeyed demands in a ransom note to take the 15 thousand dollars in currency to Alward and Jackson streets in Dallas, detectives said.

While driving to the designated site the elder Cert's car was stopped on the side Dallas by two men who told him to turn over the money. Cert complied. The banker confirmed the kidnaping today.—World-Herald.
