A TRIP IN THE PAST

We have often wondered at pictured auto parties back in the days of the "floradora" girls, big puffed sleeves, long skirts, 5c beer, etc., but at last we appreciate the ride on the goggles, caps, hats daintily tied on, the long linen dusters—having had a trip in the famous Brush of Comrade D. Brown.

Wherever this hardworking little car appears it attracts more attention than a circus parade, but the car pulls right ahead and if all cars had the same old fighting spirit as the Brush with only one lung there would be some awed records set up. But to revert to the need of goggles, dust clothing and other protection from the elements, a trip to Omaha and back in the Brush is a real object lesson. It has its advantages as well as disadvantages, however, as there is no top or windshield to break in case of accident, while for the occupant of the car that might fear having to walk back home, the car is such that you can gently leap to the ground without danger—there are no doors.

The car that Mr. Brown possesses is one that is now of quite a monetary value, it is of the vintage of 1907 when it was turned spic and span from the factory and was in service many years when Mr. Brown secured it from a resident of Lancaster county and has since had more pleasure out of the car than anyone could out of a Rolls-Royce. When the car was new, Teddy Roosevelt was president, William H. Taft and William Jennings Bryan were preparing to race for president, John H. Mickey was governor of Nebraska, all since gone, but the car races on; the popular song of the day was "Waltz Me Around Again Willie," and "Till Me Pretty Maiden."

Mr. Brown with a staff of observers made the trip to Omaha Sunday in the car and returned also, the car making every mile of the road on its own power and when back home had plenty left. The only disagreeable feature of the trip was the reception given the auto party by the colored residents of South 13th street as the car swept on its way to the city hall to have the official greeting of the city.

Controls for Garden Pests.

Lead arsenate and nicotine sulphate spray will get most of the garden pests. O. S. Bare of the Agricultural College says. The lead arsenate spray will kill most insects and worms that eat the foliage of cucumber beetles. The nicotine sulphate will get many of those which suck the sap from the leaves and stems.

Cucumber beetles, cutworms and grasshoppers can not be controlled satisfactorily with the usual method of spraying poisons on the garden vegetables. The best control for cucumber beetles is to dust the plants well with a mixture of one ounce of calcium arsenate and one pound of powdered land plaster. Poisoned bran is probably the most effective control for cutworms and grasshoppers. A quarter of a pound of paris green or white arsenic and five pounds of bran mixed with enough water and 1/2 pint molasses to make a bran crumbly when spread, makes a satisfactory poison. A finely chopper orange or lemon added to the bran will make it more attractive to the grasshoppers, but is not of much use against the cutworms. The poison bran should be scattered thinly around the bases of the garden plants early in the evening for cutworms. For grasshoppers it should be scattered thinly over the ground between eight and ten in the morning.

Crop Prospects Good; Trade is Gaining Slowly

Tenth Federal Reserve Bank District Which Includes Nebraska, Reports on Business Trend.

Crop prospects continue good in the tenth federal reserve district, which includes Nebraska, although farm work was retarded somewhat in April and early May by frequent rains and cold weather, according to the June 1 review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City.

The report says that April witnessed a new low price for a majority of tenth district commodities, including cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, eggs, milk, butter, wool, corn, oats and rye. Hay prices were slightly higher than in March.

Department store trade was larger in April than in March, but the dollar volume was 7.3 per cent under April of last year. Wholesale trade was slightly larger in April than in March but was 18.8 per cent smaller than in April, 1930. There was a slight seasonal increase in building activity.

There was a further decrease in loans and discounts of the 56 reporting member banks during the four weeks' period ending May 13. Investments continued to increase, as did the number and amount of savings accounts.

Improvement in collections is shown by reporting Omaha department stores.

Omaha mills produced 91,263 barrels of flour in April, compared with 35,699 barrels in March and 108,412 barrels in April, 1930.

"The Perkins Family," featuring Elton Lux, Neva England and H. K. Douthitt, appeared.

Arthur Peterson, Walter Spilker, Verne Ehrlich, and Kathleen Livingston were named university 4-H club scholarship winners. They are all former 4-H club members.

Tuesday will feature morning classes. In the afternoon a sight-seeing tour is planned. A picnic at Antelope park is scheduled for Tuesday night.

The annual news writing contest will be held Tuesday. Winners will be announced at the picnic. Gene Robb, J. G. Alden, and Miss Ripzaph Douglass are judges.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon read at all Christian Science churches and societies on Sunday, May 31, was "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced." A part of one of the citations read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 193), is as follows: "As named in Christian Science, animal magnetism or hypnotism is the specific term for error, or mortal mind. It is the false belief that mind is in matter, and is both evil and good; that evil is as real as good and is equally powerful." The lesson is intended to show that ancient necromancy is quite similar to modern attempts to heal through the action of the so-called human mind, and that through Christ, Truth, we have the proper way for overcoming all erroneous beliefs. One selection read from the Bible is in part, "Let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light."

Credit Endangered.

Nobody knows better than Chancellor Bruening with what dangers to German credit and economy demand for a moratorium, or for a revision of the Young plan, is fraught. Therefore he and the foreign minister will probably first point out to their British colleagues that Germany's creditors could themselves ease the country's situation by extending long-term credits to her and by letting down tariff walls.

If Germany is lent long-term capital at reasonable rates, one may read in the German press any day, and if she is afforded an opportunity of increasing her exports by a lowering of tariff barriers, she can continue the Young plan annuities, but if she is kept capital-hungry and barred from the world market—so the press argument runs—then only a reduction of her obligations, at least temporarily, by a moratorium, can save her from economic collapse.

Poor Time for Revision.

That the World Bank for International Settlements at Basel found itself unable to furnish long-term credits has meant the dashing of another hope which was cherished in Germany.

Should the chancellor and the foreign minister find, after counseling with MacDonald and Henderson, that the present moment of world depression is psychologically the poorest imaginable for urging a moratorium or a revision, nevertheless they may, by conditions at home, be compelled to press for concrete results on the reparations issue.—World-Herald.

Germany May Seek Moratorium on War Debt

Long-Term Credit and Exports Increase Cited as Needs; Poor Time for Revision.

Berlin, May 31.—If Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius propose a moratorium of German war debt payments at the Anglo-German conference at Creques this week, it is safe to say the proposal will be prompted only by a desire to avoid a reaction at home which they believe might oust the present German cabinet and possibly threaten the republic itself.
