which he used for lifting the lister out of the ground and while Mr. Tilson was removing the broken parts to get the lister repaired the lever flew back, striking him in the face, breaking the cheek bone on the left side of his face. Dr. J. F. Brendel hastened with him to Plattsmouth where an X-ray was taken, showing the fracture of the bone, and as it would take an incision to get at the injured part it was thought best to allow the bone to heal without an operation.

Attacks by Two Governors Tend to Upset Plans

Conference of Executives Fails to Avoid Controversies; Ritchie and Pincho: Lead.

French Lick, Ind.—Two eastern governors, Governor Pincho of Pennsylvania and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, upset the program of the annual governors conference here with attacks on prohibition and public utilities. The Pennsylvania disapproved the subject of reforestation assigned to him and instead launched into an address charging that the electric power interests are "milking the public," thru yearly overcharges estimated at half a million dollars.

Governor Ritchie said if the prohibition question was turned back to the states the resultant system of excise taxes might do away altogether with federal income taxes and "at one stroke relieve capital, labor and agriculture from the tax burdens which rest so heavily upon them." The Maryland governor in a few words also about economic conditions. "You cannot have from five to eight million people wanting to work and unable to get it without knowing that this constitutes a challenge to our social order and that it is the strongest argument for communism unless it is solved," he said.

Remarks are Surprised. Governor Ritchie's remarks were a surprise to the score of state executives attending the conference inasmuch as a program arranged by the executive committee had purposely excluded controversial subjects. Governor Ritchie supported Governor Pincho's departure from the subject assigned to him. "Is there any imaginative reason why he should not have spoken on public utilities?" asked Governor Ritchie. "This is something which has become a vital issue in a great many of the states and what could be more appropriate than for the governors to discuss it when their people are so vitally interested in it."

In his attack on the utilities Governor Pincho said that huge electric utility systems have grown up thru consolidations until "about 90 percent of the total electric power generated in the United States is under the domination and control of four major interests." These interests, he added, "work together harmoniously under a common policy and toward a common end—which is the milking of the public."—State Journal.

Winter Wheat and Alfalfa are Injured Some

Anderson Reports Unusual Conditions in Panhandle—Alfalfa Fields Are Damaged

Winter wheat and alfalfa has been injured in the Nebraska panhandle, some southwestern counties and a small area in south central Nebraska, according to A. E. Anderson, statistician, who has just returned from a 1,100 mile field inspection trip. The damage was due to an unusual combination of unfavorable circumstances, Anderson says.

"What appeared to be the finest prospects for wheat that the panhandle counties of western Nebraska have ever seen, was blighted by an unusual combination of adverse conditions. Moisture conditions last fall and winter were ideal. As a result, the stand was exceptionally heavy, probably two or three times the usual stand and owing to the heavy moisture wheat was shallow rooted. During the past two months precipitation was abnormally light. Temperatures dropped to 18 degrees above zero at Sidney and to 14 degrees according to some private reports. This was followed by a high temperature and several days of high winds. A worse combination of adverse conditions would be next to impossible. With the shallow root system, the exceptionally heavy stand and growth, the dry top soil and freezing temperatures followed by high winds, wheat was subjected to a very unusual condition. In fact, no one had heretofore experienced such a combination of adverse conditions. Examination of the wheat plants in the field and by experts at the agricultural college revealed that they were killed. It is impossible to state whether this resulted from dry weather or from the freeze, or both, since there has been no previous experience by which to judge. However, it is believed that a sufficient number of stools are uninjured to produce a fair crop under favorable conditions, except for areas of heaviest injury.

"Alfalfa was injured badly. Part of the fields are completely brown and small like cured hay. Other fields were partly killed and again others were left, untouched except for minor discoloration of leaves. Farmers are unable to cut the injured fields because the alfalfa gums up the sickle.

"Spring grain crops were apparently unimpaired. Soil conditions very favorable for corn as there is a good reserve of moisture in the subsoil. Conditions of wheat in a few counties of southwestern Nebraska were quite similar, also a small section in south central Nebraska. The latter apparently is the result of dry weather and not the freeze. There was some injury to alfalfa throughout most of southwestern Nebraska, but as a rule it was slight.

"Some farmers were plowing up their wheat and planning to summer fallow it in areas of greatest injury. Of the territory traversed, that section between Chappell and Big Springs seemed to be the worst. In some localities, the wheat looks good. Winter wheat that was stubbled in, seemed to be in the worst condition. Summer fallow wheat was in fair condition, but even some of that was injured. One farmer in the North Platte Valley was mowing his wheat.

"Rains fell over the greater part of this territory and in some places it was quite heavy, ranging to very light in other places. Except for the areas of greatest injury, there is enough uninjured wheat stubble to make a fair crop providing sufficient moisture is received. However, a part of it could only make a very light crop under the more favorable conditions especially where the head is killed in the boot and where further injury from dry weather was evident."

GOVERNOR DEFENDS STATE

Los Angeles—Nevada may be prostituting its statehood in the eyes of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the U. S. A., Governor Fred B. Balzar, said here but the "thirty pieces of silver" the state receives for "pandering to weakness" are enlarging a somewhat depleted state reserve. The governor was here for a "native son" ceremonial. Governor Balzar's statements were made in reply to the general assembly, which in Pittsburgh, agreed with reports of its commission on marriage and divorce and Nevada's "prostituting its statehood and pandering to weakness for thirty pieces of silver."

"Nevada has as many home loving, God fearing, church going people as anywhere in the United States," Governor Balzar said. "We shall run the state of Nevada as we (state officials) think best."

CHILD HAS SEVERE ACCIDENT

Clifford Stohlman, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Stohlman, now of Omaha, but formerly of Louisville, had a very painful experience Tuesday day which will prevent him walking for several days at least. The lad is suffering from "pavement" burns, the result of being dragged several blocks by a neighbor's auto before the fact of the plight of the child was discovered. His legs are very sore and painful from the knees down and are bandaged and serum administered to prevent infection. Clifford was playing "peekaboo" with Billy White, 3, of 5524 North Twenty-seventh street. Billy was inside his father's auto. Clifford was outside and behind. The better to peek, Clifford climbed up on the rear bumper of the car.

his mother, Mrs. William H. Stohlman, next door of the Whites', believed Clifford fell asleep. He slid down in the bumper. His arms caught. Mr. White had ordered Clifford away from the auto, and when he came out of his house to drive away he thought the boy was safely on the sidewalk. He started up his car. Dorothy Stohlman, 6, tried to pull her brother off the bumper but his body was caught. Dorothy ran screaming to her mother, who ran into the street shouting. J. F. Blackwell, 5348 North Twenty-seventh street, nearly two blocks south, heard Mrs. Stohlman and he flagged Mr. White's car to halt. It was not until then that little Clifford was released from the auto bumper.

AFFILIATION IS REFUSED

Houston—The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in triennial convention here declined to join the American Federation of Labor. An invitation had been issued to the brotherhood by the federation president, William Green. The report of the committee on joint relations, which President A. F. Whitney said was adopted, concluded: "Under existing conditions it appears to your committee that affiliation with the American Federation of Labor can only be effected by the relinquishment on our part of jurisdiction over classes of service which we have represented for many years, and unless and until this condition is eliminated, we do not recommend an affiliation."
