Will Make Change in Business M. E. Petersen, who has been making his home in Cedar Bluffs for the summer and who with the slowness of the times has found that town has more places of business in the garage line than the community requires, disposed of his supplies and equipment at auction last Wednesday. He has two flattering offers for employment and is considering which he should accept.

Mr. Petersen is one of the very best of workmen and will fit in anywhere where there is work to do. The family have many friends here who would be pleased to have them here occasionally.

Greenwood Loses a Family Receiving an enticing offer for the purchase of a business in Weeping Water, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Birdsall have bought the Bungalow Inn cafe at Weeping Water and closed their restaurant here, moving to the center of the county, where they will be engaged in business in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Birdsall are well known in the catering game and will serve the public in splendid shape in their new location, and will, we are sure, make a success of the new venture. Greenwood will miss these genial people and their loss in their going will be Weeping Water's gain.

Will Feed Cattle Last week a shipment of 110 head of feeding cattle came to Greenwood. Two cars of the steers went to Wm. Franks, while one was secured by E. A. Lesley. These men see in the feeding of cattle an opportunity to turn some of our present low priced corn to better profit, but of course it will take extra work and they are entitled to whatever they make on the venture. Keeping the stock thru the winter is no small task, and the farmer who feeds finds that his winter season is filled with almost as much work as the summer. And it is the general law of the land that those who work shall be recompensed for their labor.

Sold Forty Flour Sifters Wheat is now below 40 cents per bushel and the flour produced from a bushel of wheat will make more than fifty loaves of good, wholesome bread. For this reason many of the farmers are turning from the bread wagon and again taking to "baking their own." Concrete evidence of this is found in the sale by White & Bucknell of some forty flour sifters during the past month and a half—as many as would be disposed of in the course of ordinary business in three years time.

We are told of a certain farmer who makes a trip to town every day for two loaves of bread, and it looks like he had better get some yeast and a flour sifter and have the family's supply of bread made at home. The price of the bread and gasoline could be saved, to say nothing of the results in raising the value of the wheat he has grown, by turning it to home consumption.

Thinks Worst Behind Us Speaking of business conditions, George Bucknell, of the firm of White & Bucknell, who have experienced as slow times as the average business, said things are looking brighter and they are anticipating a gradual upward trend. During the month of October, their business has shown improvement over last year, with a full week yet to go. We trust Mr. Bucknell's prophecy is correct and will join with him and everyone else in welcoming back old man Prosperity, who was driven from our midst by the wild speculations of the eastern stock brokers that ended in the Wall street crash and a hoarding of money all over the country.

Malvern Wins Football Game Here Friday

Score 12 to 0 as Iowa Players Hold Locals Twice on the Iowa One Yard Line

The Malvern high school football team, piloted by "Swede" Hertz, one time Peru football star, came over Friday afternoon from their dwelling place in Mills county to return bearing the goat of the Plattsmouth high school aggregation, the score being 12 to 0.

The game was largely fought in the Malvern territory, but the Platters lacked the scoring punch at the critical stages of the game, they having two beautiful chances to score.

In the opening seconds of the game the Malvern team in a brilliant passing attack slipped the ball over for a touchdown, the play being made before the locals realized it.

The hopes of the blue and white for victory grew strong in the last of the first quarter when the Platters carrying the ball into the Malvern territory, were held and punted to their foes, a fumble by the Malvern player who had caught the ball, resulted in Arn recovering for the Platters on the fifteen yard line. Line plunges by Ronne through the Malvern line netted good gains and the ball was brought on the line plays to the one yard line of Malvern. With the ball resting just a short space from the coveted chalk mark the Platters were rolled back, they trying drives through the center of the Malvern line where the entire team was massed to hold the line.

As the second quarter was closing a beautiful pass to Rummel carried the ball to the Malvern twenty yard line as the half ended.

In the third period the Platters again marched to within a yard of a score, a long pass from Forbes to Rummel bringing the ball to within a yard of the visitors goal. Here the attempts to break through the iron defense of the Iowa players proved fruitless. Forbes playing at quarter for the Platters, finally attempting a pass over the line but none of the locals were able to receive and the ball was lost on downs to the visitors.

Malvern in the latter part of the fourth quarter after the Platters had tried desperately to score, started a march down the field from their own territory, that was to net them their second and final touchdown of the game. The full strength of the visitors was massed in the plays through the center and right of the local line for gains of three and five yards on the plays while end runs interspersed on the plays carried the ball steadily on toward the Platters goal. A line smash took the ball over on the second down for the touchdown. The try for point failed, leaving the score twelve to nothing.

In the offensive of the Plattsmouth team Rummel was the chief factor of the game and was responsible for the opportunities that the locals had of winning.

Mrs. Judd Surrenders

Sought as the perpetrator of the brutal Phoenix and Los Angeles trunk murders after her brother's admission that she had confessed the crimes to him, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd (above) surrendered to Los Angeles police Friday night, after having been the quarry of thousands of southern California officers for several days. Her husband, Dr. William C. Judd (inset) had been grilled by Los Angeles criminologists in an effort to determine what motive actuated the murders. After giving herself up, Mrs. Judd declared she took the gun, with which the murders were committed away from one of the slain women after they had quarreled with her, assaulted her and fired a shot through one of her hands. Mrs. Agnes Lerol and Hedwig Samuelson were the victims, whose bodies were mutilated and stuffed in trunks shipped as excess baggage from Phoenix to Los Angeles, where Mrs. Judd and her brother sought to claim them, after which she disappeared.

Wheat and Corn Hold to Steady Prices

Past Experience Shows Little Likelihood for Advance—Hogs Will Decrease

Nebraska farmers may expect to receive steady prices for butterfat, steady prices for wheat and corn and declining prices for hogs and potatoes during the next thirty days, according to the economic survey of the state prepared by the rural economics department of the college of agriculture.

The monthly report shows little reason to hope for any material increase in wheat prices within the next thirty days, despite contemplated reduction in acreage in the United States and the southern hemisphere. In twelve of the past twenty years, the average price for No. 2 hard winter wheat at Kansas City has been lower in November than October. It is pointed out.

Local corn prices are not expected to advance materially above the local price for wheat at Nebraska shipping points, the survey states. The estimated production for the country is 60 million bushels above the 1930 crop.

Nebraska farmers are warned that hog prices ordinarily trend downward during the autumn months. For the past eleven years, it is pointed out, medium to choice 200 to 250 pound hogs have averaged lower in price on the Omaha market in November than in October.

In sixteen of the past twenty years the New York average price for 92 score creamery butter has been higher in November than in October. In one year the price remained the same for both months and in three years showed a decline for November. No decline is likely within the next thirty days.

DEPORTATION IS BLOCKED

Atlanta—Najib Saab Aboud, whose native country has gone out of official existence, was released by immigration authorities because they could find no place to which he might be deported. Aboud was born in that part of Syria which became non-existent under the Lusanne treaty and now is a French dependency. Natives of the region were given two years in which to swear allegiance to France, but Aboud never took the oath, having been a resident of the United States since 1911.

Several years ago he was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the federal penitentiary for violating the national bankruptcy act. Then, it is learned, he had not become naturalized in this country and had visited his native land only a year before. With the expiration of his prison sentence, the United States sought to deport him, contending his residence in the French dependency dated from the time of his visit there, which French refused to let him re-enter, however.
