Wheat Price Rise Means Millions for Nebraskans

Advance to Continue, Omaha Grain Men Believe—Farmers Are Holding Grain.

Continued advances in the price of wheat, which Tuesday rose 12 to 14 cents above the lowest day's quotation this year—38 to 40 cents, in August—has added more than seven million dollars value to the 75 million bushels of wheat stored in Nebraska.

Farmers in Nebraska now have approximately 40 million bushels of wheat stored on their farms, the office of A. E. Anderson, federal and state crop statistician at Lincoln, reports.

Nearly 20 million bushels is stored at Omaha, Lincoln and Fremont elevators have approximately 10 million, while five million bushels more is stored in country elevators.

"But the price of wheat is going higher," is a common prediction around the Omaha Grain Exchange.

"Personally, I expect it to go to 75 cents this winter," declared J. L. Welsh of the Butler-Welsh Grain company. "The Nebraska farmer hasn't been stamped into shipping his grain to market. He still feels that the cost of production is beyond what the market offers today. Wheat must pass 60 cents before he will begin to figure that he will make money by selling. Right now he prefers to hold his crop."

Mr. Welsh said he based this statement on reports from the company's 10 branch offices which indicated an unusually small movement of farm grain to market in the past week in response to the price rise.

Great Possibilities. If this bullish prediction should come true and there should be a 30-cent rise in price, the 40 million bushels held by the farmer would be worth 12 million dollars more than they were in August, while the total value of all wheat in the state would rise 25 million dollars above the August total.

What this should mean to general business in Nebraska should be apparent even to a pessimist, grain men say.

Applied on a nationwide scale, where the visible supply of wheat this week was 225,078,000 bushels, the bullish swing of the market becomes still more significant, it is pointed out. Cash wheat prices rose in Omaha 1 to 2 cents Tuesday. This was a response to the jump in the futures market influenced by an unconfirmed report that the federal farm board has sold from 20 to 50 million bushels to France, grain men explained.

On Substantial Ground. But the general upward trend is based on more substantial ground, it is said. More confidence has been expressed in heavier buying for investment, on a pickup in the export demand, evidence of determination of farmers to hold the "good old wheat in the bin" until prices mend. Most of the farm-stored wheat is held by the more prosperous farmers in central and eastern Nebraska who are not likely to be forced to dump their bushelage until they are good and ready. As observers say: "It is in the hands of farmers who can afford to hold it."

AWARDS MADE IN CONTEST

Last spring Henry Jasper, the local florist, decided to offer several prizes to the pupils in the grades from 4th to 6th in the public schools, who showed the greatest interest and skill in chrysanthemum cultivation and care. Mr. Jasper at that time distributed some 116 of the chrysanthemum plants among the young people of the school, giving them the summer season to cultivate the flowers for the fall.

Tuesday the awards were made in the contest. Mr. Jasper having Charles Faulkner, president of the State Florists association and Arnot Anderson, both of Omaha, here to judge the event.

There were some fifty of the plants brought to the school by the contestants and these were judged by the expert florists and the awards made. The prize winners named were: Catherine Shellenbarger, first; Phyllis Reed, second; Ruth Richter, third; Eloise Jones, fourth. Honorable mention was given Flossie Lamphere for her work.

The young people taking part in the contest have shown a great deal of interest in the cultivation of the plants and some very fine specimens were shown of the various varieties of the chrysanthemums.

The contest was confined to the pupils in the Central building of the public schools.

Make Use of Home Products.

After investigating the possibilities of using wheat as human food, Miss Margaret Osborne of the Extension Service at the agricultural college says the grain is one of the cheapest sources of energy from the standpoint of nutrition.

Wheat is a good source of protein and with the addition of meat, milk or cheese may be depended upon to provide an adequate supply of protein in the diet. Wheat bran only furnishes roughage but it also contains valuable mineral salts, particularly iron and phosphorus. In addition, wheat bran is a dependable source of vitamin B.

In using the wheat for human consumption the whole grain can be cooked or the grain can be ground and used as cracked wheat. The cooking time for cracked or coarsely ground wheat is longer than for finely ground commercial cereals but the flavor is pleasing.

Miss Osborne has worked out several recipes showing different ways to use wheat as food. In testing the recipes, Miss Osborne explains that the cracked wheat used was cracked to about the size of corn meal. The wheat was crushed, then passed in succession over sieves and then thru a 12 mesh miller's sieve. These recipes may be had by writing or calling at the Farm Bureau office.

Appetizing Baked Ham with Pineapple.

Now the cooler weather has come, meals are containing heavier meats. In a recent publication the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggests a baker ham with pineapple, using the following recipe:

Thick slice of ham
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup bread crumbs
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 cup pineapple juice
5 or 6 slices canned pineapple
Have a slice of ham cut about one inch thick. Trim off the rind and the lean edge. Fry out a piece of the fat in a heavy skillet. Brown the ham on both sides and transfer it to a shallow baking dish. Pour off the fat from the pan drippings and with the remainder in the skillet mix the sugar, bread crumbs, mustard and pineapple juice. Cover the ham with this mixture and bake without a lid in a very moderate oven (300 degree F.) for about one hour. Baste the ham occasionally.

About 15 minutes after the ham is put into the oven, arrange the pineapple slices, cut in halves, in another baking dish, and pour over them some of the liquid from the ham. Bake the pineapple slowly at 200 degrees F. for about 45 minutes. Turn the slices during the cooking. Serve the pineapple around the ham.

Plant Bulbs Now for Winter Bloom Indoors.

Hyacinths, paper white narcissi, Chinese Sacred lilies, and even tulips may be grown indoors with a fair degree of success, according to the authorities at the agricultural college. Many people are interested in planting bulbs for indoor beautification since they are on the market at this time. The bulbs mentioned may be grown either in water or in dirt. To grow the bulbs in water, the bowl or vase should be partly filled with gravel, pebbles, coal, together with a small amount of crushed oyster shell. Then the bulbs are placed firmly among the stones, etc., partly covered with water and removed to a cool, dark part of the cellar while the roots are forming. They should be left there about six to eight weeks, the water being changed every week. At the end of this period they are brought into the light and into a heated room to flower. The bulbs may be grown in pots also, a 6 inch pot being suitable for three bulbs. The pot is filled with garden soil in which a cupful of sand has been mixed with a little well rotted manure. The bulbs are set just beneath the surface of the soil, watered and removed to a cool dark moist place such as a cave or out-of-doors under a covering of dirt, straw or ashes. Here they are left for six to eight weeks and then gradually introduced to heat.—D. D. Waincott, Cass Co. Extension Agent. Jessie H. Baldwin, Ass't. Co. Extension Agent.

Youth Admits Story of Attack Only a Hoax

Wrote Menacingly to Self and Girl; Shot Up Own Auto—No Action to Be Taken

Falls City, Neb., Oct. 27.—County Attorney J. H. Falloon tonight announced he had solved the mysterious shooting story of 17-year-old Ibert Dahlke of Humboldt through a complete confession from the youth.

Falloon said extensive questioning of the youth brought admission that Dahlke had written the threatening letters to himself and to his girl friend, Lavonna Lahnerr, 15, Humboldt, and that he himself had shot up his automobile with a revolver.

After obtaining additional letters, purporting to have been written by some unknown person styled "The Mink," the county attorney said he was convinced that Dahlke was the author. Falloon said the letters to Lavonna were highly complimentary to young Dahlke.

Falloon also said the letters to the girl showed the writer's affection for the girl, while letters to Dahlke threatened both the boy and the girl. The county attorney said tracing of the gun, reputedly found near the spot where the youth said he was attacked last Sunday night, brought the solution. He found Dahlke had bought the gun in Auburn last Thursday.

After admitting that he fired several bullets into his sedan, Falloon said Dahlke declined to give any reason for his act, but authorities believed it was done to impress the girl. The authorities said it is unlikely that any action will be taken against Dahlke.—World-Herald.

FLOWER CLUB MEETS

Friday evening the members and their families of the "Social Workers Flower Club" from south of the city, gathered at the beautiful grove of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Spangler for their annual Halloween festivity.

Early in the evening all gathered around one large table, in the center of which was a huge kettle of steaming "hot dogs" surrounded by many other good things to eat in keeping with the Halloween spirit.

This was followed by the playing of games by the pupils in the grades which Everett Fulton gave a demonstration of his home made aeroplane. Thanks for the "ides. Later in the evening on the velvety green grass, among the trees, garbed in their dresses of red, yellow and green, with the large moon peeping in and out among them, circled about a huge bonfire, sat the merry crowd telling tales of the present, past and future, which were enjoyed, after which all departed, declaring "the evening spent would long be remembered by all present."

A TRUE STORY

Bob Walling of Plattsmouth is one of those men who would rather see a football game than eat. And Bob likes to eat. When Creighton played Washington he was all set to do a little grandstand quarterbacking on the 50-yard line. Then came a dinner invitation, and it looked like Bob would have to run the Bluejay team by remote control.

Bob went out to dine. The radio was tuned in on the Bluejay and Bob ate chicken while the Bluejays ate up the yards. The Jays scored one touchdown. Then another. Bob could stand it no longer. When the first period ended, he mumbled something about forgetting to feed the cat, excused himself, jumped into his car, and was in the Creighton stadium when the second half opened.—Whitney Martin in Omaha Eye-News.
