Jesus and the Man Born Blind

John 9:1-11; 30-38.
The hostility and suspicion of Jesus' enemies increased with the discourses, as recorded in Chap. 7 and 8; therefore He withdrew some eight to nine weeks from teaching in the temple; and as the conditions became more settled, He ventured forth again to finish the "work of him that sent Me."
One day as He left the temple with His disciples, He stopped to look at a blind beggar, who sat near the temple, because here many people passed by, to beg alms. The disciples found this act of Jesus very strange. This blind man may have repeatedly stated to the passerby that he was born blind. But the "look" of Jesus was more eloquent than speech; His gaze upon the blind was so intently and pitiful that it set the disciples thinking and wondering and asking themselves questions which they could not answer.
At last they take courage and ask Jesus: "Rabbi, who sinned, this man, or his parents, that he is born blind?" The disciples had a true view of the awfulness of sin, the fearful nature of its result. These disciples had adopted the common view, that physical afflictions are the result of sin, as illustrated in the book of Job.
Jesus made them reply, "Neither did this man sin nor his parents, but that the works of God (which I am about to perform) should be made manifest in him." "Suffering is permitted for wise and good reasons—reasons which we shall one day comprehend. Pain is not sent by God as a curse. Pain is God's sentryman, standing on the track, waving his red flag and warning you against a collision which must be destructive to you."—Rev. Chas. F. Deems.
"We must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day." (Y. 4). "We," Christ and his disciples laboring together to save men from their sins. "Day" means the time of life. "The night cometh." Once and only once, this chance is given to man. May we buy out our time, not fritter it away, or "kill" it as many do, or play, to pass the time away. No more time is allotted to man than is necessary to work out his salvation. Man must give an account to God for the way he has used his time. There is a legend how Satan summoning his imperial court, promised a reward to that devil who should invent the most effective way to destroy the human soul. One proposed to teach men that there is no God; another that there is no hope of immortality;

everyone is doing nicely. The son is however, lord at the home at this time.
Jack Philpot from near Nehawka was a visitor in Murray on last Monday and was looking after some business matters at the lumber yard.
A small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spangler, living a number of miles west of Murray, has been very ill with a severe attack of the flu, but is reported as being some better at this time.
Mr. and Mrs. Lucean Carper were enjoying a visit on last Sunday when they drove over to Lincoln and visited for the day at the home of Mrs. Carper's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin of that place.
Henry Heebner who has been having much trouble with the rheumatism for the past many months, has another that the Bible is a lie. But the devil got the prize who offered to convince men that there is no hurry. Jesus is "the Light of the world." Why does a plant turn to the light? Because the sun is its life. So is Christ to the soul's life.

Why the spittle and the clay? Clay would make blind eyes more blind. This would be for Jesus to explain. The blind man is obedient (faithful) and goes to wash the clay from his eyes. Faith and works produce the wonderful result—open eyes. "Go wash." How simple and easy the way. Repent and believe, and eternal life flows into the soul. This miracle so changed the man that some of the neighbors did "not recognize him. When Jesus comes into the heart, it gives new hopes, kindles new desires, old things pass away under the touch of Jesus, and all things become new. He said: "I am he." A Christian convert is always glad to tell of the pit from which the Savior lifted him.
The happy and believing convert. He speaks and testifies of things that he knows. The man that had power to open his eyes, must be a good man, because God answered his prayer. He must be a prophet, one of God's special ambassadors and representatives.
The parents also testify to three facts: (a) he is their son; (b) he was born blind; (c) he now can see.
This is the only miracle since the world stands, where one born blind received sight. Others had theirs restored. The miracle was more than a restoration; it was a creation, giving the man what he never had. Here is absolute proof that Jesus is the Son of God.
Now Jesus makes an effort to find this man; they meet. Jesus said: "Dost thou believe on the Son of God?" What a happy meeting! "Who is he, Lord?" "Thou hast seen him." Only one beside this man heard these blessed words, the Samaritan woman. (John 4:26). "Lord, I believe."
But who does not believe? Many believe in the historical Christ; but faith in the son of God brings joy and peace into the soul of man, gives strength and courage to endure and suffer for Christ's sake; they "glory even in tribulation" (Rom. 5:3) because "the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost." (Rom. 5:5). Worship follows; adoration and exaltation of the Benefactor. "There is a fountain filled with blood" that cleanses every sinpots—plunge in and be made clean.

Wehrlein, who are the happy and proud grandparents, are sharing in the happiness.
