We'll say this for the late Police Gazette—although it was pink, it never was a parlor red.

There seems to be no doubt that the mad trapper in the Canadian wilds was mad about something.

Such is the cynical state at which we have arrived, that when a man actually smiles in face of adversity, we say he is punch-drunk.

Somewhat, it always is a shock to a man to read his wedding announcements fresh from the printers and realize his last hope of escape is gone.

Accidents to ice hockey players are mounting up this year, and everything points toward a nationwide popularity for the game in another year or two.

The former generation carried a buckeye in its pocket to ward off rheumatism. Later, some men took a big drink of liquor, but now, the proper thing is diet.

A Deepwater teacher, according to the World, asked a student to describe Lindbergh's feat. "I never saw 'em," the pupil replied, "but I can describe Charlie Chaplin's."

A little girl had heard a great deal about the "bumping system" on the railroad, and surprised her mother on day by asking: "Mother, who was President before Hoover bumped him?"

Germany's idea of international disarmament is for all nations to disarm to the point of being as weak as Germany is. Which would be a grand idea if we could always be sure just how weak Germany is.

We read of a place down in South America where considerable money is to be invested in raising chimpanzees and such-like for circuses and zoos. Locally, at least, that ought to throw a monkey-ranch into the depression.

The Princeton scientists who are setting out to discover the cause of earthquakes are flirting with serious trouble. If they find out, they will be blamed by a good many people for not doing anything to stop earthquakes.

Several severe correspondents out this way have confessed that if they had been on the jury that tried young Mr. Allen for murdering his sister's fiancé, he would not have been acquitted. On the other hand, we don't recall a murder in years that seemed to give such complete local satisfaction.

The dove of peace has been shanghaied.

No one loves a quitter, but the acquitters seem to be fairly popular.

What this country needs is a successful approach-forcing system to be used on bankers.

The old-fashioned man who died in the harness now has a grandson who dies in motor car wrecks.

Alfonso, it is reported, has plenty to live on the rest of his life—nothing like saving from a reigny day.

And after Stimson has got through invoking the Nine-Power Treaty, he might try the Ten Commandments.

A writer of popular songs has been kidnapped in England. It seems a good idea unless somebody ransoms him.

Japan asks the Powers to restrain the military impetuosity of the Chinese. Did any one say the Japs have no sense of humor?

When the business of the the country gets down to brass tacks, wonder if it will find itself sitting on the sharp end of a tack?

Still, one must remember that every dollar Europe borrowed was used to purchase thirty cents' worth of American products.

Poor pacifist China may be in for a terrible licking, but she will get it over with a lot faster than big militarist Germany did.

A fashion note says spring wardrobes for 1932 are designed for small incomes. Ah, ha, so Mister Gandhi isn't to be the only least dressed man after all.

The Philippines wound up 1931 with a treasury surplus of $500,000. Is any further proof needed that the islands are not yet ready for independence?

Well, there is at least one consoling feature to this war: The poets don't seem to be able to weave any of the Chinese or Japanese names into anything like rhythmical verse or thrilling songs.

Mr. Rockefeller, not wholly on account of his age, but probably for other equally good reasons, has cut down his golf game to four holes a day. Mr. Rockefeller enjoys his golf, and likes to be out in the open, and it would be a real blow to him to make one of those four holes in one some day.

KEEP THE DEMOCRAT PARTY DEMOCRATIC

The protest of Franklin D. Roosevelt against the proposal of J. P. Morgan to buy the Bryan Memorial hospital at Lincoln, February 20, 1932, after an illness of almost four months. Thomas Wiles Akeson, son of Mattes and Rebecca Akeson was born on a farm near Plattsmouth, April 22, 1867. When he was six years of age the family moved to a farm north-east of Weeping Water. He was a member of the Christian church for forty-four years; being a charter member of old Grandview church.

He was united in marriage, February 26, 1896 to Edith C. Gilmore who preceded him in death thirteen years ago. To this union five children were born, four sons and one daughter. The sons are Clarence M. of Weeping Water; James E., of Lincoln; Thomas E., of Avoca, of Francis R., of Weeping Water; the daughter, Marjorie Ellen of Lincoln; and a faithful, devoted sister, Mrs. Emma Breckengridge of Weeping Water. He was a kind, loving father and leaves to mourn their loss his five children, three grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters and many other relatives and friends.

Oh weep not for me, I am anxious to go. To that Heaven of rest where tears never flow. I shall soon join that Heavenly band Of glorified souls at my Savior's right hand.

The funeral services were held from the Christian church at Weeping Water Tuesday Febr. 23 at 2 p. m. W. A. Taylor, pastor of the First Baptist church of Union conducted the services. Interment was made in Oak Wood cemetery at Weeping Water.

What with the sofa pillows, glassware, postage stamps, embroidered pieces and all the other devices for the proper observation of the great event, we predict several years will elapse before the last remains of the Washington Bicentennial of 1932 will have finally disappeared from view.

Will Rogers says he likes Smith, Roosevelt, Ritchie, Garner, Baker, Murray and perhaps others who may be mentioned later. It's not necessary to force Mr. Rogers to declare for anyone. All Mr. Rogers really demands is that he be a Democrat.

The delegates to these earlier conventions, however, were selected by state conventions, and it was a long time before the primary came into vogue, thus permitting the ones who do the final voting in the fall to say who should represent them in the nominating convention. The primary election also makes it possible for the members of the party to say for whom their representatives shall vote, thus making the party purely democratic, in practice as well as in name.

The democrats of the United States shall not consent to deliver over to the bosses the control of their party, permitting the latter to foist upon them any candidate for the presidency whom expediency or selfish interests may dictate. The process by which they have acquired their present commanding position has been too long and too labyrinthine to allow of their surrendering control at this time. They consider themselves as competent to say two or three months in advance of the convention who would best represent them in the position of chief executive as party chiefs might be amidst the excitement of the great gathering when trades could be made and the interests of the people sacrificed to the ambitions of those controlling delegations or votes.

Men and women of the democratic party have confidence in their ability to properly manage that organization and they will insist upon doing so.—Lincoln Star.

George P. Swatek, who is attending the University of Nebraska, was in the city over Sunday to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Swatek.

Mrs. Lila Farley, Mrs. Eva Peasley and Mrs. Belle Stoner, motored over from Glenwood Monday for a visit. Mrs. Stoner remained over until this afternoon to visit her son, Hillard Grassman and family.

Charles H. Boedeker, Jr., cashier of the Murray State bank, was in the city for a short time today, attending to some matters of business and visiting with friends.

Mrs. J. D. Wordeman of Leigh, Nebraska, and Mrs. W. J. Crosser, of Omaha, were here to visit with their brother and sister, Lee and Miss Etta Nickles, and also at Murray where they spent a short time with their brother, George Nickles, who was severely injured last week.

Canada's bureau of statistics reports United States industries are establishing branch factories in Canada at the rate of two a week. "These industries," writes a correspondent, "are transferring capital, work, wages and purchasing power across the line as a direct consequence of the Canadian retaliation against the United States' Hawley-Smoot tariff law."

How the tariff plunderbund has killed the Canadian market for American goods and hurt home labor is one of the most tragic chapters of the whole story of the tariff tragedy.

Between 1921 and 1931 Canada's 10 million people purchased from the United States goods to the value of $7,535,000,000 and sold to this country goods valued at $5,130,000,000. Despite the fact the Fordney-McCumber bill closed the door to 250 million dollars of Canadian goods, Canada reduced its own tariffs on motor cars, farm machinery, etc.

But when the Hawley-Smoot bill was enacted, cutting off another 150 million dollars of goods from the American market annually, Canada retaliated. The Bennett government was elected on an anti-United States platform and his first official act was to put through the highest tariff in Canadian history.
