Confer as to Protecting Louisville Bridge

Sarpy County Commissioners Meet With Others Interested in Protecting Bridge.

County Commissioners Wise and Mowinkel and County Attorney Nickerson of Sarpy county, met with two officials of the state game warden's office, Ed Onstead, engineer in the state department; C. B. Huffman, engineer of the Missouri Pacific railroad; L. J. Williams, of the Omaha Steel Workers, and several others interested at the Louisville bridge Tuesday. The purpose of the conference was to devise ways and means to prevent the Platte river from washing around the north approach to the bridge.

Some time ago riprap work was done along the south bank of the Platte at the state game preserve to stave off severe erosion of the banks at that point. "Old Man River," not to be thwarted, immediately shifted its current over to the opposite bank and is rapidly gnawing away at the bank near the north approach of the new bridge and unless steps are taken immediately serious damage will be done.

The officials are working together seeking to defeat the river's incursions which threaten to leave a nice, new bridge high and dry with no river to span, and also to apportion the costs of such work equitably. The state will likely be held for the cost of the improvement.

Further conferences will be held.

PREPARES FOR BIG SHOW

The American Legion building has been the scene of a great deal of activity in the last few weeks as the members were engaged in the erection of the stage that will be used Thursday and Friday of this week for the minstrel show.

The stage is a real work of art and has been placed at the north end of the building and on each side of the stage spacious dressing rooms have been arranged.

The stage is all ready now for the big minstrel show, an attraction that promises to be one of the very best attractions that has been offered in the city for many months.

A cast of clever comedians and sweet voiced singers as well as a large orchestra has been organized for the performance which should give a minstrel long to be remembered.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT

From Tuesday's Daily. This morning in the county court Judge A. H. Duxbury had his first contempt proceedings that has occurred in his court. Herman Newhouse of Omaha, who had been summoned as a witness in the case of the State of Nebraska vs. Walter Johnson, had twice refused to come in response to the order of the court. This morning Deputy Sheriff Ray Becker armed with a bench warrant, departed for Omaha with the Sattler ambulance and Mr. Newhouse was loaded onto a stretcher and brought on to this city. The evidence of the witness was not of great value as his memory was faulty and he was unable to give much of value as to the incidents of meeting Johnson on the road. The court gave Mr. Newhouse a fine of $5 and costs for ignoring the summons of the court.

VISIT EIGHT MILE GROVE

From Wednesday's Daily. The members of the Plattsmouth Rotary club were at the Eight Mile Grove church, the community center of that part of the county last evening, it being one of the programs arranged by the rural relations committee.

The meeting was presided over by R. E. Bailey, the president, and after the fine feast that the ladies had prepared and served had been disposed of by the members of the party, a most interesting program was offered.

Judge A. H. Duxbury gave a most inspiring talk on the purposes and aims of Rotary and which was followed with much interest by the members and their guests.

In the musical portion of the program Frank A. Clodt and L. D. Hiatt both showed their skill in the rendition of a German solo that was much enjoyed. Mr. Clodt and Mr. Minor joined in a pleasing duet that added to the interest of the meeting. Mr. E. H. Wescott also was a feature of the musical program with two piano numbers.

The response of the guests was given by Rev. A. Lentz, the pastor of the Eight Mile Grove church.

RETURN FROM CALIFORNIA

Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Johnson, who have been visiting at Len Beach, California, for the past winter with their children, Mrs. Gus Swanson, Mrs. Judith Erwin and Friedet Johnson, returned home Saturday night. They report a very fine time and meeting many of the old friends and neighbors who are now making their home in the west. They enjoyed the trip very much but are pleased to be back home.

GRINDS OUT MUCH WORK

District Judge James T. Benley, always a glutton for work while on the bench, at Papillion recently turned out one of the biggest court days in the district court of Sarpy county. There were twenty-one cases handled and disposed of by the court and which establishes a new record for the disposal of pending litigation.

Feeders' Day, Friday, April 15
Last year Cass county had the largest representation of any county in the state at Feeders' Day at the College of Agriculture.

The program will be particularly interesting this year. Dr. C. W. McCampbell of Kansas, who conducted the recent limestone feeding experiments, will be at the meeting. Experimental lots of steers, hogs and sheep will be exhibited, beginning at 10:45 a. m.

Cass county is expected to have another record crowd.

Trench Silo a Success.

Ninety-nine out of 100 Nebraska farmers who built trench silos last fall think the silos have been worth while. Wallace Buck reported to the engineering and animal husbandry departments after studying reports from 100 Nebraska farmers. Ninety-five of the 100 men will use the trench silo again if crops are poor, and 82 out of the hundred will use them if crops are good this coming year.

The hundred farmers live in 23 counties. Buck made the survey as a part of his graduate work at the College of Agriculture.

Ninety-eight of the one hundred men said the silage was much better feed than dry corn fodder for cattle. Sixty-two of them are feeding it with alfalfa, 23 are supplementing it with cottonseed cake, and 20 are feeding out straw or some other straw with silage. The hundred men are making more use of the silage for wintering beef calves, fattening steers, and feeding dairy cows than for anything else. Some of the men, however, are wintering sheep, fattening lambs, and wintering horses on the silage.

The mud, snow and icy driveways in the trenches have made it hard to haul out the silage this year. 70 of the hundred men reported. Since the recent winter has been one of the wettest and coldest in history, the same trouble is not likely to be as serious again, Buck believes. Six of the men said it was hard to get the silage out by hand, seven had trouble with the walls of the trenches caving in, and others have had a few other difficulties. Fourteen of the hundred men reported no disagreeable features connected with the handling of the trenches and silage.

Farmers reporting seem to want some definite information regarding the best cover for the trench silo after it is filled, the most satisfactory way of keeping the walls from caving in while the trench is empty, and some way to avoid the mud and ice during the wet spells of weather in the winter time.

The information Buck secured will be used along with other facts in encouraging farmers to construct and use trench silos this coming fall.

Grasshopper Situation.

Answering a number of criticisms of the poison bran bait method of killing grasshoppers, Prof. M. H. Swenk of the Nebraska agricultural college says: The "bliss" that have been obtained with the poison bran bait method should dispose completely of the unfounded assertion that the young grasshoppers will not eat the poison bran mash when green food is available.

A man can scatter bait by hand from the back of a wagon over a 30 foot swath at the rate of three to five miles per hour. The aeroplane holds much promise as a means of evenly and quickly distributing poison bran bait over fields of tall corn or hopper infested weeds, or over areas difficult of access by wagon or truck.

To be most effective the bait should be spread before seven o'clock in the morning or on clear warm days as early in the season after the grasshoppers hatch as possible. There is no danger to any kind of poultry from poisoned bran bait that has been spread properly, or from dead grasshoppers that have been killed by eating the bait. There is no important danger to pasturing livestock from poison bran bait that has been spread properly.

Poison bran bait costs 10-15 cents per acre for material. A most complete discussion of these points is contained in Prof. Swenk's weekly grasshoppers report dated April 14. The copy is available in the county farm bureau office at Weeping Water.

Arbor Day Program Suggestions
It is not too early to plan Arbor Day programs to be given April 22.

In fact many schools undoubtedly have their plans under way by this time. For those who are in need of suggestions, the Extension Service has for free distribution two Arbor Day circulars, available through the County Extension Agents' office.

In these publications are given several appropriate readings, poems, and songs. In addition are tree planting suggestions as well as the method of caring for trees. This year hundreds of memorial trees are being planted in observance of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. One of the circulars contains a reading about George Washington and his interest in tree planting.

More 4-H Clubs Organized.

Since last week's report of active 4-H clubs, three new clubs have been organized. The Bonnie Bakers Club, with Mrs. Earl Horton, Elmwood, as leader, have organized for second year cooking club work. The Happy Workers, of Alvo, with Mrs. Frank Taylor as leader, have also reorgan-

CASE IS CONTINUED

The case of the State of Nebraska vs. Walter Johnson, a suit for possession of liquor as well as transportation, which was placed for trial Saturday, was by agreement continued to Tuesday, April 12th. The case had been pending all day with the state being unable to secure a witness from Omaha, and in allures to secure this witness there was a continuance granted by agreement. It is expected that if the state cannot secure the witness by Tuesday that the case will be tried regardless of the witness.

Greenwood Pair Not Missouri Bandits

Officer Assists That Neither was Paul King, Sought for Bank Robbery.

Nightwatchman Harry O'Rourke, Greenwood, after seeing pictures of Paul King, wanted in connection with the robbery of the bank of Republic, Mo., said neither of the two men with whom he exchanged shots Friday morning was King.

The two were seen by O'Rourke on a Greenwood street early Friday. They held him up, took his gun and flashlight and took him to a garage where they started taking tires, tires and accessories. In the darkness O'Rourke seized a shotgun he had left there and opened fire. About a dozen rounds were fired, none taking effect. The bandits escaped when O'Rourke's gun jammed but he was able to take two shots at the fleeing car.

Auto Karshinsky, special agent for the railway express company, accompanied by Deputy State Sheriff Barton and Ray Carroll, Burlington special agent, returned to Lincoln Friday after investigating the shooting there.
