The blast sent debris hurtling 150 feet into the air, blew one woman bodily out of the shop, and smashed windows in buildings several blocks away. William Hyman was fatally injured. An accumulation of gas was discovered by firemen in the plumbing shop basement after they had been called to examine an exposed main. They ordered all persons from the building. The explosion came before the stores and apartments could be vacated.

Makes America a Figure

Paris.—The leader of the powerful radical socialist opposition, Edouard Herriot, brought Franco-America relations into the French election campaign Sunday when he declared that France should tell this to the United States: "If our affairs do not interest you, then let us alone."

(The radical socialists are next to the straight socialists in strength in the chamber of deputies with 105 members in their single bloc, and might be described better for the American voter if they were called merely "liberal." France elects a new chamber next Sunday.)

The former premier was making an attack on Premier Tardieu in an address at Avignon, when he brought the United States into the campaign oratory. M. Herriot protested against the Hoover moratorium and asserted former Premier Laval's visit to Washington was unnecessary.

THINKS STATE FOR SMITH

New York.—Alfred E. Smith Monday received a telegram from Thomas J. Spellacy of Hartford, Conn., expressing confidence the former governor would carry the democratic presidential primary caucuses in Connecticut Thursday. At the same time, headquarters of Roosevelt received a cablegram from P. J. Horton, national committeeman of Porto Rico, saying "six unconstructed Roosevelt delegates" had been chosen to attend the party's convention in Chicago.

Spellacy said the first test of the strength of the Smith sentiment had occurred in district caucuses in the town of East Hartford. There, he said, Mr. Smith's name and his record "inspired the democratic voters to the utter route of the well-organized opposition." Connecticut will send sixteen delegates to the national convention.

General Staff Not Agreed to by Mr. Bryan

35th Division of the National Guard Is the Only One That Is Not Organized.

Part of the details of a dispatch declaring that Governor Bryan had joined with the executives of Kansas and Missouri in consenting to a division headquarters organization of the National Guard were corrected Tuesday by Adjutant General Paul of the Nebraska regiment.

Bryan's consent has not yet been forthcoming, General Paul said, although word was sent to the Missouri and Kansas military leaders that there probably would be no objection by the governor to such an organization.

The National Guard regiments of three states, Nebraska and her two southern neighbors, comprise the Thirty-fifth division, not the Twenty-fifth, as reported in Monday's dispatch. All other National Guard divisions in the country have their division headquarters and staffs which assume actual significance only in case they are called upon for duty by the president. The divisional headquarters does not function as such during state camps or in service of the states individually.

It is likely that if the three states finally agree on a plan, Gen. W. A. Raupp of Missouri will be the first division commander with the rank of major general. He will reach the retirement age of sixty-four in November of this year and is scheduled to be succeeded as commander by Gen. Charles I. Martin of Kansas. The latter now is in command of the 69th Infantry brigade with the rank of brigadier general.

When General Martin is moved up, he will be succeeded as brigadier general by Col. Amos Thomas of Omaha, now in charge of the Nebraska section of the Sixty-ninth brigade. General Martin is scheduled to retire in shortly over two years, whereupon command of the division will be vested in the Nebraska commander.

The governors of Kansas and Missouri met Monday with Gen. George Leach, chief of the Militia bureau, at Richmond, Va., during the governors conference and agreed to the foregoing setup. Delay in general staff organization for the Thirty-fifth division has been due largely to failure of Kansas and Missouri to agree as to whose chief should take precedent as commander.

RADIO PROGRAM IS A SALUTE TO NEBRASKA

Nebraska was saluted as the "state of milk and honey which shares its table with the world" in the General Motors "Parade of States" program on a national radio hookup Monday night.

First explorers in Nebraska saw only waste, said a speaker. Now there is none more fertile, he asserted.

Bruce Barton wrote the tribute "Early history of Nebraska is the history of a thoroughfare," he said, telling of the trek of the Forty-niners across the plains. The state capitol was described as an "architectural triumph." He mentioned the state as the home of Pershing, William Jennings Bryan, Bess Streeter Aldrich, Willa Cather, J. Sterling Morton and Gutzon Borglum. "If you would feel the pulse of the state visit the state fair and see the stockyards at Omaha," he said.

Featured music included an opening number, "Hurrah for the Scarlet and Cream," dedicated to the University of Nebraska, and melodies of the Omaha Indians.
