Senator Walsh Named Chairman at Chicago

Second Day of Democratic Convention Filled with Action and Colorful Incidents.

By ED WESCOTT, Staff Correspondent

Chicago, June 28.—What a day, what a day. These Democrats really settled down to some plain and fancy conventioning today, and every minute of the proceedings was well worth the money.

It was a big day for the Roosevelt followers. The seating of two state delegations who are strong for Roosevelt, and the election of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as the permanent chairman of the convention gave the New York governor's forces three important and decisive victories.

The session started, running true to form, exactly one hour and fifteen minutes after the scheduled opening time. The first business of the day was the report of the committee on credentials. This report involved the acceptance of the Louisiana and Minnesota delegations. For two hours debate was heard on the convention floor as to whether the regular delegates from these two states should be accepted, or whether the contesting delegates from the respective states should be seated in their places.

Huey Long of Louisiana won his battle to seat his delegation of twenty. Huey, who has for the past few years been a colorful and active member of congress, and long a leading democrat, took the floor in defense of his own delegation. He didn't get a very complimentary reception from the audience. The delegates on the floor joined the galleries in giving the southern gentleman the well known "bronx cheer," and their booing hindered Long in getting started on what he had to say. Chairman Barkley was forced to interfere and to remind the convention that although it might not agree with this gentleman it was its duty to give him an opportunity to be heard. After Huey got started things changed. By the time he had finished his speech the crowd was cheering for him. This tall, black haired, southern fellow certainly knew just what to say and how to say it, and even though he got the boos at the start he got the votes at the end, and that's what counts.

In dealing with the Minnesota delegation the delegates were successful in striking a compromise. After spending a full hour on trying to decide which delegation from the Badger state should be received they decided to take both of them. Nice agreeable bunch of folks these Democrats. Anyway, this arrangement cuts Roosevelt's power in that state right in two. Under this plan Roosevelt gets twelve of the state's 24 votes, and the other twelve will go to the Roosevelt opposition. That's bad for the governor, but its better to have 12 votes than none at all.

The big fight of the day was had when it came time for the convention to elect its permanent chairman. Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the white haired old senator who made it so uncomfortable for the Republicans back in the "tea-pot dome" days, was the candidate favored by the Roosevelt backers. Jouett Shouse, one of the nation's leading Democrats from the state of Kansas was the other man slated for this post. Shouse was the man who was picked by the national committee last April. He was also the one backed by Al Smith, Raskob, and some of the rest of the party's big shots. But he couldn't stand up against the Roosevelt powerhouse which has been steamrolling its way around here for the past three days.

As far as being capable of handling the job of permanent chairman, which is really no job for a boy, its generally conceded that one of these men would have done as well as the other. But since Walsh was the man that presided over that orgy which the Democrats held at Madison Square eight years ago, which lasted for nearly three weeks, he really should be perfectly capable of handling any situation which presents itself.

After the permanent chairman had made his speech, during which he tapped his gavel and the republicans, the report of the committee on rules was read to the delegates. But no one paid much attention. The big fun for the day was over and they were getting tired. Some even got up and started to leave the convention hall. It is entirely possible that they were mad about something.

During the roll call on the voting on the question of the permanent chairman there was much happening. The delegates from that good old state of Iowa caused a sensation when a couple of them disagreed on how the delegation should vote. A good first class fistie combat was in the making when the law stepped in. Seems like you can't do anything in this town unless you do it under the eyes of a cop.

Demonstrations were in order today. It was easy to see when Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, presidential candidate from that state, entered the hall that the delegates would demonstrate on the slightest excuse. About half the delegates on the floor stood and faced the governor's box and wildly waved their hats and shouted as the mighty organ came forth with the strains of "Maryland, My Maryland." This demonstration had hardly subsided before the organ brought the entire assembly to their feet with that old familiar ballad, "Sidewalks of New York." All faces were turned toward the box where Al Smith sits, and as the former governor acknowledged their reception to him the whole crowd yelled loud and long. Al is very gracious about receiving such a demonstration as this one, and he rewarded his enthusiastic followers by giving them several of his very best smiles. That smile of his has power, and he knows it. The last demonstration of the day came when it was announced that Senator Walsh had been elected permanent chairman. With that announcement the Montana delegation grabbed their banner and started a parade, with all the rest of the rest of the western senator's backers falling into line. The organ started to play "When It's Springtime in the Rockies," and finished up with "Happy Days Are Here Again." It was a big moment for the "cow-boys" and believe me they made the best of it. This latter demonstration was, incidentally, the only one in which the Nebraska delegation, as a delegation, has taken part. It seemed good to see the home boys and girls getting on somebody's bandwagon.

It was thought that the third session of the convention would be held Tuesday night. At five thirty, however, the delegates were adjourned until noon Wednesday.

The Democrats have always been gluttons for oratorical punishment, they showed that Monday. But "you ain't seen nothin' yet!" There will be nominating speeches Wednesday, each followed by demonstrations ranging from five minutes to the limit of endurance for Roosevelt, Smith, Ritchie, Garner, Traylor, "Wild Bill" Murray, Reed, White, Byrd, and Baker. And after that there are at least thirty-two seconding speeches to be heard. At a minimum of five minutes each you can figure out yourself what thirty-two seconding speeches will do to time economy.

So Wednesday looks like another big day. And unless I'm terribly wrong there will be lots of fireworks popping.

LEARNS OF BROTHER'S DEATH

From Monday's Daily
Mrs. E. F. Wiles of this city received the sad news today of the death Sunday at Strathmore, California, of her brother, A. P. Churchill, 60. Last summer Mr. Churchill was a visitor here and met many of the old time friends and neighbors and who will learn with the greatest regret of his passing. The funeral will be held at the California home.

Dr. Heineman Takes Office as Rotary Head

One of the Charter Members is Now President of the Local Rotary Club.

The members of the Plattsmouth Rotary club had their luncheon Tuesday presided over by Dr. P. T. Heineman, recently elected president of the club, who formally took over the office. Dr. Heineman was inducted into office by the retiring president, R. E. Bailey, at the previous meeting and started in his tenure of office yesterday. Dr. Heineman is one of the charter members of the club and was the first secretary of the Plattsmouth club, a hard and faithful worker in the organization. That his services have been appreciated is shown by the fact of his selection to head the club and in his office he will be found an enthusiastic worker.

The address of the luncheon was given by Rev. H. G. McClusky, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who had as his subject, "Depression." The speaker urged his hearers to strive to maintain their poise and fighting spirit in the trying days of the national and world depression and that in the normal course of events the restoration of better conditions would make the depression forgotten in even greater advancement in the field of prosperity.

HAS LEG BROKEN

Marvin Lillie, 10, son of Mrs. Frank Lillie of this city, is at the Methodist hospital at Omaha, recovering from the effects of a broken right leg. The little lad with his mother had gone to Omaha to visit an older brother, Warren, who was at the Methodist hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis. The younger boy, Marvin, was crossing the intersection at 23rd and Cuming streets, crossing the street behind a street car, as he stepped out from the rear of the street car, an auto came along and before the driver could get the car entirely stopped the boy had been knocked down and injured. The driver of the car had applied his brakes on seeing the boy and which saved him from probable fatal injuries. Marvin was taken to the hospital and now the two brothers are patients together. This morning it was found necessary to reset the broken leg of Marvin.

The interior of the building used by the Farnham restaurant, has been given a renovation and is now epic and span with new paper and paint which adds much to the attractiveness of this popular eating establishment. The walls and ceiling are finished in the soft cream and white tones that add to the general appearance of the room. The building which is owned by the Gering family of this city, is also to have a new roof placed in the next few weeks and placed in first class shape. The redecorating of the dining room of the restaurant was looked after by Frank R. Gobelman and his force of workmen.

The patient has suffered a great deal and the many friends are trusting that she may be able to withstand the ordeal and return home relieved of her present condition.

A complaint was filed Monday morning in the office of Judge C. L. Graves, charging Louis Harris, a minor, with disturbing the peace.
