Nebraska Has Big Place at the Democrat Meet

Senator Hitchcock, Arthur Mullen and "Jim" Hanley Have Busy Time at the Convention.

By ED WESCOTT, Staff Correspondent

While the state of Nebraska may be "way out west" to some of the folks around here it isn't hard to see what those handling this convention know where to come for their leaders. There are at least three Nebraskans who are having a lot to do with this putting this meeting across, and let me tell you they are the busy men.

Probably the busiest of these three is Col. James Hanley, attorney of Omaha, who is the assistant sergeant at arms. You've heard of the one armed paper hanger, and the one armed fiddler, both of whom are supposed to be plenty busy fellows, but they can't hold a candle to this man. He has more things to do, and more places to go, than any three men should have. He is constantly besieged by the poor unfortunates who either lost their tickets or left them at their hotel, those who probably had no tickets in the first place but still want to get into the convention, reporters, photographers, and other pests of the lowest order who all crave some favor. On top of that he has charge of the ushers and whatnot. But in spite of all he manages to stay cheerful and ready to listen to whatever anyone has to say.

Then there is Arthur Mullen, also of Omaha, who is the floor leader for the Roosevelt forces. What a job that man has. Its largely up to him to get this New York governor elected, and if he doesn't come through, well, some one is going to be all over him. He can be seen at any time, while the convention is in session, running from one end of the convention hall to the other, having all kinds of conferences with important looking people, and looking plenty important himself.

Another Nebraskan who holds an important position is former Senator Gilbert W. Hitchcock, publisher of the Omaha World-Herald. He is chairman of the platform committee. He's in a plenty tough spot, because whatever his committee submits in the way of a platform its going to meet with opposition on the prohibition plank. Word is out that this committee is about ready to report. According to the "dope" the plank on the eighteenth amendment isn't going to be as wet as some had hoped for, but its needless to say that "dope" isn't always right. Anyway, whatever the committee reports, Hitchcock has a plenty tough job and their isn't a man in the convention who envies him his place.

DRY RAID ON CHICAGO CLUB

Chicago.—Deputy Prohibition Administrator Aman said he would demand the arrest of eighty-nine members of the sedate Swedish club of Chicago, in whose private lockers his men found wine and liquor. Aman, who led the raid Saturday night on the sixty-three year old club, whose membership includes many prominent Chicagoans, asserted each would be charged with illegal transportation and possession. "The club," he added, "cannot be construed as their home."

But Dr. O. C. Nyland, president of the club whose $175,000 worth of costly furnishings the prohibition officials announced they would attempt to have confiscated, retorted: "The raid was an outrage. The club has never owned any liquor." He instructed the club's attorney to fight to the limit any attempt to confiscate the furniture and to oppose any padlock proceedings.

CALL FOR A SILVER PLANK

Chicago.—Western democrats for their party's national convention were seeking a William Jennings Bryan to lead them again in a fight for remonetization of silver. And among those who offered themselves, but not himself a delegate, was William Jennings Bryan, Jr., of Los Angeles, son of the commoner. Another was Senator Wheeler of Montana, who expressed belief an agreement was near on a silver plank for the party platform which would pledge initiation of an international conference looking to remonetization of the white metal.

The mining states of the west, California, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana and Colorado, appeared to stand as a unit demanding a strong silver plank. Nevada and Montana
