Washington, Sept. 9.—To reduce unemployment, President Hoover said today he had instructed various branches of the government to increase immediate public construction activities by an expenditure of almost 200 million dollars.

Simultaneously, the president handed to newspaper men a letter from Secretary Mills saying such a sum would be available at once. Mr. Hoover explained that much of the speeding up, made possible under appropriations provided by the Wagner relief bill, will be "largely in the river and harbor, flood control and public building projects which were authorized from two to five years ago."

Detailed figures as to which projects will be most affected were not available at the executive offices. Mr. Hoover said the actual projects will be announced later by the government departments.

The new controverted 160 million dollar public buildings program is scheduled to come from the treasury department on Monday. Comptroller General McCarl has ruled that a 10 per cent slash should be made in this sum, and no public decision yet has been made as to whether this cut should apply to the entire sum or should merely reduce the amount to be spent on individual projects, the money saved to be available for additional works.

As for the river and harbor and the flood control projects concerned, Secretary Hurley left the capital this morning to attend the American Legion convention in Portland, Ore., and it was indicated at the war department that final decision on apportionment of funds might await his return.—World-Herald.

Hoover Lends His Support to Winter Relief

Will Open Conference on Measures for the Raising of Needed Millions for Relief.

Washington. — With figures at hand revealing unprecedented relief expenditures even during the summer months plans are under way for a nation-wide autumn campaign for funds to tide the destitute over the winter months.

President Hoover is scheduled to open a one-day national welfare and relief mobilization conference at the White House on Sept. 15 which will meet to discuss the needs confronting all American communities this fall and to co-ordinate plans for meeting these needs.

Representatives of 28 national organizations will attend. Last year these groups raised over $150,000,000 for relief purposes. Now these funds are almost exhausted and they are faced with the necessity of raising even larger quotas to take care of this winter's needs.

Three subjects of vital interest will mark the program—first: ways in which states and communities can co-operate in the distribution of the $200,000,000 federal appropriations for relief; second: the importance of communities maintaining well-balanced social service programs in the present crisis; third: discussion of special means to strengthen local fund-raising campaigns, community chests and others, which last year raised upward of $150,000,000 for welfare and relief purposes.

Relief expenditures by public and private agencies held up well above normal in June, according to reports received by the United States children's bureau from 991 relief agencies in 126 cities, and made public today. The decline from May to June of this year was only one per cent compared with a decline of 6 per cent from May to June, 1931.

Relief expenditures increased 91 per cent in June of this year as compared with the same month of last year for direct and work relief was $22,960,285 as compared with $12,030,581 in June last year. Only one-third of this amount last year was general relief administered by public departments while the amount of such relief in June, 1932, was $10,136,031, or nearly half the month's total expenditures for all forms of relief.

The number of families aided in June, 1932, as reported by 747 agencies totaled 793,169 as compared with 811,355 in May. The average grant per family reached by these agencies in June was $20.89 in comparison with $20.49 in May.

DEMOCRATS FOR REPEAL

East Point, Conn.—The democratic state convention adopted a platform calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, modification of the Volstead act, state aid for cities needing help in handling unemployment relief and a state fund for aid of closed banks and depositors. The platform bearing the approval of Governor Cross and adopted without debate also asked a state old age pension fund and unemployment insurance. It also praised the national ticket. Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, criticized the republican administration. Every mention of Alfred E. Smith or Governor Roosevelt was the occasion for applause. She asserted the election of the New York governor would mean the doom of prohibition.

CLOTH TO NEBRASKA

Washington.—The Red Cross reported cotton cloth requests had been received from 912 chapters, asking for a total of 14,016,586 yards of gingham, muslin, prints, shirting and other cotton materials to be made into clothing for the needy. The free cloth was ordered shipped to ninety more cities and towns in thirty-four states, including Beatrice and Columbus, Neb.

PRESENTS WHEAT SCHEME

Geneva.—A proposal for absorbing wheat from the Danubian countries was presented to the European economic conference by Italy. The project was kept secret but was believed to entail an avoidance of a preferential system by the creditor importing nations thru the purchase of excess Danubian grain at a profitable price.

U. S. Academies to Play Again

Sign a Three-Year Agreement on Eligibility Rule Clauses—To Battle Dec. 3.

New York.—United States Military and Naval Academies headed a five-year break in one of the oldest of all intercollegiate athletic rivalries, and two great service football eleven's will battle again at their own instigation Dec. 3 on Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

The weakening hostility of the two training academies for Uncle Sam's army and navy, all but swept away in two post-season contests between their football teams for charity in 1930 and 1931, was dissipated entirely as the superintendents of the two schools met in Philadelphia and signed a treaty of peace. The disputed ground upon which they broke in December of 1927—the three-year eligibility rule for gridiron warriors—was left as it always had been up to the time Navy made it an issue. For three years, at least, each academy will make its own eligibility rules, the plan for which Army held out at the time of the break. The agreement signed runs through 1933 and 1934.

"Faced with a situation under which post-season football games are repeatedly played very late in the year to the detriment of the academic work of both institutions," said the official statement, "the military and naval academies have decided to arrange a three-year series of athletic contests. The arrangement is made without change in existing policies under which each institution fixes its own eligibility rules but without prejudice to any future position which either academy may take in the matter."

The statement was signed by Maj.-Gen. William D. Connor, superintendent of the military academy, and Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, head of the naval academy. Thus the two service schools under political and public pressure almost from the moment of the break for renewal of a football classic that had grown into the most colorful climax of each football season, buried a fading disagreement in the common ground of each school working out its eligibility problems as it saw fit.
