Festival Plans
Going Rapidly
Forward

Indications Point to Most Successful Celebration Here October 5-8 —Arranging Program.

Plattsmouth's first big effort at providing entertainment for the people of Cass and adjoining counties in more than five years is to culminate with the holding of a four day Corn Festival and Homecoming on October 5, 6, 7 and 8.

That the plans are rapidly going forward was indicated at last night's general committee meeting, when reports were received from each of the committee chairmen on progress made with the arrangements.

It is planned to hold informal and sub-committee meetings at frequent intervals from now until the dates of the festival, and on each Friday evening a formal meeting of committee heads and interested supporters at a 6:30 luncheon, alternating between the different restaurants of the city. The meeting a week ago was held at Farnham's cafe and last night's at Brown's dining room in the Hotel Riley.

The festival will open on Wednesday with an afternoon parade sponsored by the Woman's club, comprising such divisions as Pets, Bicycles and Velocipedes, Comic Caricatures, etc., with prizes in each section for the most unique ideas. Every child participating in this parade will be issued tickets good for rides on the Burlington train and possibly other riding devices that may be secured for these days.

In the evening one of the big features will be the first "parade of justice" in which kangaroo court sentences will be meted out with a vengeance. Band music during the evening, opening night festivities at the Trade Show in the community building and later dancing there to music by Al Finch's orchestra will round out the day. An extensive afternoon program, utilizing Cass county talent, is scheduled for the afternoon.

Thursday will be music and Old Settler's day, with a special program dedicated to the men and women pioneers of this section of Nebraska and an especial invitation is to be extended to former residents as well to make this their day of homecoming. The afternoon program will be almost exclusively musical, and in the early evening a band concert by the famous 17th Infantry band is considered. This will be followed by a Mardi Gras street dance, with music furnished by a good orchestra. This feature will be free to everybody.

Friday will be Athletic day. In the afternoon a ball game is contemplated along with a program of races and other sports, while a series of free boxing events will be given from the arena at 5th and Main streets in the evening. It is quite probable Friday will also be the opening day of a two-day air circus put on by Midwest Aviation. Their program consists of races and stunts, to which an admission is ordinarily charged, but if the committee accepts their proposition this feature, like practically all the others on the four day program, will be made free. The company will bring six planes here and a landing field close to the business section of the city must be secured. Another feature that will probably be held on Athletic day will be the delapidated old car race, with entries limited to cars of a value of $25 or under, and all entrants must sign a contract agreeing to sell their car for not to exceed that amount. W. G. Kieck was named as head of the special committee on aeronautics and delapidated car race.

Plattsmouth High school football team will meet Thurman (Iowa) on Saturday will be the closing day and will be known as Rural School day, with special attention given to a rural school parade. As with the Wednesday parade, all children participating will be given ride tickets, and prizes, consisting of school and playground equipment will go to the winning schools. Supt. Devoe, who had charge of such arrangements last year at Geneva, will be in charge of this feature.

In addition to the rural schools participation in the parade, there will also be merchants' floats and as many as care to enter may do so.

The Masonic building (former pool hall location) on Main street, will be designated as Corn Palace No. 1, and contain part of the large number of agricultural exhibits, while additional displays will be made in buildings further east along Main street, if the response is as large as anticipated.

A long list of merchandise prizes for exhibits in this line was approved at last night's meeting, and it was decided to arrange competition in two classes, school children and 4-H club members in one, and adult growers in the second.

The Trade Show at the community building will be limited to active demonstration booths, eliminating the display window type of booth entirely. Several of the large wholesale food distributors are requesting space and will be accommodated if the local demand does not require all the available booths. A 10c admission fee will be charged to the Trade Show, with the usual entertaining and merchandise distribution features. The recent completion of a stage there will permit the holding of a much more effective style show than heretofore and it is possible both ladies' and men's wearing apparel may be demonstrated on one or two nights.

It is aimed to have the free street entertainment concluded around 9:15

Passing of
John Wynn
Brings Regret

Old Time Resident of the Community Leaves Large Circle of Sincere Friends.

The death of John Wynn, occurring suddenly on Wednesday afternoon while he was engaged in his work at the BREX shops, came as a severe blow to the many friends in this community.

John Wynn had spent practically his lifetime in this city, to which community he came when a young boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wynn, Sr. He lived his life in a quiet and unassuming way, his kindly greeting and pleasant smile being familiar to the friends whom he knew and loved and who respected and honored him in turn. His going is not only a loss to his family circle but to the community as well.

The departed had known the battle of life since his childhood days and had been happy in the work of providing for his loved ones and in the protection of his home.

While he leaves not fame or fortune, he has made the world better for his having been here and his going will be felt by many.

The family came west in the early eighties and settled at Plattsmouth, where they have since resided and where the parents passed to the last reward. He entered the employ of the Burlington in the local shops at an early age and was for many years engaged in the store department of the railroad. He was married in this city some thirty years ago to Miss Clara Irene Pettey, who survives his passing, with the two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Falk and Miss Laurens Wynn. There also survives one brother, James Wynn, three sisters, Mrs. E. M. Godwin and Mrs. W. H. Freese of this city, and Mrs. Mary Stafford of Kalamazoo, Michigan.

The funeral of Mr. Wynn will be held on Friday afternoon at 2:30 from the Sattler funeral home on Fourth and Vine streets. Rev. York of Omaha, will have charge of the service.

Indian Mounds

Many Traces of Early Indian Dwellers Found in the Vicinity of Murray and Nehawka.

While western Nebraska has yielded many interesting and valuable finds as to the dwellers and animals of the forgotten ages, east Cass county has in recent years revealed traces of early Indian tribes. These traces point to the mound builders or Indian tribes that inhabited this section long before the coming of the Otoes, Pawnees and Sioux to this part of the west.

This week there has been much research work carried on by a party of twenty archeologists, geologists, ethnologists and relic hunters. The party was attending a conference at Lincoln and induced by many of the discoveries that have been made by Dr. G. H. Gilmore of Murray, the party came to the vicinity of Murray and Nehawka to personally inspect the finds.

Among those in the party were: Dr. Bell, head of the University of Nebraska Ethnology department; E. E. Blackman, curator of the State Historical Society; Addison E. Sheldon, president of the State Historical Association; Dr. A. H. Hill, head of the Hastings, Neb., Museum; an archaeologist from Fayetteville, Ark.; Mr. Keys of Red Oak, Iowa; two relic collectors from Glenwood, Iowa; Dr. Strong, head of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C., and others. Dr. G. H. Gilmore of Murray and Alvin McReynolds and Wm. Ost of Nehawka were also in the party.

The group visited the buried Indian city at King Hill, east of Murray and also the "turtle mound" in that vicinity, recently unearthed by Dr. Gilmore. It is thought by these men that the buried city and the turtle mound is that of the Algonquin Indians who inhabited this section hundreds of years ago.

The Indian flint mines north of Nehawka, were also visited. These quarries are considered the world's outstanding aborigines quarries and scientific material of unlimited quantities has been and is still to be secured there.

Several former Indian house sites were also visited in this section and perhaps in the future some of these places will be excavated and studied by some of these men.

According to these men, eastern Cass county is one of the richest fields in the world for information concerning the Indians who populated this country hundreds of years ago.

FORM LETTER TO PARENTS

T. J. Thompson, dean of students affairs at the University of Nebraska, and Amanda H. Heppner, dean of women, have prepared a form letter which is being sent to parents and guardians of all new students and freshmen entering the university this fall.

The letter, designed to inform regarding requirements of the university and other facts, discusses a wide variety of subjects—from general living conditions to employment, credit and scholarship.

Of fraternities and sororities, the letter says: "Many young people are greatly benefited thru the influence of these groups. Some are seriously hampered by this type of life."

Regarding expenses: "Generally speaking, more students are harmed by having too much money than are injured by having too little. It is estimated that, exclusive of clothing, the average expense for one school year should range from $500 to $700."

The deans gave a rather full explanation of scholarship rules and practices of grading work and invite requests for information at any time.
