

Alvo News

Paul Hoffman was hauling oats from Alvo to Omaha for Simon Rehmeier, which he sold to a firm near that place.

Glen Kruger, of Plattsmouth, who sells household necessities to the farming community, was a visitor in Alvo and a guest at the home of his friends, Charles Godbey and wife, as well as looking after business.

The Alvo Woman's club held its regular meeting last Thursday afternoon, at which time there were a large number of the members present, and a very worthwhile program was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were also served.

These days Arthur Dinges, the garage and repair man is kept on the hop most of the time, getting the cars of the customers ready for the entering of the cold weather. Art knows well the way to care for the various autos, as evidenced by his increasing business.

J. H. Weychel, a veteran farmer of the community, while he is not in the best of health, has been hustling to get his corn out and expects to finish up in a short time. Mr. Weychel has been picking corn every year for the past 57 years and has always done his portion of the work in this line.

George Sheesley was looking after some business matters in Elmwood on Tuesday of last week, driving over in his car. Mr. Sheesley has been kept very busy with his corn picking and was only able to come to town last Wednesday on account of the slight snow interfering with the work of picking.

Loren Michel, a brother of William Michel, who formerly resided in the vicinity of Alvo, but has been making his home at Lincoln for some time past has been assisting with the gathering of the corn crop of Frank E. Cook. Leonard Lenhart, of near Ashland, a son of Peter Lenhart, is also assisting with the gathering of the corn crop at the Cook home and they are making good progress with their work.

Departed for Rochester

Mr. and Mrs. John Banning departed on last Friday for Rochester, Minnesota, where Mr. Banning will enter the Mayo clinic for a check-up on his condition since he received treatment some time ago. While they are away, the coal business and lumber yard will be looked after by Hal Parsell.

The Alvo Election

The turn-out at the polls in Alvo on election day was one of the largest ever recorded here, and the supply of official ballots furnished by County Clerk George Sayles was almost exhausted as a result of the heavy voting. There were just two left at the time of closing the polls. The day was not the best and many did not come out to vote, or there would not have been enough ballots to go round. It would seem that the number who exercise their right of franchise is increasing each year. The election returns were taken to Plattsmouth on last Wednesday morning by Attorney Carl D. Ganz, one of the members of the board of canvassers.

Club Met Last Wednesday

The Double 4-H club met last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Daugherty, where they were entertained by this estimable lady and where the large crowd gathered to discuss current topics and enjoy a good time visiting together. A very delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

Coal is Cash

We have to pay cash for our coal and are selling on a very close margin, so must have the cash when we sell.

MIDWEST RECEIVES SNOWS

Kansas City.—Snows traced a patchwork pattern from the Great Lakes region to the Rocky mountains and from the Canadian border to the Texas panhandle. Under murky skies, temperatures ranged from slightly above freezing to 14 at Minnetonka, N. D. The snow was general over Montana, North Dakota, Colorado, and southern Minnesota, where many roads were blocked by Tuesday's storm, and wires broken by a burden of sleet.

A combination of snow and bitter weather caused the postponement of two football games scheduled for Fargo, N. D., Friday. The snow ranged from furries in Nebraska and Illinois to a maximum of six inches in Minnesota. The first snow of the season fell in large melting flakes in Oklahoma and in the Texas panhandle. The fall extended well into the Oklahoma cotton belt.

Hurricane Puts Grim Reaper at Work on Island

Winds Lay Waste Province and Literally Annihilate Village—1,000 Known Dead.

Camaguey, Cuba.—More than 1,000 persons were known to have been killed, police said, by the heavy storm which swept over southern Cuba. The entire province of Camaguey lay in waste Thursday night and the town of Santa Cruz Sur on the south coast of Camaguey province was literally annihilated.

Police described the disaster as the greatest in Cuban history. Hundreds of injured were being cared for in improvised hospitals and as trains came in from the province bearing the injured, it was estimated the total death toll might reach 1,800.

Three trainloads of injured reached Camaguey from Santa Cruz Del Sur. A dozen doctors and medical supplies were dispatched to the stricken town.

Mayor Umberto Rodriguez, of Camaguey, told the Associated Press his information from Santa Cruz was that 1,500 were dead and that only 300 persons in the town escaped unscathed. The mayor said a twenty foot wall of water was driven five leagues inland by the terrific wind and that not a single house was standing in Santa Cruz.

One survivor brought in by train said many persons were washed into the sea. Various estimates of the number killed were given by survivors. They varied from 300 to more than 1,000.

Many tales of horror were related. Lying on their beds in hospitals, their faces blank with horror, mothers and fathers were unable to tell how they had escaped the waves and the wind which swept over three story houses as they were matches.

Carpenter Tells Horrors

Depuy Aguilera, a carpenter, related the following story: "I do not know how I escaped. When the wind started to blow at 2 a. m., Wednesday I instantly awoke and left the house ordering my wife and five children to stay close by while I sought means of escape. I thought I could get back at 5:30 a. m., but great waves swept me inward. My children saw a great timber fall and instantly kill their mother but they miraculously escaped when the waves lifted the upper story of the house into the branches of small trees.

"I personally pulled forty from the water and helped to bury one hundred and fifty."

The carpenter said that 3,000 persons were living in Santa Cruz when the disaster hit and at least 500 fled before the storm. He said that no more than 1,000 could have been saved and he estimated the dead at 1,800.

Other survivors brought stories of three suicides when loved ones perished. The wife of Lieut. Jose Liano, formerly military supervisor at Santa Cruz, shot herself in the head when her small baby was blown from her arms. Tingo San Pelayo killed himself when his mother was drowned. Only one member of the San Pelayo family was saved. She was Geogina and she owes her life to her fiancé who carried her out of the house.—State Journal.

WANT RAILWAY RATE KEPT

New York.—The railroads of the country will shortly petition the Interstate Commerce commission to continue the "emergency" 10 percent increase in freight rates authorized by the commission last year. The roads decided to take this step at the annual session of the Association of Railway Executives here.

It was also made known that Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the association, would appear soon before the senate foreign relations committee in Washington to outline the railroads' attitude toward the St. Lawrence river seaway project. It was generally inferred that he would enter a vigorous protest against the project as inimical to the interests of the railroads.

At the formal election of officers all were named to succeed themselves except A. D. McDonald, president of the Southern Pacific, who was succeeded as a member of the executive committee by Paul Shoup, vice chairman of the same system. Mr. McDonald's withdrawal was due to the removal of his office to the Pacific coast. F. W. Charske, chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific system was elected a member of the association's executive committee.

UNIVERSITY SEEKS $42,000

Omaha.—The Municipal University of Omaha will make an effort to retrieve $42,000 in taxes paid in by local railroads in 1931-32 as terminal taxes and which, it has been discovered, were not allocated to the institution. Regent T. B. Martin told the members of the board at a meeting Thursday that the city comptroller has agreed to give the university credit for the money.

Old Royal Park Becomes a City for Workless

Viennese War Veterans Find Way to Self-Help in Crisis by Developing Their Own City

Philadelphia.—The quick change of part of a royal park into a garden city for the unemployed of Vienna is described in a report issued by the American Friends Service Committee, on the occasion of a notable show of garden produce arranged to celebrate the tenth anniversary of its foundation.

Twelve years ago the site of the "City" was merely part of the 50 square miles or so of wooded hills of the old Austrian Emperor's hunting park—the "Lainzer Tiergarten."

It was at the critical time of Austria's economic collapse that some of Vienna's citizens determined to do what they could to help themselves. They were discharged soldiers, partially disabled in the war. They asked the government to grant them a small corner of the park. The government did not at first see its way to doing so, but the soldiers persisted and finally determined to take action. They repaired to the park with a wagon load of tools, and squatted on the ground.

The government, becoming convinced of the soundness of their scheme, finally granted them a title to the land and the completion of the first few houses was celebrated by the erection of a modest monument adorned with the settlers' sign of spade and draftsman triangle and bearing the inscription "The City of Peace."

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS HOLD INSTALLATION LAST NIGHT

From Friday's Daily
A 6:30 covered dish luncheon for members and their families preceded last night's installation of officers of the Catholic Daughters, held at the K. C. hall. A goodly number of the members turned out and the large table was spread with good things to eat, that rapidly disappeared before the onslaught of the hungry folks who marched past to fill their plates with such edibles as struck their individual fancy.

Later the hall was cleared of the tables to make way for the installation of officers.

Miss Veronica O'Connor, of Omaha, state regent of the organization was present to officiate as installing officer and at the conclusion of this part of the ceremonies gave a splendid address on the duties of the officers to the members and the organization and the duties of members to support their officers.

ARMISTICE DAY QUIET

The passing of Armistice day was very quiet in this city with no formal program being held during the day to mark the occasion. The banks of the city closed in accordance with the official state holiday.

The offices at the court house were largely in operation during the morning, altho this afternoon there was little activity and the officers and assistants took the half day as a holiday.

The Plattsmouth-Tecumseh high school football game this afternoon drew many out to see the last home game of the season for the Platters.

This evening at the First Methodist church there will be held a program in honor of Armistice day and which is sponsored by the Woman's Home missionary society and which will follow the chicken pie supper at the church.

In the high school and junior high school there were programs given and talks made by the representatives of the American Legion to the young people of the school.

Hotel Lobby is Scene of Farce-Comedy in Show

Hilarious 45-Minute Act Collaborated by Bennett and Cook for Second Section Legion Minstrel

The lobby of a Gotham hotel not unlike the Amos and Andy hostelry of radio fame will be the scene of the second or "oleo" section of the Legion's "Minstrels of 1932" to be presented on the stage at the Legion's community building next Thursday and Friday nights, Nov. 17 and 18.

The title of the skit is "Whata Nite, Whata Nite!"

Wayne Bennett, one of the co-authors and directors of the show, is cast in the role of landlord, while Raymond Cook plays the part of Prof. Whoozis, the great hypnotist, whose arrival at the hotel is the occasion for much of the comedy in this 45 minute farce. Mary Warren-Beverage in the role of the landlord's none-too-meeek wife, also contributes much to the fun.

Herman Thomas, as "Mug-Wamp" the bellhop, whose attention to the guests is eclipsed by his thirst for something "stronger than water," Millie Bullin, a musician guest of the hotel, Anna Mae Sandin, the blonde theatrical girl, Elmer Webb, the corpulent traveling salesman, and Dr. O. Sandin, fire chief, comprise other members of the cast who contribute to the hilarity.

One of the big features of the act is the appearance of Claud Smith, a member of the great army of unemployed, who drops in to "warm his shins" and incidentally unfolds a hard luck tale to the audience that would be hard to duplicate, even in the fantastical Algiers tales of a decade ago.

This calls for the appearance of the "Four Sob Sisters," who will convulse the audience with laughter and pave the way for the startling climax of the act, now being rehearsed in secret.

The plot of this farce, as well as the comedy sections of the minstrel were written by Messrs Bennett and Cook, who are directing the show, billed as "the greatest minstrel produced in Plattsmouth in many years." Tickets are now on sale, in the hands of Legionnaires and members of the cast, and seat reservations may be secured at Maury's Drug Store beginning Tuesday morning, Nov. 15th. Popular prices of 25c general admission, 35c for choice reserved seats down front, and 10c for children will prevail.

DEATH OF MARSHALL WILES

The death of Edgar Marshall Wiles, 68, former Plattsmouth resident, occurred Wednesday night at Minatare, Nebraska, near where he had made his home for many years. Mr. Wiles had been in failing health for the past few years and failed very rapidly in the last few months.

Edgar Marshall Wiles was a son of the late Captain and Mrs. Isaac Wiles and was born at the family homestead in the southwest portion of this city. He grew to manhood here and was graduated in the class of 1882 of the local high school. On reaching manhood Mr. Wiles took up railroading and was engaged as a freeman on the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley railroad, later being engaged as an engineer on this road for a number of years. With the development of the western portion of the state Mr. Wiles removed there and was engaged in farming for the last years.

He is survived by the widow and one son, who reside at Minatare, as well as a number of brothers and sisters, among whom is Luke L. Wiles of this city.

It is expected that the services will be held at the home in the west and the body brought to this city for interment in the Oak Hill cemetery.

SISTER DIES OF STROKE AT HOME IN WISCONSIN

Ernest Pautsch received a message last Friday morning announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. August Buss, at their home in Waupun, Wisconsin, following a period of failing health covering the past year or more. Several weeks ago she suffered a stroke, since which time she had failed steadily until the end.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, two daughters and six grandchildren. Also by two brothers and one sister.

Mr. Pautsch's many friends extend sympathy to him in the loss of his sister.—Louisville Courier.

EXTEND BANK HOLIDAY

Carson City, Nev.—Extension of the Nevada bank holiday for another two weeks was ordered by Governor Balzar in a proclamation. The governor asserted the extension of the holiday which started Nov. 1, was necessary to give twelve banks and the depositors time to work out an agreement for reopening of the banks.

Manual of D A R Inspires Better Citizenship

Mrs. E. H. Wescott, State Regent, Discusses Use of Manual to Train the Citizen.

"What is the Manual of the United States," repeated Mrs. Edgar Hill Wescott, of Plattsmouth, state regent of the Nebraska Daughters of the American Revolution, when questioned about the work of the "Manual for Immigrants" committee of the D. A. R., which committee is headed in Nebraska by Mrs. Donald B. Allan, of Omaha. "Why, the Manual is a valuable little book which our organization tries to give to each newly naturalized citizen of Nebraska. It is a book which teaches the immigrant HOW to become an American citizen and WHY he should become an American citizen. This is a natural line of National Defense. It is published in eighteen languages. Almost two thousand of these books were distributed, free, in Nebraska, during the last year.

"The Manual is a veritable fund of information," declared Mrs. Wescott, "and its use should not be confined to immigrants. Every person should own a copy. Their cost is only twenty cents each, and they are much cheaper if bought in quantities. Their contents will be a revelation to many. The book contains material for radio talks and speeches. It makes interesting reading for anyone interested in education for better citizenship. It answers all questions which arise in preparing for citizenship, and presents, in very concise form, many things a prospective citizen wishes to know. It gives a brief history of the Beginning of the United States, the Constitution, the History of the Flag and its Correct Use.

"The Manual may be obtained free of charge by members for free distribution, through any approved agency, in public or evening schools; for textbooks use in schools and Americanization classes; for circulation and distribution in public libraries; and for all purposes connected with the education of the foreigner in American citizenship. All D. A. R. chapters pay a per capita tax of ten cents per member to the Manual fund."

GARNER DREAMS OF PEACE

Uvalde, Tex.—Parboiled squirrel and quail were on the mind of John N. Garner, vice president elect, as he contemplated hunting trips thru the canyons of the Nueces and the Rio Grande before reporting to Washington for the short term of congress and the inauguration next March. "I want to go out for a season in the open," he said. "I love this section and nothing pleases me more than to do my own cooking in the open." He explained that no matter how old the squirrel or quail, if it was parboiled and then broiled the meat would be "done to a turn."

"If I live, I shall be sixty-eight when I complete this vice presidential term," he said as he paced an Associated press correspondent's room in a hotel here. Then, he talked about a block of property which brings him an income of $18,000 annually.

"I want to come back here and live my life in my own way after I get thru in Washington," he said. "I would not have built that home at a cost of $20,000 twelve years ago, with its pecan trees and all, if I had intended staying up in Washington all my life."

Don't send your money away if you want to see real prosperity in Cass county. Plattsmouth is the logical "big town" shopping point for every resident of the county.

Foreign Comment on the Election of Roosevelt as President of the U. S. Is Favorable.

World Capitals are Hopeful for Better Relations

The election of Franklin D. Roosevelt was greeted in capitals throughout the world with the hope that it might assist in restoring the world's business and that it might have a beneficial effect on the relations between the United States and other nations. Typical comment:

London—Mr. Roosevelt should supply "new vigor and liberalism" to American economic life. The stock exchange received the result favorably.

Paris—Government circles looked for an American cabinet composed of statesmen entirely familiar with European affairs. Norman H. Davis and Owen D. Young were cited.

Vienna—Brewery shares were in the van in an upward movement on the stock exchange. One paper said the "key to regeneration of the world" rested in Mr. Roosevelt's hands.

Berlin—An officially inspired publication summed up thus: "Words of gratitude to the outgoing and hopeful expectations concerning the incoming president.

Tokio—Government officials and newspapers said no change in American policy toward the orient could be expected. Business leaders welcomed the result as improving Japan's economic position. Commodity markets showed the strongest advance in many weeks.

Rome—Wine producers were jubilant. No hope was expressed for debt cancellation or revision. There was general expectation of greater participation by the United States in the League of Nations, without formal entry.

Buenos Aires—South American papers saw important lessons in the election. A Rio de Janeiro journal said the Roosevelt victory represented "a peaceful revolution of great consequence which exacted no sacrifice of life or property and offered a magnificent example to the nations of Lathia America."—World-Herald.

The entire District of Columbia has been converted into a bird preserve. There were enough lame ducks and cooked geese up there without further casualties.
