Marked Falling Off in Divorces Granted at Reno
 County Clerk Bemoans Loss of Revenue to County—Lawyer Blames Depression.

Reno.—The business of making the unhappily wed single again and happy again fell off so markedly during 1932 that Reno wondered if, after all, there might not be some truth in the old saw about two being able to live cheaper than one. At least that was the only conclusion Reno attorneys could reach as they sought an explanation of why some 1,500 fewer couples aired their domestic woes in district court here this year than did during the previous twelve months.

"It was the depression that did it," said one, who estimated that in dollars and cents local barristers did about $200,000 less business than in 1931. "Folks just found," he concluded, "that they could better afford to remain unhappily married than to be divorced. It may have worked out all right for them, but to us it was a pain in the neck."

"Pain in the neck is right," echoed County Clerk E. H. Beemer, who has the records to prove it. From Jan. 1 thru Dec. 23 his books showed that only 3,214 divorce complaints were filed here, whereas during 1931 exactly 4,754 couples asked the judge to sever the tie that binds. To Washoe county alone this meant a drop of approximately $40,000 in filing fees.

The Reno merry-go-round did not want, however, for its usual share of sensational cases during 1932. There was the "love divorce" of lovely Ann Harding, blond film star, from Harry Bannister, and that of Ruth Chatterton from Ralph Forbes. George Jessel, musical comedy star, was divorced by the former Florence Courtney, while Lucy Cotton Hann, former actress, obtained dissolution of her marriage to Charles Hann, Jr., her third husband and one time Harvard football player.

Society, too, was represented by seventy-two couples whose names are listed among the elite in America's leading cities. Among these were Lois O. Clarke de Ruyter and John Louis de Ruyter; Edith Gould Wainwright and Carroll Livingston Wainwright; Anna Christian Auchincloss and Samuel Sloan Auchincloss; Dorothy Schiff Hall, daughter of the late Mortimer Schiff, and Richard B. W. Hall; Betty Shevlin Smith and Paul Morton Smith; Catherine Wilcox Stires and Arthur McKinn Stires.

Among others who filed divorce complaints here during the year were Ruth Elder Camp, the noted woman filer; Julia McDonald Davis Adams, daughter of John W. Davis, democratic candidate for president in 1924; Roger O. Williams, trans-Atlantic aviator, and Dorothy A. Hitchens, the Chicago heiress.

City Council Discusses Matter of Fire Truck

Committee to Investigate Cost of New Chassis to Repair Damage Done Two Weeks Ago.

From Wednesday's Daily
 The truck of the local fire department, which was damaged some two weeks ago while returning from the Murray school fire, was the subject of the attention of the city council for the greater part of the time last evening.

W. H. Puls, president of the council, presided, Mayor Sattler being on the sick list with flu.

The meeting also had present the committee from the Rotary club, Judge A. H. Duxbury and Frank A. Cloldt, as well as Councilman Davis. A large number of the firemen were also present to attend the session.

Chairman Davis of the fire and water committee, presented to the council the matter of securing repair of the truck, it being necessary now to have one of the Mc-Maker trucks at the city hall to haul the hose and other equipment if needed. Mr. Davis stated that the committee had investigated the matter of having the present engine repaired, securing a new engine or securing an entire new chassis. The cost of repair would be $305 as far as could be estimated, a rebuilt engine would cost from $350 to $375 while an entirely new engine would reach $462.50. As these figures were so high that the question of a new chassis also was discussed. The installing of a new engine would make much alteration of the present chassis necessary.

Councilman Johnson moved that the fire and water committee secure the prices of several makes of chassis for the present fire truck body and which they could present at the next meeting. This motion was later adopted by the council.

Chief O. Sandin of the fire department was present and asked for his views of the matter stated that the present chassis of the truck was not in the best of shape and he believed it best that a new one be purchased, as the present one would require much repair. Dr. Sandin also urged that the city fire truck be equipped with a pumper that would aid in fighting fires in sections where the water pressure was low.

The finance committee of the council presented a resolution as to the transferring of amounts from the general fund to interest funds to care for different items that were due and whose funds did not carry sufficient amounts to cover them.

Messrs Duxbury and Cloldt were called upon and expressed their pleasure at being present and interested in the manner in which the council was working to save the city all expense possible in the administration of the city affairs.

The following claims were allowed by the council:

C. E. Hartford, fuel	$ 12.90
Clyde Jackson, burying two dogs	1.20
Charles Bennett, burying one dog	.50
George Taylor, street work	2.80
J. H. McMaken, hauling cinders	4.00

ECONOMIC EXPERTS GATHER
 Cincinnati.—Thirteen groups of experts in economic and sociological problems will meet here Wednesday to outline their views of what may be wrong with the world's business and its peoples. Their discussions will cover the changing developments of monopolies, labor requirements of the new age, "back to the land" movement of population, new studies in the effects of environment on the human race, new proposals for solving the pressing farm problems, and unemployment relief.

Chief of the various groups to meet in joint convention until Saturday are the American Economic association and the American Sociological society. Meeting with them will be the Association for Labor Legislation, the American Farm Economic association, the American Association of University Instructors in Accounting, American Association of Teachers of Business Law in Collegiate Schools of Business, National Association of Teachers of Marketing and Advertising, American Association of Schools of Professional Social Work, American Association for Labor Association, Econometric Society and American Land Economic Association.
