DEATH OF PIONEER

Allen G. Crabtree, who died Thursday morning at Lincoln, was one of the earliest Nebraskans, having come to the state in 1854 at the age of five. He lived in a log cabin on what was later the site of Rock Bluffs, and at fourteen started driving oxen for a freighter between there and Denver, then a small mining town.

In 1878 he bought a farm south of Eagle, and the next year married Eliza Umland. After thirty-five years they retired and lived in Lincoln for some time. After Mrs. Crabtree's death six years ago, Mr. Crabtree went to make his home with his daughter. He leaves two other daughters, Mrs. Etta M. Moss of Garden City, Kas., and Mrs. Varena A. Curley of Seward, and a son, William A. of Cairo, Neb. J. W. Crabtree of Washington, D. C., secretary of the National Education association, is a cousin. Mr. Crabtree will be buried at 1:30 Saturday at Lincoln.

Economy, Taxes in Double Slash at Rising Deficit

Senate Group Votes Move to Give Roosevelt Free Hand—To Ask Speed.

Washington, Dec. 30.—A double-bladed ax—economy and taxes—is the tool democratic congressional leaders have chosen to use in their efforts to chop down at this session the mounting treasury deficit and they hope to swing into real action next week.

The senate economy committee today approved the democratic proposal to give President-elect Roosevelt blanket authority to reorganize the government in the interest of economy.

Another opportunity at the manufacturers' sales tax proposition, despite the incoming executive's apparent disapproval, was promised the ways and means committee by Chairman Collier today when he assembles the revenue-raising group next Wednesday to pass on revenue raising methods.

Forecasts Early Results. Action by the senate economy committee today forecasts early results on the reorganization proposal, which is to be tacked onto the treasury-postoffice supply bill, now pending in the senate.

The proposition would give Roosevelt not only power to transfer agencies as provided in the economy act for President Hoover, but in addition, authority to abolish bureaus. It requires the action of but one branch to reject the Hoover transfer proposals, whereas the democratic proposition would make it necessary for both to act before the Roosevelt measures could be blocked.

As in the economy act, the congressional veto would have to be accomplished within 60 days after the president issues orders making changes.

Plans of Garner. Should the senate fail to adopt the proposal, Speaker Garner said it would be placed on the general deficiency appropriation bill in the house at the end of the session.

Meanwhile, Chairman Cochran called the expenditures committee to meet Wednesday to act on his resolution to prevent the Hoover reorganizing program from going into effect. Cochran expressed confidence that the house would veto the Hoover proposals.

At his daily press conference, Garner said President-elect Roosevelt "is not afraid to take all the responsibility congress will give him," on the reorganization proposal. He added, under questioning, however, "I don't think he wants to be a dictator. He has said so."

Discussion of Taxes. In discussing tax proposals, Collier told newspaper men he was going to give the ways and means committee "full opportunity to consider" all suggested propositions including the bill of Representative McLeod (rep., Mich.) for a manufacturers' sales levy of 1 1/2 per cent on all commodities, except the necessities of life.

Collier personally is opposed to a general sales tax and said he doubted whether it would have much chance of being reported to the house, where a similar measure was soundly defeated last spring.—World-Herald.

OMAHANS HIT-RUN VICTIMS

Omaha.—Mrs. T. M. Sullivan, Omaha, was seriously injured and her daughter, Katherine, five, was slightly injured Thursday night when struck by a hit and run driver in South Omaha.

Police later announced that Tom Lukowski, farmer living near Gretna, had been arrested at Gretna on suspicion of being the hit and run driver. The license number of his car was the same as that given to police by witnesses of the accident, officers said.

Ludowski, the police said, denied hitting anybody. He was brought to the county jail here. After hitting the woman and girl, the hit and run driver's car skidded into another, sideswiping it, and then sped on. A third driver, Guy Hansen, pursued the car to Millard and was instrumental in the arrest, police stated.

HIT BY FALLING TREE

York, Neb., Dec. 28.—Clyde Stevens, 33, of Polk, is in critical condition at a hospital here from skull injuries suffered when a fifty foot tree which he was felling hit him on the head.

Physicians removed splintered bone from his brain, but gave him slight chance for recovery.

TO STAGE WOLF HUNT IN VICINITY OF CEDAR CREEK

The vicinity east of Cedar Creek will be the scene of a big wolf hunt on next Saturday, January 7th, beginning at nine o'clock in the morning, when participants are asked to meet at the Keil school house one and a half miles east of Cedar Creek to get organized for running down these troublesome pests that are constantly preying on poultry and livestock.

The committee arranging for the hunt invites all sportsmen who "thoroughly understand the mechanism of their firearms, and will come forth sober, cool headed and willing to listen to reason and think of safety first for all humans, livestock and law protected game." As a further safety precaution rifles, revolvers and buckshot will be prohibited.

The hunt will be prosecuted vigorously throughout the day and it is provided that all wolves downed shall be brought to the center of the ring and sold at auction to the highest bidder. Proceeds will be used to pay expenses and all remaining funds to be turned over to charity.

Farmers in the vicinity who have suffered loss of their livestock as a result of depredations by wolves are expected to join wholeheartedly in the hunt and those from surrounding towns are also invited, subject to the above outlined requirements. It will be a great day of sport for the hunters and a sorrowful one for the wolves.

Proposes Farm Relief by Stabilized Prices

Quotation Would Be a Stabilized Minimum Price on Domestic Consumption.

Washington.—A farm relief plan based on a stabilized minimum price for the domestic consumption of 11 "indispensable" food and clothing crops was outlined here by Francis J. Clair, president of the National League for Economic Stabilization.

His audience was a group of representatives called together by Representative Summers (dem., Tex.), chairman of the unofficial "open forum" on the farm problem, and one senator—Sheppard (Tex.). Earlier, Clair had discussed his plan informally with Chairman Jones of the house agriculture committee, which recently closed hearings on a domestic allotment relief plan sponsored by organized farm leaders.

The Clair plan would be applied to cotton, wool, flax, wheat, corn, rye, oats, rice, barley, buckwheat and hay. Each year it would have the department of agriculture determine the domestic production as is now done.

Under the plan, and publicly proclaim at the end of each crop year, to the producers of each crop, the national prorata percentage which may be marketed for domestic consumption together with the basic minimum prices for the various basic crops.

"The minimum price will have a normal and consistent relation to non-agricultural price indexes and to cost of living indexes as disclosed in our past experience over a period of normal years or perhaps in the prewar relationship of such index numbers.

"An Inverted Tariff." "The minimum price principle does not fix prices except to establish an irreducible minimum price on these products, based on average American production costs, below which the agricultural industry cannot survive in its economic relationship to protected rates and prices in other industries.

"Under this plan minimum price stabilization is in effect an "inverted tariff" with the advantage of really giving price protection whether or not there is a surplus."

IN OMAHA HOSPITAL

C. A. McReynolds of near Murray, was in the city Thursday for a few hours, being en route to Omaha where he will remain for some time as members of the family are ill there. James W. McReynolds, a son, is in the hospital, where he is recovering from an operation for appendicitis, his case having been quite serious. Mrs. Pearl Reed, a daughter, is also ill and has been taken to the hospital for treatment for a short time. While the members of the family are ill Mr. McReynolds will remain at Omaha to be near them.
